Million Line Streets; Battle Police as U. S. Chief Lands.

Troops Use Sabers To Force Clear Path

President Will Officiate at Opening Today of 21-Nation Parley.

By the Associated Press.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 30.—Wildly acclaimed by an estimated 1,000,000 Argentines, President Franklin D. Roosevelt came to Buenos Aires today for the opening of the parley at which 21 American republics hope to lay the foundation of permanent peace in the New World.

Tonight Mr. Roosevelt made a formal call on Argentine President Agustin P. Justo, who had met him as he left the United States cruiser Indianapolis early in the afternoon and rode with him through the boisterous throng to the United States Embassy.

Argentine secret service men said the wild ovations, which lasted far into the hot night, exceeded even those accorded England's King Edward VIII when, as Prince of Wales, he visited Buenos Aires in 1931.

Along the route, throngs broke through police lines in their enthusiastic attempts to reach the car.

Some felt the blows of police clubs as their excited disorder threatened to tie up the 11-car procession of United States and Argentine officials. One mounted grenadier went down with his horse and another rider was unseated.

Crowd Driven Back.

Along the whole route were shouts of "Roosevelt! Roosevelt!"

United States and Argentine officials declared they viewed the reception of President Roosevelt as a good augury for the success of the inter-American parley.

He already had stirred Latin America with his speech before the Brazilian Congress in Rio de Janeiro Friday when he declared the "false gods" of dominations, coalitions and balances of power had no place in the Western Hemisphere.

President Roosevelt, who proposed the conference in notes last winter to other American governments, is to deliver the opening address when the first session gets under way at 6 p. m. tomorrow.

Justo to Open Parley.

President Justo, who called the conference at Buenos Aires, is scheduled to open the meeting and present the United States Executive.

Mr. Roosevelt, the first United States President to visit Argentina while in office, made his headquarters for his three-day stay at the United States Embassy, a handsome structure surrounded by a beautiful park.

Following his call on Justo at Government House—when President Roosevelt was understood to have thanked the Argentine President for his warm reception—Mr. Roosevelt received members of the United States delegation at the embassy. Among them were Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Assistant Secretary Sumner Welles.

The heads of several American societies in Buenos Aires, including the American Society of the River Plate and the Argentine-North American Cultural Institute, were received by Mr. Roosevelt before he dined.

Receives Old Friend.

The President also received Dr. Romulo Naon, former Argentine ambassador to Washington, who knew the President when he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Naon.

Others received by Mr. Roosevelt included members of the De Bruyn family, among them Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, the former Irene de Bruyn, widow of the President's late cousin and now special adviser to the American delegation.

The President dined with Secretary of State Hull and Mrs. Hull and other delegates to the conference.

It was disclosed that before the Grid Injury Fatal To D. C. Boy, 10; Is First of Season

Ten-year-old William B. Wright, 429 Whittier street northwest, lost a valiant three weeks' fight for his life in Homeopathic Hospital yesterday as the gridiron claimed its first victim of the season in Washington.

The lad injured his side when he plunged through a line of his playmates on a lot near his home and an infection set in. Five physicians in consultation diagnosed the boy's malady as a staphylococcus infection, and a specially prepared serum was rushed here by airplane from New York to treat him.

For a few days after the serum was administered it was thought the lad would recover, but over the week-end he suffered a relapse.

Funeral services will be held today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be private.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Wright. His death, sports experts said, marked the first football fatality of the season here.

Post Will Help Margaret Cleer Get Aid of Johns Hopkins Medical Specialists.

The fifty-third day in a row of uninterrupted sneezing dawned this morning for golden-haired Mary Margaret Cleer, of Fort Myer, Va.

Her strange case, unique in medical history, has baffled a score of physicians, Mrs. Thomas Cleer, mother of the 13-year-old honor student, said yesterday.

Every five minutes since October 9 Washington's "sneeze girl" has sneezed. Her seizures exceeds in length any recorded in medicine.

Because her body is wasting away from lack of sleep and loss of appetite, The Washington Post last night made arrangements for Margaret to be taken to Johns Hopkins University Hospital, at Baltimore today.

There it is hoped the specialists in attendance and visiting doctors at the great medical center will have an opportunity to diagnose and perhaps solve her odd case.

"Oh, we would do anything! Anything" The distracted mother cried last night, "if we could only save her. The doctors and hospitals have been wonderful. They have given their services freely, all of them, without cost.

"But they can't cure my child!"

No less than 80 tests have been made for allergic susceptibilities, but all have given negative answers.

Allergic disturbances are multifold in form. It is believed that most of them originate from particles of dust of various kinds, such as the pollen from ragweed which causes hay fever. Particles of fur makes some people ill, house dust has been found to sicken others, etc. Tests for these odd susceptibilities are made by injecting extracts of many dusts into the patients until the one is found which makes him ill.

King Defies Parliament On Marriage

Conservatives, Liberals Unite in Warning on Mrs. Simpson.

Edward May Abdicate or Appeal to Nation, Officials Believe.

By the United Press.

London (Tuesday), Dec. 1.—King Edward VIII is determined to marry Mrs. Ernest Simpson, regardless of the consequences, officials believed today.

They saw two possibilities:

1. That the King will appeal to the people to sanction the marriage in defiance of the cabinet and "the aristocracy."

2. That Edward will abdicate and marry the former Baltimore girl as an ordinary person.

The bachelor King, whose wilfullness is a leading trait, was believed to have replied defiantly last night to a warning from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin that the government and Parliament are prepared to oppose his marriage to the American divorcee.

Edward, it was said, informed Baldwin flatly that he intends to marry "come what may."

Legal Barrier.

The breach between the government and the throne became more marked when it was reliably reported Sir Claud Schuster, permanent secretary of the lord chancellor's office, has handed a memorandum to the cabinet expressing a legal view that the King cannot marry Mrs. Simpson without the government's consent.

Disclosure of the cabinet's decision to take forthright action to curb the growing friendship between the King and the American divorcee followed two dramatic and secret meetings understood to have been held by Baldwin Friday after a surprise cabinet meeting.

The first was with Clement Atlee, Labor Party leader. Afterward Baldwin hurried to Buckingham Palace and laid the "warning" before the King, it was said.

Omitted From Circular.

The delicacy of the situation into which the cabinet injected itself was disclosed by the following facts:

1. All reference to Baldwin's visit to the King was omitted from the court circular.

2. The cabinet is so alarmed about the King and Mrs. Simpson that it is said to have virtually abandoned critical foreign affairs, leaving them to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

On one of the first occasions when Mrs. Simpson's name appeared in the court circular it recorded her presence at a dinner in St. James' Palace at which Prime Minister and Mrs. Baldwin also were guests, as well as Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Baldwin, in his conference with Atlee, was reported to have been given evidence that a "common front" exists among Conservatives and Laborites in their attitude toward the royal romance and any hopes which Edward may cherish of marrying Mrs. Simpson.

Grave Crisis Hinted.

The conference also was said to have left no doubt that the Edward-Simpson affair has plunged Britain into one of the gravest constitutional crises in her history.

With veiled subtlety which left its real meaning obscure to the British public but nevertheless was significant, the staid London Times in an editorial today suggested that "in any crisis that may arise, whether foreign or domestic * * * the House of Commons may well prove itself what the country often has required at similar times during a long history but has seldom been given—a council of state which is able to demonstrate its solid strength."

Behind the editorial's ominous sentence intimating a council of state some saw a possibility the King might be forced to abdicate if he persisted in any intention of marrying Mrs. Simpson.

It was understood Mrs. Simpson is maintaining steadfastly a noncommittal attitude and has made it clear any matrimonial ideas the King may have do not come from her.

New U. S., French Debt Agreement Reported; British Accord Likely

Rayburn, O'Connor Confident As Leadership Race Tightens

By Robert C. Albright.

Striving tooth and nail for the honor of shepherding the New Deal flock in the next Democratic House, two candidates for the office of majority leader weighed election prospects yesterday, and each virtually claimed he was "in."

In a close last-lap drive for the coveted post, steppingstone to the Speakership, were:

Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, Interstate Commerce chairman, who carried the Administration's power fight in the last House.

Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, Rules chairman, and acting leader in the closing days of the last session.

O'Connor, short, Irish as his name and a rough-and-tumble fighter, yesterday claimed he has 200 votes he is certain of, and suggested his opponent might not stick for the final caucus.

Rayburn, stocky, quiet, but aggressive and efficient, was a bit more conservative. By actual check, he said he can count on at least 181 votes. And he gently hinted his opponent might be forced out of the race "by developments in the next two or three weeks."

Never before in recent years has the election for leadership been so hotly contested, and never was the outcome more unpredictable. The speakership is not immediately an issue. Representative William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, will be re-elected Speaker without opposition.

Bullitt in Conferences With Blum, Delbos as to Formula.

Reduction Hinted In Amounts Owed

World Copyright, 1936, by United Press.

Paris (Tuesday), Dec. 1.—The United States and France have agreed in principle on a new formula for payment of war debts "in the interest of world peace and economic stability," the United Press learned authoritatively today.

The formula envisages participation of Great Britain in a three-power settlement.

Obligations of the two European debtors would be reduced.

The agreement was reached at a conference among Ambassador William C. Bullitt, and representatives of Premier Leon Blum and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, which lasted throughout Monday at the foreign office.

Blum may go to the United States as a special ambasasdor to conduct detailed negotiations for a final treaty.

Follows on Money Accord.

The agreement in its present form is a decision to negotiate, rather than a detailed plan.

Settlement would be intended as a consequence of and in sequence to the recent monetary accord reached between the three powers.

The new agreement would take the form of an affirmation of the sanctity of signed engagements. It was learned Blum informed Bullitt the French government is ready to negotiate rapidly without bargaining.

America was asked to give nothing in return for the new agreement and resumption of payment. The compact would be limited to the United States, Great Britain and France, not affecting America's other war debtors, the most important being Italy.

Debt Now $4,000,000,000.

France owes the United States approximately $4,000,000,000, including interest and principal. Britain's obligation is slightly larger.

The French made their last payment in 1932. Great Britain first defaulted in 1933, but for a time continued to make token payments of small amount.

The French hope that the debt agreement will coincide with other political and economic agreements destined to consolidate peace and restore world commerce by reducing quotas and lowering tariff barriers.

It is understood that in the projected agreement Britain's debt would remain larger than that of France and that in the three-power adjustments France's war debt to Britain would be liquidated.

Once the sum total of the debts has been fixed, France and the United States will discuss in detail the plan of payment.

Blum is likely to be sent as special ambassador to Washington especially charged with settling the debt problem with the understanding that France no longer is to be considered a defaulter. Paris would sign an agreement to continue payments regularly until the debt is liquidated, probably by 1957.

New Totals a Reduction.

The new totals of the debts of France and Britain to the United States would be fixed at levels lower than the debts owed when they first defaulted in 1932 and 1933, respectively, but would not be fixed at so little as to be merely symbolical payments.

It was recalled France's defaulted war debt installments now owed the United States total $215,000,000, while under the old funding agreement France would have to pay $6,500,000,000 by 1987. This includes both principal and interest. The French debt was originally funded in 1926 at $4,025,000,000 principal.

Efforts to keep Monday's debt talks secret were so marked the foreign office even denied Bullitt had called there.

First indication France was negotiating to renew payments to the United States—a proposal which brought about overthrow of the Herriot government—was given by Premier Leon Blum last May 15, in a speech before the American Club.

Madrid, Again Bombed, Jeers At Foes' Efforts

2,000 Germans Debark at Cadiz; Will Aid Rebels, London Informed.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, Nov. 30.—Bombs shook Madrid tonight when Fascist air raiders made their third expedition over the capital within 24 hours. Ten bombs exploded on the model prison barricades. Two earlier raids resulted in little damage.

At the same time statistics handed to the visiting delegation of British members of Parliament disclosed there were 1,936 victims of Fascist bombardments of Madrid in the period November 8-29. Of these, the figures showed, 365 persons were killed.

The late night bombing of Madrid followed an announcement in a Spanish government bulletin that a strong Fascist attack on the strategic town of Pozuelo De Alarcon, about 7 miles northwest of Madrid, had been crushed.

Shells Rain on City.

Madrid's defense leaders jeered the inability of their foes to capture the city as insurgent artillery continued to rain shells into the capital.

[In London, the News Chronicle said reports have reached the British government that more than 2,000 Germans have landed at Cadiz and are en route to the Madrid front to fight for the Rebels, according to the United Press.—Editor's note.]

Within Madrid, Socialist Foreign Minister Alvarez de Vayo presided at a meeting of the defense junta mapping plans for further fortification of the city.

Franco Derided.

In the streets, government supporters derided the enemy commander, Gen. Francisco Franco, for failure to subjugate Madrid after his long siege and many bombardments.

"A general who hesitates is lost," they cried, jubilant over persistent reports from the front which indicated the tide of the civil war was turning to the Socialists.

Franco's inability to march his troops into the city soon after the siege began, said Madrilenos, would lose him continued support from Germany and Italy, and then the foreign influences in the international war would favor Madrid.

The Fascist warplanes which bombed Madrid today loosed most of their explosive cargo in the University City and Manzanares River bank areas, fleeing to safety without attempting to bomb the center of the city.

This, the government said, was an indication the insurgent airmen feared to repeat their previous bombardments because of the reinforced Madrid air force.

The insurgent raiders visited the Governor Free On $6,000 Bail In Bank Fraud

Vermont Executive Accused of Concealing Theft of $251,000.

By the Associated Press.

Rutland, Vt., Nov. 30.—State's Attorney Asa S. Bloomer issued a warrant today against Gov. Charles M. Smith, president of the Marble Savings Bank, charging him with concealing thefts. The Governor was released in $6,000 bail, without being arraigned.

John J. Cocklin, an officer of the bank, recently was convicted of embezzling $124,000 in bank funds.

Some time ago, Lathrop Baldwin, the bank treasurer, was convicted of perjury in the same case.

During the past nine years, the State charges $251,000 has been embezzled from the bank.

The Governor specifically was charged with misprision of felony, and an old common law was revived to bring the charge.

Counsel for some of the several defendants in the case have contended misprision of felony was a misdemeanor and have asked that jurisdiction be transferred from the county court to Municipal Court.

Neither Cocklin nor Baldwin has been sentenced. Cocklin is at liberty under $20,000 bail and Baldwin under $6,000.

Cocklin was arrested last July after the State bank commisioner's office reported an apparent shortage of $251,000. Two weeks later Samuel A. Howard and Bert L. Stafford, trustees, and Robert C. Clark, former banking commisioner, were arrested, charged by Bloomer as accessories after the fact, in that they knew of the shortage, but did not disclose it.

When Howard's case was called, counsel filed a demurrer, claiming the State attorney's complaint was insufficient. The demurrer was allowed by Judge John S. Buttles and the case dropped. The cases of Clark and Stafford have not been called. New charges of misprision of felony have been filed against Howard, Clark and Stafford.

Court Holds Ex-Officer In 'Attack' on Browder

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 30 (AP).—County Judge George Cornelius today bound to criminal court Larry Ponder, a former special sheriff, on charges of assault and battery in connection with disruption of a campaign speaking engagement of Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, here October 25.

Bond was set at $500. The judge's action ended a two-day preliminary hearing of charges against Ponder, Constable Fred Newberger and Deputy Constable John R. Parrish. Judge Cornelius dismissed the charges against Newberger and Parrish.

C. T. C. to End Dollar Weekly Passes Jan. 3

By James D. Secrest.

The weekly cost of street car or bus fare for about 75,000 Washingtonians will be increased 25 cents January 3, when the $1 pass will be abolished, the Capital Transit Co. late yesterday informed the Public Utilities Commission.

Almost three years to the day since inauguration of the weekly pass system as an experiment to win back lost patronage, the transit company announced the $1 weekly charge had so lowered the average return per passenger as to make it unprofitable, despite the admitted increase in the number of persons using mass transportation since 1933.

The $1.25 weekly pass, now used only on bus lines where a cash fare of 10 cents is required, will be continued after January 3 and will entitle the holder to the same privileges as the $1 pass plus those now restricted to the $1.25 ticket.

Members of the commission declined to comment on the transit company move last night, other than to point out that it is powerless to prevent abandonment of the $1 pass because of the financial condition of the public utility.

Cites Increased Costs.

They pointed out, further, that cancellation of the $1 pass was proposed in the company's petition for a general raise in fares, now pending before the commission. This petition, which will be the subject of a public hearing early in January, also proposed an increase in the token rate from 7½ cents to 8 1-3 cents or three for a quarter instead of four for 30 cents.

It was believed the transit company decided to abolish the $1 pass arbitrarily because of the delay in action on its fare petition. The commission explained it has been holding up the case until its engineers can complete a valuation of the transit company's properties.

E. D. Merrill, vice president and general manager of the company, in a letter to the commission yesterday, said:

"In view of the substantial reduction in the average rate of fare from 7.9 to 8 cents (approximately)

Ex-Waitress 'Worth' 6 Millions Is Given Jail Term in Fraud

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 30.—Claimant to what she described as "an estate in Yugoslavia worth between $1,500,000 and $6,000,000," Mrs. Frances Tauchar, blonde former waitress and operator of a Chicago beauty parlor, was sentenced to six months in prison by Federal Judge William Bondy.

The woman, who claimed to have moved in the most exclusive circles of society in New York, Los Angeles and Washington, D. C., had previously pleaded guilty to two counts of an indictment charging her with making a false statement in obtaining a passport and with using the passport on trips to Europe.

In tears, the defendant pleaded with Judge Bondy not to send her to jail, declaring it would mean:

"I will lose my entire estate. Then my life won't amount to anything any more."

"You can carry on your business in jail," Judge Bondy replied.

She told Judge Bondy she had jumped a $2,500 bail bond in Los Angeles, in connection with a charge of passing a fraudulent check for $650, with the consent of the bond makers so she could return to Europe to clear up her asserted estate.

United States Attorney Richard Burke told the court Mrs. Tauchar had passed checks of $1,220 in Europe against a "bank balance that never amounted to more than $30."

RFC Paid Loan Of $16,858,950 By N. Y. Central

Jones Announces 25 Rail Borrowers Have Met Debts in Full.

By Felix Bruner.

Twenty-five railroads have paid their indebtedness to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in full, Chairman Jesse H. Jones said yesterday in announcing receipt of $16,858,950 from the New York Central.

Jones revealed that Harold Vanderbilt, acting for the New York Central, came to Washington last week and arranged to clear the road's indebtedness to the Government, although none of the money was due.

"The road was able to make the payment without borrowing elsewhere, and still have ample balances, with no bank or other maturities over the next few years that cannot be easily met," Jones said.

The payment included $6,969,000 collateral notes purchased from the Public Works Administration. The direct borrowings from the RFC were not due July 1, 1941. The PWA notes were to mature serially from June 1, 1937, to June 1, 1944.

Premiums Paid.

Jones revealed that railroad borrowings from the RFC totaling $145,571,874 had been paid in full. In addition, he said, notes totaling $123,242,000 purchased from the PWA either have been sold to private investors or paid by the borrowers. In addition, 42 roads have made part payments to the RFC aggregating $31,443,975, and $5,427,000 on PWA loans. Premiums received on railroad securities brought the total received by the RFC from railroads to $310,176,399.

The RFC now has outstanding loans to 55 railroads aggregating $412,026,890, including $66,976,500 in securities bought from the PWA. Twenty-three of these roads are in receivership, loans to them totaling $163,811,686. Jones said that security in most cases is good for the loan.

Jones pointed out that in many instances the RFC had authorized loans to railroads, particularly for equipment, that were not taken because the authorization aided the roads in obtaining private money at interest rates lower than the 4 per cent charged by the RFC. He said this procedure was being encouraged.

Prominent among the authorizations, Jones said, was one of $100,-

WPA to Reduce Roll by 175,000 Before January

Program to Be Tightened Up Prior to Session of Congress.

WPA officials expect to remove about 175,000 from Uncle Sam's works relief pay roll in a general tightening up of the program before Congress comes into session, it was revealed yesterday.

The 175,000 reduction would be broken down roughly into 150,000 relief families, 20,000 nonrelief workers employed on PWA projects, and 5,000 members of the administrative staff.

Of the administrative cuts, about 300 are expected to take place at WPA headquarters here. Several weeks ago, WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins ordered Commissioner George E. Allen to slash the local relief rolls by 1,000 employes by January 1.

The 175,000 figure was reported to have been the estimate given by Deputy Administrator Aubrey Williams in a conference with a committee of the WPA Lodge of the American Federation of Government Employes on dismissal possibilities. Williams could not be reached for confirmation, but at WPA headquarters it was learned "there have been estimates of that sort."

Survey Being Made.

Curtailment of the number of families on the relief rolls, it was explained, will be accomplished through a Nation-wide resurvey, now under way, of the needs of relief recipients. Until this survey is completed the number to be taken off the rolls will be uncertain, Dallas Dort, head of the project control division, said. WPA officials have estimated that roughly 150,000 families can be taken off the rolls through such a survey, he admitted.

At his conference with the WPA union committee, Williams was reported to have estimated 20,000 nonrelief workers on WPA projects also will go. These are the workers who obtained employment on WPA propects under the regulation that no more than 10 per cent of the employes on any project can be drawn from nonrelief workers. Actually, Dort estimated, only 5 to 6 per cent of those employed on WPA projects are of nonrelief listing.

Tightening up of the works program would make possible a cut of about 5,000 persons in the administrative staff, Williams is reported to have estimated. The Civil Serv-

Snow Is Forecast On Weather Menu In Capital Tonight

Jack Frost blew his icy breath across the city yesterday as a stinging north to northwest breeze puffed through the Capital.

Yesterday's low was 26 at 8 a. m., while the high mark, recorded at 3:30 p. m., was 36.

The first snow of the season is expected to swirl in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia tonight and tomorrow.

A forecasting of increasingly cloudy skies, "probably followed by snow," was made by the Weather Bureau last night.

The snowfall, however, is not expected to be heavy, the forecaster said, and the mercury probably will not rise above the freezing point. About 7 a. m. today the temperature will reach a season's low of 18, the Weather Bureau predicted.

Avalanche of Santa Claus Mail Buries Dead-Letter Office Here

By the Associated Press.

Bringing its usual headache to the dead letter office, Santa Claus' mail began sweeping into the Postoffice Department yesterday.

"Yes," sighed Burton G. Cowles, superintendent of the dead letter division, "bright and early and from Coast to Coast the Nation's children are at it again."

One district produced over 25,000 letters addressed simply, "Santa Claus," in a single season, he recalled.

The situation became so bad years back that a law had to be passed to take care of the mail.

"Postmasters," said the superintendent, "are now allowed to hand over the letters with postage to 'responsible charitable' institutions. They can have the other letters, too, with postage due, if they pay the postage."

This still leaves the department with a tough problem, for its employes have to open and go through each envelope. Many contain pieces of money with which children have asked Santa Claus to buy something for others.

Some of the letters, investigation has disclosed, are not conceived in childish innocence.

A group of postal employes once ran across a letter that brought tears to their eyes—a little farm boy, youngest in a family of 12, wanted a basket ball.

The hat was passed and a basket ball sent air mail, special delivery, to the letter writer. To make sure he got it a letter was sent to the postmaster at the town nearest the farm.

"Yes," said the postmaster, "I know the boy. But I'm afraid he is a little old to believe in Santa Claus. He's pretty good with the plow, though."

Flames Destroy Crystal Palace, Historic Show-Place in London

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 30.—London's most spectacular fire in modern times tonight destroyed the historic Crystal Palace, showplace and amusement center for millions since the days of Queen Victoria.

The blaze started in a women's cloakroom in an undetermined manner and within an hour turned the vast glass and iron building into a fiery beacon.

Hundreds of thousands of spectators watched the destruction of the building from vantage points throughout the London area.

Streams of molten glass drove back fire fighters, several of whom were injured.

There was no loss of life and the property loss had still to be estimated, but it was believed it was enormous.

Valuable experimental television equipment of the Baird Television laboratories and a collection of music by George Frederick Handel valued at many thousands of pounds sterling were destroyed.

The palace, erected in 1851 in Hyde Park for the world exhibition and later moved across the Thames 8 miles south of London, was the property of the British nation.

Hundreds of families living in the vicinity of the structure were forced to evacuate their homes.

But the majority leadership is the recognized ladder of accession to the rostrum, and O'Connor and Rayburn are fighting for it as if it were the speakership itself.

Return to the Capitol of Vice President John Nance Garner, ostensibly to be close to the Washington scene in absence of the President, has been seized on by Rayburn's friends as an omen that he may actively support his old friend and former Texas calleague.

Angry at reports he is "anti-New Dealish," O'Connor, in a conversational mood yesterday, said it was evidence the leadership contest, as Postmaster General Farley said of the last Presidential race, "would be a dirty campaign."

"There were only two men in the Seventy-third Congress who had a 100 per cent administration record, and I was one of them," said O'Connor. "In the last Congress, I voted with the President against the bonus, although I had always previously been a bonus man. I obtained rules for every important piece of Administration legislation, and, in the case of the Guffey coal bill and the Wagner labor relations bill, I did it over opposition of a majority of my committee."

If O'Connor was confident of election as leader, Rayburn appeared even more so. He casually suggested several large State delegations will caucus in the next two or three weeks, and when the results become known, to all practical purposes, he also will have no opponent.

"I never in my life have been more certain of election to an office," he said. "I have twice as many votes now committed to me as I had at this time during the 1934 contest for the speakership. Just wait and see. There will be some developments in the next few days."

Dr. Von Baumann, Sea Rescue Hero, Wed at Rockville

Dr. Cyril von Baumann, of Baltimore, world famous explorer, scientist and hero of the rescue of 22 British sailors from their sinking ship in mid-ocean in a gale in January, 1933, was married yesterday in Rockville, Md., to Helen Elizabeth Smith, 25-year-old Munday, Tex., girl.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Mays, retired Methodist minister, at his Rockville home. The couple then left on a honeymoon, destination of which was not revealed.

The groom, who is 44, was one of the five members the of class of 1911 at the Naval Academy to study medicine. He studied at the University of Heidelburg, and during the World War served with the Marine Corps. In 1933, when he was chief surgeon aboard the U. S. S. Merchant, he aimed the little brass cannon which sent a line over the foundering English freighter Exeter in the midst of a terrific winter gale on the Atlantic.

Only last September he returned to New York from Ecuador, where he was co-director with Andre Roosevelt, cousin of the President, on an expedition which found traces of a monster serpent, more than 60 feet long. Dr. von Baumann said this find had distracted the explorers so much they were turned aside from their original goal of obtaining evidence that "20 or 30 centuries ago" South America was linked with Asia.

N.Y. Holds Couple In Capital Holdup

Charged with participating in the election night holdup of a cafe at 1115 Seventeenth street northwest, in which a policeman shot one robber as he fled with $100 in a cash register, a man and woman were arrested in New York last night.

The prisoners, Kenneth V. Woolridge and Helen McNamara, are alleged to have been companions of Freeland Bragg, wounded by Policeman J. H. Dellinger. Bragg, who was caught in Baltimore several days later when he applied for treatment of the wound, now is held here, awaiting trial.

Detective Sergt. Robert Barrett will leave early today to bring Woolridge and the McNamara woman back.

Politics and People

Economic and Social Reforms, Usually Slow, Make Progress Under the New Deal.

By Franklyn Waltman

REFORMATION of the American economic and social systems usually moves slowly, in an evolutionary, piecemeal fashion. Proposals are enacted into law, in most instances, only after years of widespread discussion of and agitation for measures designed to promote desirable objectives—and, even then, they must run the gantlet of the Supreme Court. But also it is almost an axiom of American life that worthwhile proposals which have behind them years of such discussion and agitation eventually triumph.

WALTMAN.

These observations in a broad, general way might be said to apply to most of the New Deal enactments. Collective bargaining in labor relations, old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and regulation of security issues and trading were not conceived by the New Dealers. Many of them first were discussed 25 years or even longer ago. Details of administration in carrying out such endeavors may have been hastily conceived and briefly considered, but the legislation in substance was the fruit of years of debate.

The national income tax is illustrative of these points. Proposals for taxing incomes, springing from the principle that those with the ability to pay should support the Government, evolved over a period of years—were enacted into law—declared unconstitutional—authorized 18 years later by constitutional amendment—and even now are being brought to points of greater refinement in revenue legislation of the last decade.

The general desire of citizens to prevent child labor has been going through a similar process and although triumph has not yet capped the efforts of many years of endeavor, that social reform, nearly achieved under NRA, seems to be approaching consummation on a permanent basis. The ear-mark of proposals which seem destined to triumph eventually is their constant recurrence throughout the years after having been once, or more frequently, rejected by legislators and the courts.

A proposal bearing such an ear-mark is that for a Federal incorporation law, first proposed in 1885, agitated more or less ardently in every decade since that time and now again precipitated into the spotlight of national political issues. Such a background historically would seem to indicate that, soon or late, the idea of Federal incorporation will triumph. On the other hand, this may be the exception which proves the rule.

From the beginning, the chief obstacle in the way of proposals for Federal incorporation of industrial enterprises engaged in interstate commerce—and virtually all corporations have activities which go over State lines—has been the traditional regard of the country for the preservation of State rights. Chartering of corporations has been held a State function and those who feared overcentralization and too strong a government at Washington have preferred the known ills of the former to the unknown evils which might flow from the latter.

Still another obstacle has been the doubtful constitutionality of a compulsory Federal incorporation or licensing law—and unless it is compulsory it would not be effective. Of course the practicality of achieving certain types of regulation over industrial enterprises by Federal incorporation has been challenged, it being argued that chaos might be substituted for many beneficial State corporation provisions by such a move.

But such objections usually are raised against all proposals for sweeping innovations. In the end they do not prevail if the objective and the means proposed for reaching it are good. Consequently it is hard to believe that proposals for Federal incorporation have been buffeted about for 50 years by these obstacles alone.

There seems to be another reason for the repeated shunting aside of such proposals. It is that Federal incorporation is not an end in itself, but a means proposed to reach certain desirable ends. During the years that agitation has appeared for Federal incorporation, the ends which it has been desired to reach have, in most instances, been attained by some other device or instrument.

Thus in the beginning the end for which Federal incorporation was proposed was to bring railroad financing and such things as interlocking directorates under Governmental control. This objective subsequently was achieved by amendments to the Interstate Commerce Commission act. Then Federal incorporation was proposed to curb the monopolies and prevent restraint of trade. Efforts toward that end resulted in the Clayton and Federal Trade Commission acts and while they did not solve the problem of industrial monopolies, they satisfied advocates for such legislation for a time.

Throughout all of the agitation for Federal incorporation there has been a desire to bring about greater publicity of corporate finances for the benefit of investors and on the theory that the evil deed is done in the dark, and to increase the personal responsibility of managers and directors. These were the objectives of the securities legislation passed during the New Deal.

Thus while the proposed instrument of correction has been rejected time and again, steps have been taken to correct the evils. And so may it be in the present Federal incorporation agitation which springs from a desire to enforce standards of working conditions in industry, as well to check monopoly and unfair competition.

Hero of Theater Disaster Is Dead

Funeral services for John Felix Nolte, retired District fireman and a hero of the Knickerbocker Theater disaster, will be held at 9 a. m. today at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Nolte, who was 42 years old, died Saturday at his home, 19 Eighth street northeast. He was retired from the Fire Department August 1 because of ill health.

Born in Washington, Mr. Nolte was appointed to the Fire Department in 1915. He served overseas during the World War. He was decorated for his rescue work at the Knickerbocker Theater disaster in 1922 and in 1925 was commended for his activity at the Kann's warehouse fire.

Surviving him are two sisters, Mrs. Joseph P. McGrath and Miss Frances E. Nolte, both of Washington.

U. S. to Borrow $300,000,000 For December

Secretary Plans Step to Avoid Jolt to Market in March Financing.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry L. Morgenthau, jr., announced last night that he will ask for $300,000,000 in new money in the Treasury's December borrowing.

This will make the total December financing reach $1,487,000,000. Previously, the Secretary had announced that $358,000,000 of 2¾ per cent notes and $429,000,000 of 3 per cent notes would be refinanced on that date, while $400,000,000 in bills are to be retired then.

About $300,000,000 in weekly bill issues will be borrowed between now and January 13, to be retired from tax receipts on March 15.

The Secretary said he felt that with the large tax receipts, possibly the largest in history, coming due on that date, and with no maturities due then, it was "sound fiscal policy" to borrow for March maturity, in order not to upset the money market then.

Secretary Morgenthau also wishes to hold the Treasury's daily working balance at about $1,000,000,000, it is known. This consideration is believed to have entered into his decision. The balance yesterday was $947,000,000.

Asked if this meant the conclusion of new borrowing for the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, the Secretary reminded reporters of the President's statement that drought relief operations, and the exhaustion of relief funds, might make further new money necessary. The President's last budget summation forecast a need for $750,000,000 in new money. Morgenthau has already, if this announcement is added in, gone $20,000,000 over that figure, as he previously obtained $400,000,000 in new cash.

Van Duzer Warns Drivers to Hasten, Get Plates for '37

Although 28,065 automobile license plates have been issued since November 15, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday warned motorists that "things are not going fast enough."

"Indications are that we will be slightly ahead of last year by the end of this week," he said, "but that is not enough. Drivers must realize they will not be able to operate their cars after the first of the year unless they have new tags. And unless they apply promptly and avoid the last-minute rush, they will be left without tags."

Plates went on sale at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic yesterday. During the first four hours, 2,000 were sold. A total of 3,860 were distributed during the day.

According to Police Department records, approximately 21,000 tag applications are being held up because of traffic violation warrants or failure to change address. Motorists who have not as yet received applications through the mail were urged by Van Duzer to "come down and find out what's wrong."

Philadelphia Blaze Injures 4 Firemen

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—Flames which for a time threatened an adjoining row of 25 houses swept through the half-completed, $2,450,000 Edward W. Bok Vocational School in South Philadelphia tonight in the city's first four-alarm fire in years.

Three firemen were injured, and at least 20 others were overcome by the severe cold and smoke.

The school is a Public Works Administration project, occupying the length of an entire block. The fire was confined mostly to scaffolding.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 30 (AP).—Sheriff Newman H. de Breton said today James Connell, 52, emaciated hitchhiker, admitted he tried to sell a 2-month-old baby born to his 18-year-old daughter, Lillian, for varying prices.

The sheriff said he obtained a written statement from Connell, also known as James Cornell and James Driver, admitting the child had been offered for sale and that his relations with his daughter had been "improper."

New Trade Pact Signed by U. S. And Costa Rica

Reciprocal Agreement Is Aimed at Bettering Business Relations.

The United States and Costa Rica signed a reciprocal trade agreement yesterday to come into force 30 days after its proclamation by the Presidents of both countries.

The agreement is the fifteenth to be concluded under the Administration's trade policy, and the eighth with a Latin-American country.

Under unconditional most-favored-nation provisions, the two nations may now attempt to restore trade which amounted to but $2,282,000 in United States exports and $3,089,000 in United States imports to and from Costa Rica last year, to levels nearer those of 1929.

That year the United States exported $8,261,000 worth of goods to Costa Rica and imported $5,203,000.

The agreement was signed by the American Minister to Costa Rica, Leo R. Sack, and by Dr. Luis Fernandez, acting minister for foreign affairs for Costa Rica, on last Saturday.

The 500,000 Costa Rica consumers buy several million dollars' worth annually of manufactures and processed foodstuffs, chiefly. The Costa Rican chief exports to this country are bananas, coffee, cacao, cabinet woods, balsa wood, turtles, reptile skins, deerskins and honey. About 99 per cent of Costa Rican goods now enter duty free, and the agreement guarantees that this status will be maintained for at least three years.

The United States now has trade agreements with Brazil, Cuba, Haiti, Colombia, Nicaragua, Honduras and Ecuador in the New World. The others are with Canada, Sweden, Belgium, France, The Netherlands, Switzerland and Finland.

49 Sailors Held For Picketing Nazi Embassy

Protest Over German Acts in Spain and Simpson Jailing Are Balked.

Chanting "Down with Nazi butchers" and "Free Lawrence Simpson," a group of 49 striking seamen from Baltimore paraded in front of the German Embassy here yesterday. After they ignored police orders to disperse they were loaded without ceremony into waiting police patrols. There was no violence.

The demonstrators, according to Miss Diana Scott, secretary of the Committee to Protest Nazi Intervention in Spain, were members of the International Seamen's Union. The committee earlier had made an effort to see the Ambassador, but admittance was denied them. They left a letter for the German envoy, protesting "in the name of all lovers of liberty, humanity and democracy * * * the inhuman and incredible actions on the part of the German government in Spain."

Shortly before 4:30 p. m.—the hour scheduled for the demonstration—squad cars and patrol wagons unloaded bluecoats at the scene. These quickly vanished within the German chancery. When the committee of five made their appearance the police made no effort to arrest or detain them.

The demonstrators paraded in orderly fashion in front of the chancery. They carried placards calling for the release of Lawrence Simpson, American sailor, now serving a sentence for allegedly taking Communist propaganda into Germany.

Police permitted the marchers to parade for about ten minutes, then warned them they lacked a permit and would have to disperse. When they refused, insisting that they "were not demonstrating, but picketing," the police inspector in charge summoned the hidden bluecoats. The latter were ordered to surround the marchers until the patrol wagons arrived. Several trips were made to take those arrested to the Second Precinct Station.

Charged with parading without a permit the picketers were ordered held on $25 collateral each, which none could supply immediately.

The prisoners will be represented by John H. Pratt, attorney for the Civil Liberties Union, when their cases come up in court, probably today. He called to see them yesterday.

Funeral Rite Today For Missionary, 80

Requiem mass will be celebrated at Georgetown University today for the Rev. Bernard Keany, 80-year-old Jesuit missionary, whose death Sunday afternoon ended a confinement of ten years in the university infirmary.

The Rev. Joseph A. Farrell, S. J., treasurer of the university, will officiate at the mass in Dahlgren Chapel at 7:30 a. m. Burial will be in the college cemetery.

In 1926, Father Keany was engaged in missionary work in Philadelphia and suffered a nervous breakdown. He was sent to the infirmary at Georgetown, but never recuperated. His health never permitted him to leave the cloister.

Before leaving for his own retreat in New York City last Saturday, the Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president, administered the last sacrament to the dying priest. Father Keany was in a coma for several days before his death.

Born in Ireland, November 9, 1856, Father Keany came to this country when he was 17 years old. He had been a member of the Society of Jesus since August 14, 1883, and had spent most of the years in mission work. Before taking up his last duties in Philadelphia, he had been stationed in Jersey City, N. J.

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 30. (AP).—Fire swept through a four-story bus terminal and six other smaller buildings in the center of Portsmouth's business section early today before it was brought under control by the combined efforts of Portsmouth and Norfolk firemen. No one was injured.

Fire Chief C. C. Barnes, of Norfolk, fixed the damage at $150,000.

The fire, which started in an undetermined manner in the rear of the terminal, also burned through an auto supply store, a pawn shop and an electrical supply firm on High street and damaged two residences on the intersecting Crawford street.

does not lie there. There were never any nervous afflictions on either side of the family.

Last Wednesday the little girl, who is bearing her plight bravely, had her tonsils extracted at Children's Hospital, in the belief they were causing the exasperating sneezing.

But since they were removed, the sneezing fits have become worse. Last night Margaret did not sleep all night, and her slumbers have been wracked with ceaseless ka-choos for the past week.

Dr. G. Haven Mankin, who performed the tonsilectomy, last night explained that Margaret's tonsils were chronically inflamed, but that he knew they were not causing her sneezing.

"Sometimes the effect of the ether or other anesthetic in the turning point in spasmodic disturbances such as hers," he said, "and we hoped that might stop her sneezing. We took the tonsils out in order to improve her general health as much as possible."

The father, an $18-a-week gasoline station attendant, is so distraught about his little girl that he said last night:

"I can't bear it hardly. It's awful to go home night after night and day after day and hear it. It's breaking my heart. I just can't hardly stand it any more.

"If someone could only do something. Maybe the doctors at Johns Hopkins can help her.

"Everybody has been recommending we take her there, but we didn't have enough money, and besides, we were afraid the Washington doctors who have been so good to us wouldn't like it if we walked out on them.

"But Margaret is getting thinner and weaker, and we've got to do something soon. If an operation is necessary, we want her to have all the strength she can get to face it with."

Margaret has about given up hope several times, her mother said, and weeps during the long night hours, as the recurrent and irresistible tickling occurs in her throat and sends her into another spasm.

Her throat and chest are sore and painful.

During the interminable days of sneezing, Margaret passes time drawing pictures. She wants to be an artist. The "sneeze girl" is forbidden to read or listen to the radio. Everything possible is done to keep her quiet so she may rest.

While men of science have tried every conceivable way to cure her, the little girl has also tried countless less scientific methods, urged upon her by well-wishers all over the English-speaking globe.

One woman wrote from Hornell, N. Y., telling Margaret to pin the letter under her nightgown next to her flesh. "This is a magnetic treatment," the writer said, advising nurses: "Don't handle this letter any more than you can help."

Mrs. Cleer, a level-headed woman, pooh-poohed this nostrum, but she has tried various inhalators sent her by doctors and interested parties. Snuff, gazing at pieces of bright-colored silk, chiropractic treatment and other nostrums have all been tried in efforts which hourly grow more frantic.

Letters enough to please a movie star come to the little, poorly furnished three-room house in North Courthouse road, all bearing words of encouragement. One lady wrote from London, England, advising Margaret to "abstain from all fish, especially shellfish." A woman in northern Canada diagnosed the trouble as "liver complaint." One person sent an electrical device with clips to attach to the toes and nose.

One of the most curious nostrums came from a Washington woman. She inclosed in her letter a handful of silk cloth clippings. She said:

"To focus the attention, practice as if looking at the bridge of the nose, single-eyed as it were, helps to exclude the distracting."

The "sneeze girl" laughingly tried this nostrum without any hopes of success, but she at the same time felt so desperate she was willing to try anything.

The story of her strange affliction first appeared in The Post, October 23.

Margaret is saddened at falling behind in her studies at Washington-Lee High School. She has received only one report card this year, and that had only a few grades on it because of her absences. It showed an "A" in conduct, "A" in mathematics and a "C" in English.

"I'd have gotten 'A' in English, too," she smiled last night, "only all my themes weren't in, and the teacher wrote that was the best she could give me."

Her siege started at school on October 9 when she suddenly began sneezing at her desk. Margaret was taken home, then moved to Children's Hospital October 12, where after two days she seemingly recovered.

The sneezing abated and she was allowed to go home. A strong relapse occurred shortly afterward and she has been sneezing ever since.

Pact Reported On War Debt By U. S., France

ernment to renew negotiations with Washington with a view to "eventual settlement of the debts to the United States contracted during the war."

Blum, in the early days of his Popular Front government, stated that he regretted the "misunderstanding" between the United States and France over the debt question.

"I wish with all my heart that that misunderstanding might quickly disappear," he said.

He intimated elimination of trade barriers between the two nations might bring about such an economic revival that resumption of debt payments would be practical.

Woud Improve Relations.

Settlement of the British and French war debts to the United States would remove one of the greatest obstacles to close political and economic co-operation among the three parliamentary countries.

France's and Britain's default in the depth of the world depression embittered relations between Washington, Paris and London, and was an important factor in preventing an agreement on currency stabilization at the World Economic Conference in 1933.

The two nations combined owe a total of nearly $9,000,000,000 in principal. This represents sums advanced to them during the World War to buy munitions and supplies.

The British debt settlement, negotiated secretly in Washington by Lord Balfour, provided for total payment of $4,600,000,000 in semi-annual installments at an interest rate of 4¼ per cent.

France, funding its indebtedness several years later, agreed in the Mellon-Berenger treaty to pay $4,025,000,000 semiannually. The interest arrangement was complex, but it averaged about 2 per cent yearly.

Any debt revision made must now be approved by Congress before it becomes legal. But observers believe the attitude of that body toward reduction is not so opposed as it was several years ago, particularly if the revisions are connected with commercial and political agreements helpful to America.

Former Leader Is Sued by Firm For $3,000,000

Utility Holding Company Charges Harley Clarke Defrauded It.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Harley L. Clarke was sued for $3,000,000 today by the Utilities Power & Light Corporation—huge holding company he once headed.

The bill filed in Federal court contended Clarke misappropriated approximately $1,000,000 of the concern's funds about June, 1930, and approximately $2,000,000 on May 14, 1931, and asked an accounting.

It charged he "devised schemes and artifices to defraud" the corporation through "colorable transactions between certain subsidiaries" and by making "excessive or fictitious" charges for expenditures, and accused him of making false entries on its books.

Clarke resigned as president, but remained as a director of the utilities corporation last October 29 after the Atlas Corporation—investing company headed by Floyd B. Odlum, of New York—had attained a dominating position, through its stock holdings.

Roosevelt Trip Cements Amity, Justo Declares

'Good-Neighbor' Policy Is Bolstered, Argentines' President Asserts.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 30.—President Roosevelt's visit to Buenos Aires will consolidate and make permanent his "good neighbor" policy for all time, President Agustin P. Justo predicted today.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, the Argentine chief executive declared emphatically the inter-American peace conference which convenes tomorrow, upon initiative of Mr. Roosevelt, will give the world a striking example in favor of peace and will effect final settlement of the Chaco dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia.

Replying to a question whether he believed the peace conference and President Roosevelt's trip to South America would offer the people of this continent an opportunity to give the world a brilliant example for the maintenance and consolidation of peace, Senor Justo said:

"I have no doubt that the inter-American conference for the consolidation of peace, convoked by the lofty inspiration of President Roosevelt, and the visit of that eminent executive, will produce most beneficial results. It will demonstrate to the world which in these moments of uncertainty is in great need of practical examples, that all America is a continent of peace and work where all difficulties may be solved amicably."

Better Relations Seen.

Regarding the effects of President Roosevelt's visit on relations between Argentina and the United States, and in answer to a request for his impressions of the "good neighbor" policy, President Justo said:

"As regards relations between the United States and Argentina, this visit will permit President Roosevelt to appraise for himself the intense affection of this country for him. Through personal contacts his visit also will create those friendly relations which can have so much influence for harmonious international policy. The good neighbor policy, wisely initiated by President Roosevelt in his relations with American countries, will be enhanced by this visit, which I hope will succeed in consolidating that policy in a final form, giving it the stability required, so that it will not be altered by changes of orientation through changes in statesmen."

Asked whether he believed the visits of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull might tend to facilitate prompt termination of negotiations for an Argentine-American commercial agreement, President Justo replied.

"The commercial relations between our two countries have developed through long years in a satisfactory manner, and we hope that they always will continue so and improve as far as possible. As regards conclusion of a commercial agreement, I understand it is the common wish of both countries that it may be realized as soon as circumstances permit."

Co-operation Pledged.

Regarding the attitude to be adopted at the conference by Argentina and its aspirations concerning the questions of neutrality, arms limitations, economic relations and intellectual co-operations, the President said:

"I cannot determine at present the exact attitude of the Aregentine delegation but I can tell you that its instructions are ample and that its attitude will be in accordance with the spirit of co-operation always demonstrated by Argentina within the already known basic and permanent principles that have ruled its international policy in its relations with the nations of the American continent."

As the interview was concluded the President said that he hoped the Chaco dispute would be solved by the conference.

Million Cheer For Roosevelt In Buenos Aires

ArgentineCapital in Tumult as President Arrives to Attend Parley.

President left Rio De Janeiro several members of the Presidential party, including James Roosevelt, received decorations of the Brazilian Order of the Southern Cross.

Tomorrow morning he is scheduled to take an automobile tour of the city and later to receive President Justo, who is to accompany him to the legislative palace for the initial session of the parley.

Hundreds of be-flagged vessels in the Rio de la Plata tied down their whistles as the Indianapolis, escorted by eight Argentine warships and a squadron of airplanes, sailed up the Rio de la Plata.

On shore, sirens and automobile horns raised a terrific din as crowds rushed to the squares and thoroughfares along the announced route of President Roosevelt's car.

James Roosevelt, the President's son, was the first of the United States party to set foot in Argentina as the Indianapolis made fast to a gaily decorated pier along which a red carpet, an eighth of a mile in length, was stretched.

The younger Roosevelt shook hands with members of the receiving group, including President Justo, and then reboarded the cruiser to escort his father down the gangplank.

Thousands in the Plaza Britanica and the streets close to the dock applauded as the visiting President stepped to the quay just before 2 p. m. (noon, E. S. T.).

United States Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell introduced the two Presidents.

Embraced by Brazilian.

As Mr. Roosevelt took his seat in a large open car, he said to Justo, with a smile, "Mi amigo" ("my friend").

Justo returned the greeting with an embrace, and a moment later seated himself on President Roosevelt's left.

The 11 official cars, heavily guarded by Argentine police and American Secret Service agents, formed a line behind 350 blue-uniformed, white-epauletted horse grenadiers of Gen. Josede San Martin, named for the Argentine who liberated the country from Spanish rule in 1812.

Mr. Roosevelt, carrying a bunch of red roses in his left hand, waved his high silk hat to the cheering throngs with his right hand.

Scores broke through police lines after the procession passed and ran along behind the Presidential car.

The hot sun of the Argentine summer beat down on the crowds. Hundreds perched in office and hotel windows, clapping and hurling flowers on the motorcade.

Embassies Flag Bedecked.

In the aristocratic residential sections and the parks through which the line of cars passed, heavily scented jacaranda trees were in full purple bloom.

Embassy row, on the Avenida Alvear, flew the flags of all major world powers.

A roar went up from the crowd as the United States and Argentine Presidents reached the United States Embassy, a 22-room marble building in Palermo Park.

Long after President Roosevelt had gone inside and President Justo had taken his leave, hundreds remained in the neighborhood, applauding and cheering.

Early in the evening, after his formal call on the Argentine executive, President Roosevelt received Dr. Vicente Gallo, president of the University of Buneos Aires, who awarded him the degree of doctor of laws, honoris causa.

259 Day Fast Is Ended By Priest of Indian Sect

Bombay, Nov. 30 (AP).—A fast which was asserted to have lasted 259 days was ended here tonight by a Jain priest, Muni Shri Misrilalji, in the presence of 500 co-religionists. The priest existed only on water, fellow priests said.

The announced purpose of the fast was to remove dissension in the Jain sect. The priest in ending it, said it had been disclosed to him in a vision that his penance was creating further schism.

outskirts of the capital twice in the day, dropping about a dozen bombs.

Encouraged by the stubborn fight of the column of international anti-Fascists against Franco's men in the University City section, the government was reported considering a major offensive as the best defense of the city.

The war ministry reported heavy fighting on the Northern Asturias fronts and asserted a shell struck the field headquarters of the insurgent commander, Col. Miguel Arranda, at Grado, west of Oviedo.

On the eastern coastal sector, the civil governor of Alicante charged insurgent seaplanes loaded fuel and munitions from a German ship on the high seas before bombing Alicante November 28, killing one person and wounding seven.

A new strategem in the subsidiary propaganda battle occurred today when government planes dropped thousands of leaflets on Fascist troop concentrations, warning those below that if they did not surrender "Madrid will be your tomb."

Previously all leaflet distribution from the air had been done by Fascist planes flying over Madrid.

The Madrid defense junta, showing a preference for youth, today named as secretary the Socialist Maximo de Vios, 21 years old, who was a foundling.

U. S. 'Approval' On Allies' Pact May Be Sought

America's Favor of Pacts for France, England and Belgium Held Aim.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 30.—France, looking at a rearmed Germany on her border and at spreading Italian influence in the Balkans beyond, today sought a three-power alliance against the Fascist European bloc.

Specifically France strove to line up with Great Britain in mutual military assistance pacts if either should be attacked.

In addition, the French plan was to extend the same offer to Belgium, traditional battleground of France and her enemies, informed sources said.

As the alliance would be intendeu publicly as one between "democratic nations," foreign observers felt the United States might be urged at least to demonstrate sympathetic if not actual adherence.

British Favor Expected.

In London, reliable indications tonight pointed to British acceptance of the plan, although Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the House of Commons declared "His Majesty's government has explicitly deprecated any tendency to divide the world into conflicting camps."

Informed quarters said afterward his remark was aimed only at pacts of aggression.

These persons said the French alliance offer would be accepted with favor as compatible with the government's desire for defensive understandings to promote peace.

The proposed agreement, they said, would be purely defensive and, therefore, not likely to "divide" Europe.

Cabinet in Session.

French Premier Blum called a cabinet session tonight to debate national defense plans. Ministers who attended included Edouard Daladier, defense; Alphonse Gasnier-du Parc, navy; Pierre Cot, air, and Yvon Delbos, foreign affairs.

Carrying out France's announced determination to build her defenses to meet attack from any quarter, the superior naval council recommended increased naval construction over a period of years, "in principle," but made public no figures.

Foreign Minister Delbos was expected to disclose details of his foreign policy in the Chamber of Deputies December 4, after which Premier Blum is to ask a vote of confidence for his steady resistance of Communist demands that France send arms to Spain.

The government will stake its life on its Spanish neutrality stand, informed sources said, and will resign unless all units of the "Popular Front government" approve the nonintervention policy.

Nazi Pacts Feared.

In the ever-shifting network of European and Asiatic alliances growing out of the battle between socialism-communism and fascism in Spain, France already has bound herself in a mutual assistance pact with Russia as a primary bulwark against Reichsfuehrer Hitler's estimated 800,000 armed men.

The French government, alarmed by the recent Japanese-German and Japanese-Italian accords against's France's military ally, Russia, was reported to be determind not stand by idly "while German diplomats forge a chain from Europe to Asia."

Illegal Arms Sale Charged to Reich

Geneva, Nov. 30 (AP).—League of Nations officials charged today that Germany was trading in arms and munitions of war in open violation of the Treaty of Versailles.

Germany sold munitions worth 10,340,000 reichsmarks ($4,136,000) in 1935, the League reported, and bought arms of war to the value of 215,000 reichsmarks ($86,000).

Article 170 of the Treaty of Versailles prohibited Germany from exporting and importing arms as war material.

(Practically all of the major provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, except for the rearrangement of European boundaries, have been considered by Germany to be void.)

2 Unions Join 'Outlaw' Strike On East Coast

Radio Operators, Firemen, Oilers' Group Added; Arbitration Lags.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 30.—Two more unions voted today to join the insurgent seamen's strike on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Hoyt S. Haddock, president of the American Radio and Telegraphists Association, announced a general strike of radio operators in all ports where vessels are affected by other marine strikes had been called.

The association excepted lines having contracts with the union, including the International Mercantile Marine, Black Diamond and Grace lines.

The Marine Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders Union also approved a strike. It is one of three units of the International Seamen's Union, which has termed the East Coast and Gulf strikes an "outlaw" act. The others are deckhands' and cooks' unions.

Two other unions, the Masters, Mates and Pilots and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Associations, previously joined the strike called by insurgent seamen.

In the second month of the East coast strike, another transatlantic liner was delayed. The American Trader, scheduled to sail for Europe at noon with cargo only and passenger space closed, still lacked three men for its crew tonight, line officials said. She left her pier and anchorage near the Statue of Liberty.

Arbitration Lags.

San Francisco, Nov. 30 (AP).—Peace negotiations lagged today as the West Coast maritime strike entered its second month.

New efforts were started to obtain movement of food supplies to Hawaii, cut off from normal mainland commerce, after settlement last week of a similar problem in Alaska.

In the Los Angeles Harbor area, union truck drivers began a campaign to unionize all oil truck drivers, but police announced they would arrest any pickets stopping traffic on highways.

Navy to Ask New Auxiliary Fleet

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, said tonight Congress wold be asked to authorize a ten-year, $715,000,000 program of auxiliary ship construction.

Speaking before the St. Andrews Society, Standley stressed the need of auxiliary craft—oilers, hospital ships, supply ships, tenders and tugs—for effective operation of the battle fleet.

"The mere existence and possession of magnificent ships of war does not necessarily insure the maritime security of a nation," Standley said. "For the combatant units to be effective, as I have often stressed before, they must be adequately serviced by a fleet of auxiliary vessels."

He added that adequate shore bases, for repairs and fueling, were imperative. On the Pacific Coast particularly, he said, there were not sufficient shore establishments.

7 Men Killed By Dynamite Blast in Quarry

5 Workers, 2 Others Are Trapped in Premature Explosion.

By the United Press.

Delta, Pa., Nov. 30.—Seven men were killed today when dynamite being prepared for blasting exploded prematurely in the tunnel of a slate quarry here.

Details surrounding the explosion were not clear and officials of the Funkhouser Co., slate roofing material manufacturers, declined to give out a statement until their investigation is completed.

Five of the dead—Frank Weaver, his son, Ralph; Luther Williams and two brothers, Winston and Lush Lynn—were employes of the company. The other two—Lee Jones and Roy Ayres—had gone to the quarry to repair an automobile.

Several of the bodies were mangled and burned so badly that identification was made by a check on employes working in the tunnel and information gathered from survivors. Workers searched the debris shaken loose by the blast for more than an hour before all bodies were recovered.

Delta is on the west side of the Susquehanna River in York County, just north of the Maryland-Pennsylvania border. The Funkhouser company's quarry and dust mills are located here, but headquarters of the concern are in Hagerstown, Md.

Religious Editor To Speak Tonight

Hugh Redwood, religious editor of the London News Chronicle, will speak at Calvary Baptist Church at 8 o'clock tonight under auspices of the Salvation Army. Redwood, on six weeks' leave of absence, is touring the United States and Canada.

Earlier Redwood will preside at a Salvation Army officers' council, will broadcast at Station WJSV at 11:15 a. m., and will be entertained at tea at the British Embassy in the afternoon.

Dr. William S. Abernathy, pastor of Calvary Church, will introduce Redwood at tonight's meeting, which will be presided over by Lieut. Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, commander of the Southern territory of the army.

Redwood was night editor of a London newspaper in 1928 when the Thames River overflowed its banks. After observing the suffering of inhabitants of flood-ravaged slum sections, Redwood joined the Salvation Army.

Rescue Squad Releases Couple Trapped in Car

Two persons were injured yesterday in a collision between automobiles said to have been operated by Clinton L. Wolcott, 19 West Kirke street, and J. W. Bulger, 4512 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., at Cedar parkway and Grafton street.

Bulger's car overturned, trapping him and Mrs. Margaret Shoemaker, of 40 Drummond street. Montgomery County Policeman Joseph L. Ward and members of the Bethesda Fire Rescue Squad extricated them from the wreckage and took them to their homes suffering from bruises and shock.

Gangster May Quit Racket for Theater

Chicago, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—Edward (Spike) O'Donnell, first of Chicago's beer barons and the first subjected to machine-gun fire by a competitor, is considering an offer to appear on the London stage in a character role, it was learned tonight.

Five years ago the South Side Beau Brummel had to turn down an offer of $15,000 a week from an English movie company because, as an ex-convict, England didn't want to admit him to the country. But that little trouble can be ironed out, it was explained by Sanford (Gimp) Rosenbaum, secretary-bodyguard for Spike. The plans call for Gimp to go along, too.

"As I get it from this promoter," Gimp said, "the English people have a yen to see a real live Chicago gangster and will pay money for it. This promoter figures it ought to be worth $200,000, counting the take from a tour of Europe and places like that."

"I Wish I Could Broadcast Over the Radio How Good this Medicine Is"

Writes Mrs. Austin Maddox, Route 2, Box 174, Oxford, Ala.

"I had a dull headache and felt dizzy and I also had pains in my right side. Nearly every afternoon I had to lie down. My mother told me about your medicine and I took the Tablet form. It did away with the dizzy spells and built up my system. It kept me going during pregnancy. Today I have good health which I feel I would not have except for your medicine. If I could not get it I would be in bed half the time."
Mrs. Austin Maddox

More than half the women who take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound bought the first bottle because some friend or neighbor recommended it. Right in your own town . . . your own neighborhood . . . there must be at least ONE woman who WANTS to tell you how good this medicine is. Ask her. Then try it for yourself. All druggists sell it. Liquid and Tablet form.

"I Was So Sick and Nervous..

that I could not do my work at home nor hold any other employment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound put me on my feet. It relieved dizziness and nervousness. I am now doing my own work and working out in another home and I feel better than I have for five years. I recommend this medicine to girls and women."

Edith Maxwell Jury Selection To Be Difficult

Attorney Smith Anticipates Many Talesmen Will Disqualify Selves.

Great difficulty in getting a jury for Edith Maxwell's second trial for the "slipper murder" of Trigg Maxwell, her father, is anticipated by Charles Henry Smith and other defense counsel in the case.

The trial is scheduled to start in Wise, Va., a week from tomorrow.

Attorney Smith, working on plans for the trial yesterday, predicted that it might take two or three days for the selection of the jury. A large number of those called, he said, undoubtedly would disqualify themselves by saying they had formed or expressed an opinion in the case.

At the hearing held in Wise a week ago yesterday on the motion for a change of venue, witnesses called by the defense testified that, wherever they had gone in Wise County, they had found citizens to be arrayed "for" or "against" Edith Maxwell.

Circuit Judge Ezra Carter ruled that Edith could get a fair trial, and denied the motion for a change of venue.

Readers of The Washington Post, who contributed to a defense fund after Miss Maxwell was given the 25-year sentence, are now sending in contributions toward the expenses of the defense in the second trial.

Yesterday's contributions were:

Mrs. George A. Garrett	$50.00

WPA to Reduce Roll by 175,000 Before January

ice Commission's figures as of October 31 and made public yesterday show WPA has an administrative force of 1,786 in the District and 35,387 in the field.

Between 100 and 200 WPA employes here in the city have already received dismissal notices, effective November 15 and yesterday. By December 15 the number is expected to reach 250 to 270, Dort estimated, with "another 40 or 50 by the first of the year."

A mass meeting protesting against the reduction in administrative force has been called by the WPA union for Thursday night at the Hamilton Hotel.

Hopkins' order to Commisisoner Allen to reduce the District rolls from 6,500 to 5,500 and the monthly administrative expenses from $17,000 to $15,000 followed on the heels of the WPA administrator's prediction that WPA rolls would be reduced by 1,000,000 at the beginning of the new calendar year. In his 1,000,000 figure Hopkins included those unemployed he expects to be reabsorbed in industry. The 175,000 figure mentioned by Williams does not take into consideration re-employment prospects.

Tightening up of the program, Williams is understood to have told WPA unionists, has been made necessary by the fact that the WPA hasn't sufficient funds to carry its present relief roll burden.

Rumania Today Celebrates 18 Years of Union

Little Entente Delegates to Join in Program at Bucharest.

Ceremonies in Bucharest and throughout Rumania today will mark the eighteenth anniversary of the union of all the Rumanian provinces.

Participants in the annual celebration this year will include parliamentary delegates from all the countries forming the Little Entente, as well as a special mission from France.

Czechoslovakia is represented by a parliamentary delegation led by Mr. Malypetr, president of the Chamber of Deputies and former premier. Yugoslavia also has sent a delegation of parliamentary representatives, including Mr. Tchirich, president of the Skoupchina. From France has arrived a military delegation headed by Gen. Mittelhauser.

Special significance is attached to this meeting of members of parliament of the Little Entente countries on the occasion of Rumania's principal national holiday. After years of collaboration among the governments of the Little Entente for the purpose of defending the treaties and asserting their solidarity, this manifestation of the public opinion voiced through their parliamentary representatives is considered further proof of the deep attachment that unites the three countries.

The presence of the French military delegation is viewed with great satisfaction in remembrance of the collaboration during the war and the imperishable ties that unite France and Rumania.

A special session will be held at the Chamber of Deputies today, the speeches being broadcasted through all the stations of the Little Entente countries.

The King will preside at a luncheon today in honor of the chiefs of mission.

Richberg Cabinet Rumor Is Spiked

Likelihood of Donald Richberg, former NRA general counsel, joining the President's Cabinet or taking any other Government position in Mr. Roosevelt's second term dimmed perceptibly yesterday with announcement of a new legal connection he has made.

The law firm of Davies, Beebe, Busick & Richardson announced that Joseph E. Davies, newly appointed ambassador to Russia, has withdrawn temporarily from the partnership, and Mr. Richberg has become a partner in the firm. The new name of the firm will be Davies, Richberg, Beebe, Busick & Richardson.

Board Will Choose Boswell Successor

A new chairman of the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners will be elected today to succeed Perry Boswell, who has declared he will not be a candidate again.

Boswell, who has served as chairman since the present board went into office in 1933, announced he will not accept the office again after a stormy session of the commissioners last week over a proposal to investigate police for their part in an alleged bonding racket.

It is understood, however, he has been anxious to relinquish his duties for almost a year because of pressure of business. He is a real estate dealer and builder.

Three employes of the board will come up for reappointment today. They are James S. Heal, clerk to the board; Ogle Marbury, counsel, and Miss Catherine Ridgley, secretary.

The Chinese Worm Turns.

Obscured by more spectacular developments elsewhere, the war that has been raging in Inner Mongolia during the last few weeks has been almost ignored by the outside world. And yet the outcome of that war may have an important bearing on Sino-Japanese relations and thus on the world situation.

From one viewpoint the war represents an effort by certain Mongol princes, aided and abetted by the Japanese, to regain control of all the region historically associated with the Mongols, but for centuries dominated by the Chinese. More important, however, is the Japanese determination to establish a buffer state between China proper, on the one hand, and Russia and Russian-dominated Outer Mongolia on the other.

Of the region loosely designated as Inner Mongolia a good portion is already in Japanese hands. Jehol was taken over soon after Manchuria and made part of the puppet state of Manchukuo. Later the Japanese established themselves in Chahar Province, which controls the caravan route between North China and Outer Mongolia. The elimination of Chinese authority over Suiyan Province is the next step. But this program is meeting with stout resistance from the Chinese. Indeed the governor of Suiyan, with the help of Nanking, has managed to hurl back the invading Manchukuoan and Mongol forces and now threatens to carry the war into Chahar. This has so alarmed the leaders of Japan's armed forces on the mainland that they have threatened to take "appropriate measures if the Mongolian hostilities menace Manchukuo or if China is threatened by Communists."

To this threat China is apparently prepared to reply in kind. A spokesman of the Nanking foreign office states that China will permit "no external encroachment or interference on whatever pretext by whatever party."

An almost revolutionary change in the Chinese attitude toward Japanese imperialism may be noted in this statement. Not long ago the Chinese felt they were impotent to bar the onward march of the Japanese steam roller. No effective resistance was offered to the seizure of Manchuria, Jehol and Chahar, or to the destruction, in large measure, of the Nanking government's authority in the Peiping-Tientsin area. It seemed as if all of North China as well as Inner Mongolia would fall into the lap of the island empire.

But now the Chinese are awake to the dangers of giving way any further to Japanese pressure. Their determination to prevent the loss of Suiyan and the enthusiasm aroused all over China by the victories of the Suiyanese show that there is a new spirit abroad in the once helpless republic.

Even Division On NRA.

The Institute of Public Opinion has taken a number of polls to gauge the degree of popular support accorded the NRA. The inquiry made just prior to the invalidation of the industrial recovery act showed that this experiment in planned economy had suffered a severe loss of prestige. However, since the NRA was outlawed, sentiment in favor of its restoration has grown stronger until the last poll indicates that 51 per cent of the voters would approve enactment of a second NRA.

It is, of course, very difficult to interpret a popular vote of this sort because, as the institute points out, the NRA has a different meaning for different people. Probably a majority of those favoring its revival are interested in provisions relating to hours, wages and conditions of employment. That belief is strengthened by the fact that industrial areas and urban centers have returned the heaviest majorities for a second NRA. However, there is also widespread support for cooperative regulation of trade practices, such as was attempted by the NRA codes.

The major significance of the institute vote lies in the evidence afforded that a large proportion of the people are not satisfied with the legislative status quo. They want a measure of Government regulation of industrial relations greater than existing laws provide. Since the collapse of the NRA did not solve the problems of unemployment and unfair competition that were responsible for its creation, demands for remedial action have inevitably arisen again.

The growing sentiment for a second NRA, therefore, merely means that the country is again awakening to the necessity of grappling with the question of how best to regulate employer-employe relationships, secure greater uniformity of wages and hours, and better control over competitive processes.

At Buenos Aires.

Today, the 21 republics of North and South America stand on the threshold of what may well prove to be a new era in the history of this hemisphere.

Since the ending of the Chaco war, peace has obtained everywhere in the New World, and the prospects of its continuation are excellent. Those statesmen who are meeting at Buenos Aires today, and the peoples whom they represent, have it within their power to assist fulfillment of the necessary conditions of peace so that, whatever may happen elsewhere, the scourge of war will be far less likely to devastate the Americas.

The circumstances surrounding the meeting now taking place in the Argentine capital have inevitably aroused high hopes. Never before have relations between the United States and Latin America been so harmonious. The "Good Neighbor" policy has dissolved suspicions once prevalent in the nations to the south of us. The presence at Buenos Aires of President Roosevelt, fresh from his great triumph at the polls, symbolizes the anxiety of this Nation to strengthen Pan-American ties of friendship and good will.

It would, of course, be foolish and dangerous to minimize the difficulties that stand in the way of tangible achievements by this conference. An illustration is afforded by that participating nation which has just recognized Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. For one of the direct aims of the conference is the strengthening of existing instruments of peace and one of those instruments is the Saavedra Lamas pact, pledging its signatories to withhold recognition of territorial gains made by force.

Certainly it will not be enough simply to talk of peace to achieve it. Desire for peace is a universal feeling, limited to no continent or people. Nevertheless, real peace today appears a remote ideal in an unfriendly world. Yet it is this very circumstance which gives especial point to the gathering at Buenos Aires.

We in this hemisphere, at least, can have peace if we really want it; if we work for it and pay the price that must be paid. We can have it so far as the relations between the nations of the Americas are concerned, and by establishing such stable peace in the New World the cause of better international relations everywhere will be forwarded. And a necessary part of the program is to give clear warning to ambitious and aggressive nations that now, as during these many decades since President Monroe wrote his famous message to Congress, this hemisphere is not to be regarded as a sphere for foreign conquest.

The world wants peace. It wants it desperately. But the yearnings of the people have been drowned in the clamor of the war mongers. If peace is to be saved it is necessary for the more fortunately situated nations to act and act resolutely. The Buenos Aires parley is an opportunity to do just that. Let it be hoped that those entrusted with so tremendous and inspiring a mission prove able to fulfill their mandate.

Irreconcilable Aims.

At its Tampa convention the A. F. of L. again called for introduction of the 30-hour week as a means of relieving unemployment. But in its monthly survey of business the federation coincidentally urges "general and recurring wage increases throughout all industry" with a view to eventual attainment of a "comfort living standard." These two aims are irreconcilable.

Reports of a shortage of skilled labor are already coming from various parts of the country. Recently it has been authoritatively stated that if industrial production should reach the level of 1929 within the next five years there would be an acute shortage of some kinds of labor, making it necessary to lengthen the working day instead of cutting it. Moreover, even if our productive plant were operating at full capacity, American industry could not as yet produce enough to afford a comfortable living to every family.

Studies made by the Brookings Institution, trying to gauge the country's capacity to produce and to consume, indicate that under the conditions prevailing in 1929 we might have added about 19 per cent to the output of our industrial plant, with reasonable allowance for failures of co-ordination. That would have added about $15,000,000,000 to the Nation's income—a sum that would have fallen far short of the amount needed to provide that "comfort living standard" which is the federation's ultimate objective.

The federation's commendable desire for a more abundant life for workers must not lead to indorsement of the false theory that high wages by some economic alchemy will of themselves provide the riches that alone make higher living standards possible. The alluring and superficially pleasing theory that high wages create prosperity was used to justify increases in wages and reductions of hours under the NRA codes. The net result of premature and in some cases excessive additions to labor costs was a slowing down of the pace of recovery in many industries.

Undoubtedly industry flourishes best when labor is well paid and living standards correspondingly high. But in order to lay the foundation for a permanent prosperity it is essential to provide an incentive for increased production by keeping costs at a level where they will not discourage consumption. Otherwise, we have industrial stagnation instead of progress, fewer goods to consume instead of more wealth to be enjoyed. For such reasons, demands for wage increases cannot safely be based upon an ideal standard of comfort.

When industries are prosperous workers are in a position to demand a share of the increased returns without jeopardizing future progress. When labor is exploited, or paid wages below subsistence levels, adjustments must be made, regardless of inevitable employer opposition. But these problems of redistribution or reapportionment of income are a very different matter from attempts to give all workers a greater share of material enjoyments before the basis for production of such abundance has been laid.

The A. F. of L. will not achieve its end by trying to raise money wages under conditions that give no assurance of a simultaneous increase in the commodities that labor buys.

The Lag In Housing.

It is generally agreed that the construction of homes for the millions of families now inadequately housed offers the greatest opportunity for the employment of idle men and money, as well as for the improvement of social conditions. The Administration is thoroughly converted to that viewpoint. Organized labor is enthusiastic over the possibilities of a housing program, and many business men are actively sponsoring plans aimed at that objective.

Why, then, does the building industry lag so far behind many other lines of endeavor in which the need for accelerated production is not nearly so urgent? That question was comprehensively answered yesterday in an address by Allie S. Freed, chairman of the Committee for Economic Recovery, before the Economic Club of Detroit. "The main deterrents," Mr. Freed said, "lie in the realm of business, finance, labor and government."

Business, he charged, has failed to develop a "real home-building industry," to stimulate research, to simplify manufacture and distribution of materials, to eliminate the inefficient sub-contracting system, to plan communities on a large scale and to build for reasonable profits in place of large speculative gains.

Finance has failed to reduce interest rates to a point where home building becomes attractive. Sound mortgage credit for new rental properties, according to Mr. Freed, is still practically frozen. Turning to labor, he declared that home building has been retarded by overemphasis on hourly rates of pay, as contrasted with annual return; by jurisdictional disputes, and by inefficient use of workmen because of small-scale operations. It is especially ironic that these conditions contribute to the denial of decent housing to workingmen's families.

The indictment against government includes the failure of Congress to establish a clear-cut housing policy; the consequent competition of public agencies with private enterprise; interdepartmental jealousies and conflicts; obsolete foreclosure laws in many States; ineffective local building codes; excessive taxation on real estate, and incompetent planning and zoning. Mr. Freed offers a number of constructive suggestions as to ways and means through which the Government can supplement and encourage a private housing program.

From the briefest enumeration of these obstacles it is apparent that no panacea will bring about the desirable development of home building. The Committee for Economic Recovery has concluded that "political, business, financial and labor leadership must join forces to the end that the masses of our people may be better served." And the emphasis it places upon business responsibility in this field is attested by Mr. Freed's remark, apropos of our housing deficiencies, that: "The right to private profit will endure just as long as that which produces profit contributes to social progress."

Congress can render invaluable aid by eliminating governmental competition with private builders, by aiding slum reclamation through municipalities, by temporarily extending the FHA and making it more responsive to the needs of large-scale building, and by wider research in building methods and materials through the Bureau of Standards.

The important point is, however, that orderly co-operation is the first essential in any really comprehensive housing program. A meeting of minds on the part of all interested groups is clearly desirable before any further legislative step is taken. In this, the initiative should certainly come from the Administration.

Stolen Coal.

From the New York Times.

The series of articles by our special correspondent, F. Raymond Daniell, on the "bootlegging" of coal in Pennsylvania, throw fresh light on the amazing situation that has grown up there in the last few years. Some 15,000 men and boys are engaged in the actual illegal mining of anthracite from lands owned by the once-powerful coal companies, while 5,000 or 6,000 others are trucking it. Contrary to the general belief, the bootleggers are not working abandoned mines, but sinking their own shafts on land where the coal lies comparatively near the surface. Mr. Daniell reports that in a 150-mile drive around the southern anthracite fields he was seldom out of sight of an illegal mine for more than a minute. The total output of the bootleg mines this year is expected to amount to 5,000,000 tons, or more than 10 per cent of the total production of the legitimate collieries. The stolen coal is sold in Pennsylvania and in neighboring States at prices with which the legitimate coal companies cannot compete.

The Social Security Act.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The social security act, even though it be no panacea, can be made into a most useful bit of legislation. Its future depends on the caliber of the administrative heads.

If they can welcome suggestions and yet bluntly refuse the schemes of special groups; if they can select able employes for the staff and yet have the favor of legislators; if they can dream into the future and yet realize the stern realities of the present, the American worker will reap a harvest of security in the threshing season of life.

Fortunate, indeed, are we that its first head is such a man. Those who did not know of John G. Winant before his selection, learned something during the recent attacks on the social security act that made them realize the stature of the man. It was not the potential Presidential candidate, nor the former Governor, nor the Honorable John G. Winant—it was the social security act that was put before the people. What a forceful lesson and splendid example to the small men that clutter up the Nation's Capital!

As one who has found the former Governor of New Hampshire to be a man whose door is open to all, no matter how humble, and whose time is available for worthy cases, I regret that he will leave this post at the end of the year. I hope that he will be persuaded to remain in office during the "teething" period of this fine baby—the social security act.

BORIS J. FRIEDKISS.

Proportioned Representation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A rather startling feature of the recent Presidential election is that although the defeated party received the support of about 16,000,000 votes as against 26,000,000 votes for the New Deal party, the representation of the minority party will be far less than the proportion of 16 to 26.

By our antiquated system of voting a slight majority gives 100 per cent representation instead of proportional representation, which prevails, for example, in Ireland, and has been proved to be eminently fair and just to all voters. With proportional representation, a Democrat would know that his vote in Vermont would count, and a Republican would have no excuse to stay away from the voting place in Texas. No State would then have a solid vote in Congress of one political party, due, possibly, to a slight majority, and the result would be a strong and healthy minority to effectually keep the majority in good behavior and to make impossible such abuse of power as became scandalous in the last session of Congress.

Is it not, therefore, imperative that the proportional representation plan be adopted in our notional elections?

Football's Purpose.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Inasmuch as the season is practically over, now it can be told. Or, better, asked. What is the purpose of the great American game of football? Whence its origin? What is the idea behind this attraction for shivering humanity?

Some skeptics maintain it is for the purpose of promoting the sale of alcoholic beverages. Others believe it is merely to furnish conductors of comic columns material for mythical All-American elevens composed entirely of outrageous, foreign and unpronounceable names.

Then there is one school of ultra-modern thought which insists that the sole purpose of football is to give radio announcers something to yap about all Saturday afternoon. Another view is that the game is for the exclusive purpose of providing newspaper headlines to compete with such front age stuff as new war scares and royal romances.

As a former victim of pneumonia, however, I maintain the purpose of the game is to see if it is possible to get 50,000 or so otherwise normal persons to sit on concrete with snow falling down their backs.

R. C. O'BRIEN.

A Non-Jewish View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Of two of your correspondents who have dwelt on a topic in which Judaism is vitally interested: assimilation of the Jew by other peoples, Mr. Stephen Basilton's lucid exposition in The Post of November 27 should be read by non-Jews and Jews alike. However, I beg leave to disagree with his assertion that the Jew has always sought spiritual sustenance from his fellows.

We of another race and creed, to be honest with ourselves, must admit that we have been jealous of the Jew's aggressiveness in material matters, but we accepted his cultural aims. Assimilation goes forward in spite of our prejudices, for the Jew seems quite willing to be assimilated. This was the thesis of Ludwig Lewisohn's "The Island Within." And the same question was treated in lighter vein through the peripatetics of "Abie's Irish Rose." Rachel Crothers would undoubtedly give it as her opinion that assimilation in the United States is a fait accompli.

As long as marriage between Jew and Gentile does not proceed harmoniously, true assimilation cannot take place. Obviously atavistic forces and psychological factors have worked against spiritual happiness in intermarriages. How to reconcile these elements is the solution of the problem confronting the assimilation of the Jew.

Courage Proved?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is difficult to understand the unfairness of your criticism of the young cavalryman which you made in your editorial of November 24.

There is nothing unusual about the presence of civilians, either on foot or in autos at the location where the soldier was held up. Had he drawn his pistol each time he was approached by citizens you probably would have been among the first to call it an act of cowardice. How was he to know that these particular citizens were gangsters?

Probably you have never faced death, and at the same time been required to make a decision which might mean life or death. The writer cannot but wonder what your reaction would have been had you been the sentry on whom the three gangsters had the "drop," or if Mosby's raiders aroused you from your slumbers.

There is quite a difference between looking at the business end of a pistol and writing editorials in the security of your office.

Our fine Army needs no defense. Apparently your knowledge of military history is limited to the reading of "Mosby's War Reminiscences" by John S. Mosby.

If you have as much courage as the sentry had you may prove it by printing this letter.

FRED C. KELLY.

A Soup Label.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I recently bought a case of soup, which boasted this label:

"Employment Assured."

We, the workers, who packed this product, own and manage this business. For us there is no unemployment as we are retained by the year and can be discharged only for conduct detrimental to the business. We are paid during illness and are pensioned when we are no longer able to work. We receive complete medical, optical, dental and hospital care at the company's expense. We also receive liberal vacations with pay.

As this is an experiment in workers ownership and in the complex problems of group relationships, it necessarily changes as we deal with new problems and thus gain new experience. We are glad at any time to furnish the latest details.

And it was good soup, and not expensive. I also bought a turkey and all the fixings, even down to the nuts, through the Washington Consumers Club. Here's good eating, and a start toward another era of good feeling, too.

Open Forums In Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Important work is being done in Washington for better human relations through the activities of public forums.

Backed by the Federal Office of Education, with the guidance of Dr. John W. Studebaker, the forum movement has swept the country dramatically in the last two years. It is the old-fashioned town meeting rejuvenated.

With appreciation we note the work of such imposing and efficiently projected public enterprises as the Town Hall of Washington, or the broadcast forums of the League for Political Education in New York. But we are particularly attracted by the civic accomplishments of smaller, but no less important groups, which are fostered in the District of Columbia.

The District is particularly fortunate in having several forum groups where attendance usually averages from 30 to 100 adults. In these meetings people gather for a season of inspiring and frequently extremely revealing debate or discourse.

In a democracy such "centers of gravity" nourish the roots of society with refreshing waters of freedom and truth. Within this brief space we can only name a few of the lively forum and study groups in Washington. Their number and importance, it is hoped, will increase year after year.

For example, there is the Sunday Morning Forum of the Universalist National Memorial Church, at Sixteenth and S streets northwest. Within a church edifice, it is nevertheless strictly non-sectarian and non-political in character. The open forum of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, at Fourteenth street and Columbia road northwest, is patterned on equally broad and liberal lines. Both forums meet one hour before the regular religious service Sunday mornings.

One of the most popular public forums in the District is the Capital City Forum which meets every Friday night. Its announcements appear with regularity in the metropolitan press here. Another center where well-informed and inspiring speakers often are heard is the Monday Evening Club at Barker Hall.

Those interested in progressive forum activities will welcome opportunities to participate in the current events of the Washington Consumers' Club at 1410 Columbia road northwest. In addition to study groups for a better understanding of current problems of production and distribution, the club has a meeting the second Wednesday of each month. Dr. Leroy Halbert directs the educational work of the movement here.

The Washington branch of the Civil Liberties Union has been responsible for a series of weekly meetings at Wesley Hall. These meetings, each Monday noon, are preceded by a luncheon. They have had considerable significance to men and women in professional and educational circles. The Civil Liberties Union, incidentally, regards an untrammeled and unfettered public forum as one of the chief assets of American popular government.

One of the forward steps which several churches have under consideration is the establishment of mid-week neighborhood forums. If this is carried out with measurable success, we can hope for a more articulate and tolerant citizenship in this area. The opportunities for constructive action are unique.

Henrietta Penelope.

HENRIETTA PENELOPE—Henny Penny for short—is the name of my lone chicken. Not since she was a broiler has she seen any of her own kind; and so she struts around this strange world as though proud of the apparent fact that she is in a class by herself.

She laid the first egg of her career on January 1, 1935. I failed to keep a complete record of her 1935 performance but her output was somewhere between 150 and 200 eggs. This year she is doing better. Such a record would be beneath an oyster's notice but it really isn't half bad for a chicken that has never known a mother's care.

I admit that I take some pride in Henrietta Penelope's performances. I have a feeling, deep down inside me, that there must be something exceptional about a man who can own a chicken like Henrietta Penelope. That the feeling is general is demonstrated by newspaper pictures of cat, dog and horse shows. "On the left is the prize-winning Pomeranian pup, and on the right the guy who paid his entrance fee." And the man in the picture will have a smugness of expression that the pooch would be ashamed to possess.

Admiring chicken fanciers have asked what special treatment I accord, as it were, Henrietta Penelope to make her do so well. Nothing special, I assure them. I see that her coop is kept clean and that she has plenty of fresh water. I give her a handful of corn morning and evening and the rest of the time she scratches for herself. Naturally as a chicken raiser I have my own methods.

But Henrietta's daily stint demands a measured cadence; a lilting lay.

Once on a time she laid a dozen eggs beneath an ancient car and there prepared to sit on them. (Set? Oh, very well. But she has to sit before she can set, doesn't she? Or does she?) Those eggs I saved and there and then resolved henceforth she'd lay her precious eggs at home. And so she does, with lapses few, because I keep her penned until she does her bit, if egg she's going to lay before high noon. At noon I take a chance and she goes free to hunt the luscious worm in verdant swards.

Long ere the sun has welcomed morn I hear her calling me in eager, strident tones; and then she sings a merry little lay; and cracks a joke and cackles o'er them. And when I visit her she most politely will drop her voice to conversation's pitch and plead with me to let her out at once. But I'll be firm and say, "No, Henrietta; not till you do your work and lay an egg."

And off I'll go pursued by Henrietta's fierce vituperation; but by and by she'll sing again and sometimes even crow. And when at last she thinks she'll lay an egg she sends out blurbs advising all and sundry a work of art will soon be off the press.

Come to think of it this is really a very curious trait in Henrietta's character. She sends out advance notices but, unlike her sisters, never reviews her production. Her attitude seems to be, "Well, that job's done. Let's forget it." The Duke of Wellington, you may remember, was built on much the same lines.

I have been advised by many that, considering the abundant success I have met with in the matter of eggs, I ought to extend my operations; and raise two chickens and do twice as well: or four chickens and do four times as well. There's nothing the matter with their arithmetic but they overlook the law of diminishing returns.

I admit that I've looked into the matter. So long as eggs remain America's favorite breakfast food it was not a suggestion to be treated lightly. And I learned things. The Department of Agriculture lists flocks of less than a hundred as backyard flocks, those of more than a hundred and less than five hundred as farm flocks, and those of more than 500 as commercial flocks. The average yield per pullet per month (the figuring was done some little time ago) was 12.59 for the backyard flock, 13.31 for the farm flock; and for the commercial flock 15.47. So you see that Henrietta may not be far wrong in considering that she is in a class by herself.

You'll have to take my word for the size and quality of her eggs. They are large and United States Special (the grades run down from United States Special, through United States Extra, United States Standard, United States Trades to United States Checks and Cracks.)

Wonders are worked by the study of heredity and environment. Capt. Ebenezer Longbow was telling me the other day of a chicken he knew that had the run of a Light street, Baltimore, saloon in pre-prohibition days. That chicken, he says, was so tough it laid nothing but hard-boiled eggs.

But I sort of doubt that story. I can't conceive of any hen being better than Henrietta, and the best she has done to date is a scrambled egg. I am, as you doubtless have begun to suspect, a one-chicken man. GRIF ALEXANDER.

The Nazis' Anger.

THE NAZIS will have to be patient with those of us who were a little confused by their anger at the Russians for passing sentence of death on Emil Stickling, their spy and saboteur. This German patriot wrecked some Russian coal mines, killing 16 men, and according to the Nazis' own custom in such cases, should have been executed. If a Russian had done likewise in Germany the Nazis government would have seized upon the incident as a foul blow at the Reich, and after a brisk trial the man would have been introduced to the courtly old-world figure in the full-dress suit, who would have spat on his hands and lopped the scoundrel's head off.

Barring their preference for the ax, which makes an unduly messy job of a ceremony which is difficult at best, the Germans would have been in the right, too. Even in this country anyone who willfully caused the death of 16 men might expect erasure. We experiment with bullets and little capsules which drop into a bucket producing a lethal gas, but our best efforts to invest legal executions with comfort, delicacy and nonchalance have failed thus far to conquer the inherent vulgarity of the rite. The Nazis recognize the impossibility of relieving such trying incidents and have gone to an extreme which not only is their privilege but an expression of their character.

• • • •

A MODE of execution which did not shed actual gore would seem evasive and not quite sincere in their eyes, so when they kill a man or woman they make death as disastrous as possible to the victim. The civilized races have given up trying to understand this trait of their nature, and even those studious experts who strive to comprehend have been unable to explain the Nazi. Like those occasional nut scientists who claim to have interpreted the grunts of pigs or the barks of dogs, they leave the superior races unconvinced and still wondering whether a Nazi is a human being because he looks like one or an animal because he acts the part.

The question being still open, it is too much to expect that the Nazis should show intelligent consistency in this matter of the death penalty for murder and sabotage. After all, there is very little difference between the Nazi German and the Communist Russian. Both scorn freedom, detest honesty, persecute manhood and deny reason. Their courts are fundamentally alike in the respect that they abhor truth, and the German assassin of the Russian miners was tried under conditions similar to those which a Russian murderer would have met in Germany.

Not only that, but the Russians, in this case, complied throughout with the very same procedure which the Germans follow in such matters and arrived at a sentence which the Nazis would duplicate under like circumstances. That is not the puzzle, however. The puzzle is how the Germans can find any ground for objecting to a verdict which does honor to their own beliefs and customs.

• • • •

THEY ARE a sensitive lot and find offense in the most curious distortions of innocent acts. Last week they were angry over the bestowal of the Nobel Prize on one of their favorite victims, and by a strange, unpredictable twist, arrived at the conclusion that this award was a rebuke to their beliefs and, therefore, an act of hostility to their country.

It gets very difficult to avoid giving offense to the Nazi state, and the Russians may have thought that the death sentence in this case was a pleasant gesture toward the Reich, indorsing, as it plainly did, the Nazis' own concept of things. And if it be true that the trial was a mockery then that, too, would only be pleasant flattery of the German method, for trials in Germany follow the same plan. Yet, for all this friendly indorsement of their own beliefs by a foreign nation, there was great indignation in Berlin, and the Russians hastily commuted the man's sentence to ten years.

In this country it would seem that the likeliest method of winning Hitler's friendship would be to jail up a few hundred of the export Nazis who extol Hitlerism, damn our democracy and strive to create dissension among Americans, for that is the Nazi way of it with troublesome foreigners in their own land. It might have the opposite effect, but we should, as they say in the State Department, explore every possibility.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Cares Of A President With A Big Family.

One son has gone du Pontish,
My daughter's man's with Hearst;
The ties I once thought binding
Are very quickly burst.

I have a dream recurrent—
It saddens me, alas!
It shows my Jim with Landon
In Kansas oil and gas.

Last night I had a nightmare—
It was the shock of shocks!
My wife had had an offer
To write for Col. Knox!

I have to watch each grandchild—
It gives me awful chills:
They might go to the Tribune
To work for Ogden Mills!

I guard the little dearies
For fear they'll up and flee
To study law with Davis
Or Reed or Bainbridge C.!

I keep my eyes on Sistie
And all the other kids
For all I know they're open
To almost any bids.

And how I fear for Buzzie!
My apprehension's great:
He might go in with Alfred
E. Smith in real estate!

The strain is very heavy—
It grows from day to day—
So many kin consider
My foes are quite okay!

Complications.

Mr. John Boettiger, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, has accepted a job as publisher of William Randolph Hearst's Seattle Post-Intelligencer, long a scene of newspaper strike disturbances. It would appear that the President is going to be in a tough spot hereafter when he feels like socking the Hearst press.

• • • •

And how is Mr. Boettiger going to feel when he arrives at the office some day and gets a wire from Mr. Hearst reading: "Roosevelt policies cockeyed stop begin series of attacks at once on raw deal!"

• • • •

One can almost imagine Mr. Roosevelt's giving this order the first thing each morning these days: "Get me the papers! I want to see which member of my family has gone over to the enemy since yesterday."

"Mrs. Jarrett in Swim Suit."—Headline. As usual.

Lean Christmas.

All this talk about a bonus
Is a lot of balonus;
I'll tell you how I know—
My boss just told me so.

Russia Faces Her Foes

Litvinoff Sees Soviet As Bulwark Of Democracy.

Scores Fascist Bloc In Spain And In Pacific.

Following are excerpts from an address by the People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs delivered at the All-Union Congress of Soviets in Moscow last week.

MAXIM LITVINOFF.

THE SOVIET UNION as the bulwark of democracy and freedom does not call for the organization of an international bloc for struggle against fascism which negates democracy and freedom. We as a state are not concerned with the internal Fascist regime of one or another country. But fascism is ceasing to be the internal affair of the countries professing it. Though, for many years, the struggle to spread fascism beyond the borders of Italy did not constitute an element in the foreign policy of Mussolini, this was changed after fascism, polished up with Nazi advice from Berlin, was fertilized with the theories of German national socialism.

As distinct from Italian fascism, German national socialism immediately after gaining a foothold in its own country transferred its activities also beyond its national borders. However this activity of fascism abroad does not scare us in the least degree. We shall easily cope with it on Soviet soil with our own forces and we shall not ask foreign assistance for the struggle against it and shall not conclude international alliances and agrements with this aim.

The activity of fascism abroad is more serious when it adopts such forms as in Spain, for instance. At present the result of the assistance rendered by Germany and Italy is that for several weeks hundreds and thousands of kilograms of explosive, incendiary bombs and shells have showered the beautiful capital of the Spanish people day and night, hundreds and thousands of peaceful citizens, women and children are being killed and crippled, chef d'oeuvres of architecture, painting and sculpture representing the treasury of all mankind are being destroyed. And this devastation is being wrought from German and Italian airplanes by the hands of German and Italian pilots. This work of destruction of the first united Germano-Italian Fascist international, this active collaboration will forever remain the most shameful page in the history of international relations, in the history of Europe.

Sympathy Expressed For Spanish Loyalists.

I AM CERTAIN that I express the sentiments of the entire congress if I say that at this moment when we are speaking of Spain our thoughts and feelings are full of ardent sympathy and admiration toward the heroic defenders of Madrid, the courageous fighters of the Spanish Republican army in their fierce battles with the forces of barbarism and vandalism.

Our enemies allege that we are striving to create a communist Soviet state in the Iberan peninsula which we intend to include in the Soviet Union. Such fairy tales are for little children and big fools and are of course circulated with a view to obscuring the true meaning of our real interest in Spanish events. In the case of Spain we are dealing with the first big sally of fascism beyond the limits of its home country, with an attempt forcibly to implant a Fascist regime in Spain from without. If this attempt succeeded there would be no guarantees against its repetition on a wider scale in regard to other states as well.

The point of departure must be the fact that fascism is not only a specific internal state regime, but that it simultaneously represents preparation for aggression, preparation for war against other states. What has been said is fully sufficient to explain the interest with which we, as a state which stands firmly for inviolable peace among nations, are following the attempts forcibly to implant fascism, the bearer of the idea of aggression, in other countries.

Fascism directs its warlike darts mainly against the Soviet state for the alleged reason that the ideas of communism, are professed there, but in reality because the Soviet Union in itself represents an object for the plundering cravings of fascism as well as an obstacle to its aggressive strivings in other directions. Not obtaining allies among members of the League of Nations which still adhere to the idea of collective security, fascism finding itself isolated turned toward those few countries which also pursue aggressive aims and concluded a bloc with them allegedly for the fight against "the international communist danger."

Fascist Bloc Contains Three Separate Nations.

FOR THE SAKE of preciseness I will note that the bloc which was formed is not a common one for three states but separately between Germany and Italy and between Germany and Japan. We have exact information that Italy proposed to Japan to conclude an agreement with her similar to the published part of the Japanese-German agreement. The authors of these international agreements for the struggle against communism evidently do not notice in what a ridiculous position they put themselves when they ask anyone really to believe in the ideological nature of these agreements.

Well-informed people refuse to believe that for the drawing up of the two scanty articles of the Japanese-German agreement which have been published it was necessary to conduct negotiations for 15 months; that on the Japanese side it was absolutely necessary to entrust these negotiations to an army general and on the German side to a super-diplomat, and that it was necessary to conduct these negotiations in an atmsophere of the strictest secrecy.

It is not surprising that suppositions are made that the Japano-German agreement was written in a special code. The Japanese militarists in Manchuria, for instance, understood the code in their own way and, breaking the lull which has reigned on the Soviet-Manchurian border for a considerable time, they made two raids on Soviet territory within two days with sizable forces. They did not take into account that the Berlin agreement would not in the least degree prevent the Soviet Far Eastern army from giving them the same reply as it gave before to similar raids.

Let us believe that the Japanese militarists realized this when, after the raids, they counted the number of wounded they carried off and the number of corpses and weapons they left on Soviet territory. We hope that in spite of the Berlin agreement the Japanese militarists in Manchuria will not forget the convincing request of the Far Eastern army "to choose more distant lanes for their promenades."

Japanese-German Pact Seen Fuller Than Known.

AS REGARDS the published Japanese-German agreement, it is only camouflage for another agreement which was simultaneously discussed and initialed and in all probability signed but which has not been published and is not intended for publication. I assert, conscious of all responsibility for my words, that the negotations carried on for 15 months between the Japanese military attache and the German superdiplomat were devoted precisely to elaboration of this secret document wherein the word communism was not even mentioned.

The recent activity in Fascist countries has exposed, among other things, all the hypocrisy and falsity of certain of their political declarations and slogans—pretending to represent their program. Thus German fascism asserted that in principle it is against any international alliances and combinations except non-aggression pacts, and even these are to be concluded only with neighboring states. It concluded an agreement, and by no means a non-aggression agreement, with Japan which is tens of thousands of kilometers away and separated from it by several states. German fascism swore that it adhered to the principle of localization of war. The agreement with Japan has the tendency to spread war arising on one continent to at least two, if not more, continents.

Following the Abyssinian expedition Italian fascism declared that its territorial appetite was completely satisfied and that it was prepared henceforth to collaborate in the stabilization of peace, but now it has joined in the system of aggressive agreements. Neither will anything be gained for the Japanese government's reputation for sincerity. Tokyo assured us that it was striving toward the establishment of peaceful relations with the Soviet Union and caused us for this purpose to take steps to meet its desires in settling certain disputable questions in which it is interested. Now it has concluded a secret aggressive agreement with Germany.

The Japanese government also assured us that the nonaggression pact proposed to it is still under discussion and could be concluded after all the controversial questions were settled and now it has made the conclusion of such pacts dependent upon Germany's consent to this, lessening the independence of its foreign policy.

• • • •

THE ANTI-DEMOCRATIC Fascist aggressive countries have had their say. They have said they do not want to participate in common international collaboration for the organization of peace, for insuring security for all peoples. They fling challenge after challenge to peaceful and, first of all, to democratic peoples. It is now up to these peoples to speak. The U. S. S. R. sees no reasons to change its policy, which was, is and will be a policy of peace. The U. S. S. R. desires this peace for itself and for other peoples and therefore offered them its collaboration.

It awaits from others not words about peace but action in organizing this peace. The Soviet Union, however, does not beg to enter any alliance, any blocs nor any combinations. It calmly leaves to other states to weigh and evaluate the benefit which can be derived in the interests of peace from close collaboration with the U. S. S. R. and to understand that the Soviet Union can give more than receive.

The conclusion of the agreements of which we spoke today changes nothing in the actual state of affairs. Danger does not lie in treaties nor in signatures under them, but in the existence of states having governments which build their foreign policy on the spurning of peace, on principles of aggression and plunder and which are striving to seize everything that is not well guarded. This does not frighten us, however, because we have nothing that is not well guarded.

Other states and other possessions found themselves in the greatest danger. Our security does not depend upon paper documents and upon combinations abroad. The Soviet Union is sufficiently strong itself and this strength will increase still further when it is consolidated by the new excellent cement which the new constitution being submitted to this congress represents.

We are convinced that if the day should come when our army and navy should be forced to rise to defend the fatherland, then military Stakhanovism, multiplied by the enthusiasm aroused under such circumstances, will show the world an example of boundless courage and heroism unheard of in the history of all times and nations. The Soviet Union will stand and proudly tower as an impregnable fortress against which the turbid waves of the rea of frenzied fascism will be broken. This conviction grows still stronger in our minds when we realize that the administration of this fortress and its keys are in the hands of such a commander as our glorious great leader, Stalin.

RFC Paid Loan Of $16,858,950 By N.Y. Central

000,000 to the Great Northern Railroad to meet a like amount of 7 per cent bonds that matured July 1, 1936. A new 4 per cent issue, he said, was taken almost entirely by the stockholders of the road, and the little remaining was subscribed privately.

Commitments and conditional commitments to railroads now aggregate $39,223,250.

Subpenas Issued.

Meanwhile, two other Government bodies were turning their attention to the railroads. The Senate committee in charge of the railway financing investigation issued subpenas for four "key men" in the organization built up by the late Van Sweringen brothers. The committee also subpenaed records of the Mid-America Corporation, Van Sweringen holding company. The officials were ordered to appear Monday.

Three days later the Interstate Commerce Commission will open a hearing on the petition of the railroads for a temporary continuation of freight surcharges which expire December 31. The railroads have asked that the charges be continued until the commission acts on their request for increased rates.

Witnesses called by the Senate committee, which is headed by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, are George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind., banker and glass manufacturer; George A. Tomlinson, Cleveland industrialist; John P. Murphy, of Cleveland, secretary of Mid-America Corporation, and Thomas H. Jones, Cleveland railway attorney. Ball and Tomlinson have been described as "heirs of the Van Sweringen empire." They are reported to have obtained control of the properties some time ago when the Van Sweringen brothers were in difficulties. O. P. Van Sweringen died last week. His brother, M. J., died less than a year ago.

Aims of Inquiry.

Wheeler indicated the inquiry would begin with an examination of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, one of the many Van Sweringen lines. Later it is expected that the inquiry will go into the affairs of 24 other railroads. The object, it was explained, was to learn how financiers obtain control of roads by spending relatively little money. The hearing may lead to recommendations for legislation more rigidly regulating rail financing.

Members of the committee, besides the chairman, are Senators Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky; Wagner (Democrat), of New York; Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota; Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, and White (Republican), of Maine.

RFC Chairman Jones suggested, meanwhile, that Congress might turn its attention to another phase of railroad legislation, the rewriting of the law covering reorganization.

Law Of Nations

By Barnet Nover

A Casualty Of The Crisis.

NOT LEAST among the casualties in the Spanish and other recent crises has been international law.

To say that it has disappeared altogether would, of course, be a gross exaggeration. It is no new development for nations that are determined to advance their interests without scruples as to cost or methods, to honor international law only in the breach. But, despite these buffetings, international law has survived both as an ideal and as an actual guide of conduct in the relations between sovereign states. Very likely it will even survive the present world turmoil and the growing tendency, manifested by one nation after another, to revert to jungle methods. Yet there can be no doubt that the law of nations has suffered some very severe blows of late and is reeling from the impact.

Before this year, for instance, it was a clearly understood principle of international law that aid given by one nation to a rebellious movement in another nation was tantamount to an act of war. It was, however, entirely proper for one government to permit aid to be sent to a friendly power imperiled by an uprising within its borders.

• • • •

LAST SUMMER, however, because Paris and London governments feared that Germany, Italy and Portugal would pay no attention to this principle, but would overtly or covertly aid the rebels, France proposed a general non-intervention agreement.

The purpose behind this suggestion was admirable. It was designed to prevent the Spanish conflict from developing into a world war. By agreeing, despite its own unconcealed sympathies for the Madrid regime, to refrain from aiding the Spanish government, France hoped to persuade Russia to do likewise and to persuade the Fascist powers from aiding the rebels.

The proposal was accepted and for the first time in history a regularly constituted government and an element seeking to overthrow it were given equal, if negative, treatment by outside powers presumably acting in concert.

This may prove an extremely important precedent. If it becomes the settled policy of nations toward ditsurbances taking place outside their borders, it may encourage disruptive elements in politically unstable nations to revolutionary activities.

• • • •

ANOTHER ASPECT of international law which has been dealt a body blow recently is that having to do with recognition. It has always been a practice of governments sooner or later to recognize a de facto regime in another nation, even if that regime came into being through revolutionary means. But governments seeking recognition have always had to pass certain tests.

They have had to prove that they were actually in possession of the instruments of power in the nation and the machinery of enforcement; that they were in a position to maintain order, provide adequate protection to foreigners within their jurisdiction and live up to their international duties.

Sometimes, to be sure, governments have disagreed among themselves as to whether a certain regime actually possessed such qualifications. This was the case in the postwar attitude of the outside world toward Russia. Even now there are certain nations that continue to have no formal dealings with the Moscow government. But there is no example in past history that provides a precedent for the obviously premature recognition given by Italy and Germany to the rebel junta. This occurred at a time when the rebels were not in control of the capital and when a good part of Spain, including some of the leading industrial cities, were in the hands of the loyalists.

As pointed out in a recent editorial in The Post, it was almost as though Great Britain and France, at the time of the American Civil War, had recognized the Richmond government not merely as the government of the Confederacy, but as the legitimate government of the whole United States. Indeed, the action of Italy and Germany is tantamount to declaring President Azana, Premier Caballero and their colleagues as rebels fighting against the legal authorities headed by Gen. Franco.

Nothing more fantastic has happened in the history of nations in our times. And to make confusion worse confounded, Germany and Italy have declared that they still consider themselves parties to the non-intervention agreement.

• • • •

THERE WOULD have been far less objection to the course taken by the Fascist powers had they simply recognized the rebels as belligerents, as the Confederacy was recognized by France and Great Britain. When an insurrection which has a political purpose behind it assumes the proportions of a civil war it can no longer be treated simply as an insurgent movement. Indeed, the non-intervention agreement itself, by placing the rebels and the loyalists on a par, so far as the nonshipment of arms to Spain was concerned, did by implication give belligerent status to the Burgos junta.

If Franco carries out his threat to blockade Valencia and Barcelona, the question of giving or withholding belligerent status to the rebels will arise in acute form. Should Great Britain and France withhold such recognition rebel ships interfering with British and French shipping entering loyalist harbors could be regarded by those nations as commiting acts of piracy.

Since there is every reason to believe that a rebel blockade of Spain's eastern coast would have the support of the Fascist powers, indeed, could hardly be carried out without such support, such an attitude on the part of the democratic powers might lead to the very collision they are so eager to avert.

There is every reason to believe, therefore, that if and when the blockade of Valencia and Barcelona is undertaken by the rebels, Franco will be given belligerent status by Paris and London. And in so doing they would recognize the right of the rebels to board and search neutral ships on the high seas and confiscate contraband presumably intended for the loyalists.

But what is contraband? In the old days, when war was a much simpler matter than it is today, contraband was clearly defined. It was war material and nothing else. But the World War saw a vast extension of the scope of the term and today it can reasonably be argued that everything needed not only by the armies in the field but also by the civilian population comes under the head of munitions.

Such terms as "belligerent," "blockade," "contraband," may in the past have had a fairly precise meaning. Now that they are again finding their way into news columns and government dispatches it is anything but clear that they still mean what they once did or that their redefinition will be based on past precedents.

With regard to these and many other matters the law of nations is in a state of flux and confusion. For international law rests perforce on the understanding that nations, in their dealings with one another, are prepared to accept rules and regulations not always in harmony with their own immediate interests.

What has been happening in the world during the past few years shows that this is anything but true. Present-day international law is being written with the bayonet.

Britain To Canada?

There must be few Englishmen who have not said to one another in the past few years, after reading of some fresh horror or threat of it, in Europe: "If only we could push England a further thousand miles into the Atlantic, out of the way of all these madmen, their menaces and entanglement!" . . . Well, that, in a sense, is what a great imperial statesman would attempt, and, no doubt, be able, because of his boldness to achieve. Just as the Emperor Constantine, with superb foresight, moved Rome out of harm's way to Byzantium, and thus preserved the Roman empire for a further span of a thousand years, so would a great English leader find the courage to leave England and move the imperial capital across the Atlantic to Canada.

First Ten Months Of Trade Agreement With U. S. Show Enlargement Of Commerce Between Neighboring Nations.

By William Marchington.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

THE TRADE AGREEMENT between Canada and the United States, which was negotiated a year ago, became effective on January 1, 1936, and the results of its first ten months of operation are now available for examination. They reveal that during this period there has been a substantial enlargement of the trade exchanges between the two countries. Data compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that Canada's total exports to the United States were valued at $320,455,806 as compared with a value of $286,574,890 during the parallel period of 1935. This represents a gain of roughly $34,000,000 or about 12 per cent; imports from the United States were valued at 301,845,870 as compared wih $262,336,773, a gain of $39,500,000 or about 15 per cent.

In the exports some of the largest gains were in commodities such as newsprint, wood pulp and nickel, which were previously on the free list and have remained so; but full justification for the treaty in the eyes of its Canadian sponsors can be found in the figures for commodities covered by it. The hopes that the pact would benefit the cattle industry of Canada are being realized, for although an increase in exports of dairy cattle from 5,011 to 6,669 is comparatively small, the exports of beef cattle weighing between 175 and 700 pounds have more than doubled as they rose from 103,041 valued at $5,052,670 to 214,801 valued at $7,877,594. It can be noted that the price per head of the value of these cattle exports has fallen sharply. The reason is that owing to the damage done to pastures and water supplies in the ranching districts of western Canada, scores of ranchers reduced their stocks and got rid of the surplus which they could not hope to keep through the winter at bargain counter prices. As a result there has been a drastic slump in cattle prices in Canada and it would have been much worse if a freer market in the United States had not been available. So the pact is helping to tide the cattle raisers of western Canada through a difficult period.

Horse ranchers are also getting benefits from the pact beyond what they expected. Exports of horses have risen from 5,009 to 15,782 and in this case the effect has been to raise the price of horses substantially in Canada. The dairy farmers of eastern Canada are also delighted with the fruits of the treaty, as Canada's southward exports of cheese have climbed from 3,302 cwts. valued at $58,680 to 108,635 cwts. valued at $1,484,386, a gain of more than 30-fold. Exports of cream which amounted to the trivial quantity of 7 gallons in January-October, 1935, have risen to 19,310 gallons valued at $26,879. There has also been a spectacular increase in the exports of maple sugar which are valued at $995,154, as compared with $217,309 in the previous parallel period.

Farmers Of Quebec Enjoy Large Benefits.

The chief beneficiaries of these three last increases are the farmers of the eastern townships of Quebec which are the part of Canada nearest to the New England market and the marked revival of prosperity which is visible in this region is attributed in a large measure to the trade pact. The potato growers of the maritime provinces are also profiting. In October alone the exports of seed potatoes to the United States amounted to 58,571 bushels valued at $84,314 whereas last October only 4,223 bushels of all kinds of Canadian potatoes were exported to the United States.

The fishermen of these some provinces are also finding better markets in the United States. The value of the exports of fresh and frozen halibut has risen from $221,427 to $373,308 and of fresh and frozen salmon from $59,642 to $78,750.

In various lines of forestry products there has been a substantial gain in exports. For example, the value of softwood planks and boards exported has jumped in this period from $6,465,823 to $9,406,795 and of hardwood planks and boards from $500,379 to $1,103,997 and of laths from $527,951 to $732,534. The mining industry of Canada is similarly benefiting in various directions, although many of Canada's minerals were already on the American free lists. Of minerals affected by the treaty, exports of feldspar have grown to a value of $68,565, as compared with $43,342, and of lime from $39,825 to $84,054.

Whiskey distillers of Canada had pinned high hopes on the tariff concessions to open up a profitable channel for the disposal of their huge accumulated stocks of matured whisky, but they have not been realized to the full extent expected. It is true that exports of Canadian whisky in the ten-month period amounted to 3,484,911 gallons, valued at $15,921,150, as compared with 1,536,932 gallons, valued at $8,624,906, but this makes only a small inroad upon the total Canadian stocks of matured whisky which were estimated at the time of the signing of the treaty at at least 25,900,000 gallons.

Very few Canadian manufacturers have got any benefits from the treaty, but the makers of skates increased their expots in the ten-month period from 7,947 pairs, valued at $106,867 to 72,400, valued at $186,895, which means that the cheaper types of Canadian skates are finding their way into the American market.

Cattle And Fishing Industries Show Gain.

THE GENERAL CONCLUSION to be drawn is that while a substantial proportion of the increment can fairly be attributed to the general revival of business which is under way on the North American continent and to the resulting improvement in prices, the lowering of the American tariff barriers against a number of important Canadian products has already proved a valuable boon to various Canadian interests and has been specially useful to industries like cattle raising and fishing, which were badly depressed.

Moreover, the gain in exports of commodities is really much larger than the official trade figures show, because, owing to the policy of the Bank of Canada in holding gold in its vaults earmarked for the United States instead of allowing it to be shipped across the boundary, exports of gold from Canada in the ten-month period were only $50,000,000 as compared with $74,000,000 in the previous parallel period.

On the import side, detailed figures for separate commodities are not yet available for the whole 10 months, but an analysis of earlier returns shows that American exporters to the Canadian market have made their greatest gains in the following lines: Fresh fruits and vegetables, a wide range of machinery and implements, like tractors, radios, refrigerators, furniture, cotton and rayon piece goods, electrical apparatus, electroplated ware, automobile parts, periodicals, advertising pamphlets and various paper products.

Inevitably such Canadian manufacturers as are finding their businesses adversely affected by more severe competition from the United States are loud in their complaints about the injustice of the treaty and the Conservative papers and politicians are continually trying to prove that it was a bad bargain for Canada. The November issue of the Canadian, which is the monthly propagandist organ of the Conservative Party, submits the results of the treaty to critical analysis and delivers this verdict:

There are some good features to the Canadian-United States trade agrement. At best, however, it remains a pitifully imperfect arrangement. When Premier King tries to represent it as something ranking with or even dwarfing the empire trade agreements negotiated by the late Conservative government he is relying either upon the redoubtable power of Liberal propaganda or upon the failure of any other agency to acquaint the people with the true facts.

2 Gang Suspects To Be Brought To City Today

Alleged Bandits, Arrested in N. Carolina, Will Be Returned Here.

Two alleged members of the "boots and spurs" bandit gang, indicted here last week in a robbery and wanted for holdups and the kidnaping of a Fort Myer sentry, were on their way here from Winston-Salem, N. C., last night.

The men, Paul Berger, 18, and John Joseph Kurz, 19, were arrested in Kernersville, N. C., Sunday night, according to a telegram received here yesterday by Chief of Detectives Bernard W. Thompson.

Thompson said he had only meager details of the capture, made by Police Chief F. D. Marshall, of Kernersville. The wire mentioned that attention was attracted to the youths when a dog in their car began to bark while it was parked on a side street.

Held on Other Counts.

In the arrest notice, Thompson stated, Marshall said the youths were held, Kurz for being intoxicated and Berger for carrying a concealed weapon. Their identity was not disclosed until they had been locked up, it was said.

The prisoners, it is said, were companions of William Nelson Beck, 21, whom police said has confessed to being the leader of a gang of bandits, dressed in riding habits, who have created a minor reign of terror among trysting couples in local parks and are accused of the abduction of Frank Ayers, 20, sentry at the Virginia Army post.

Beck was seized at his father's home, 839 C street southwest, Friday. He is being held incommunicado by detectives.

Indicted Two Weeks Ago.

The trio was indicted for the robbery of the New Hampshire Market, in the 1600 block T street northwest, two weeks ago. Since that time they are accused by police of the robbery of three couples in parked cars and Ayers kidnaping.

Thompson yesterday dispatched Detective Sergt. Elmer Lewis and E. E. Thompson to Winston-Salem to bring back the youths. Waiving extradition, they were reported en route here by automobile to be questioned, it was said.

It was revealed yesterday that Beck, at the time of his arrest, was out on bond of $1,000 on two charges. Beck, it was said, has been indicted by a grand jury in a grand larceny case and was released on $500. He also was at liberty under $500 on a charge of being a fugitive from justice in Ashville, N. C., police stated.

Princess Charged With Killing Mate

Mexico City, Nov. 30 (AP).—Princess Concetta Leone de Nigeratze, 35, was charged today with killing her husband, the Georgian Prince Vladimir Nigeratze, because she "couldn't bear the idea of losing him."

The princess, mother of two children, was hysterical in the Mexico City Central Jail, attendants reported, and threatened to kill herself.

Police quoted Leo B. Granroos, Finnish vice consul, in describing the slaying which they said Granroos told them he witnessed.

Granroos was quoted as having said he and the prince went for an after-dinner stroll Saturday night. Suddenly shots rang out and the prince pitched to the pavement. Granroos, the police said, disarmed the princess and held her until police arrived.

Police said Granroos told them the princess asked him to act as an intermediary to bring about a reconciliation with her husband, from whom she separated last September.

Shrinking Man Gains On Diet and Calcium

Minneapolis, No. 30 (AP).—The "shrinking man" of Minneapolis—52-year-old Hans Nelson—cheerfully pointed to a 15-pound gain in weight as evidence today that he is making a comeback. The shrunken painter, victim of the bone disease ostiamalacia, dwindled from 5 feet 10 inches to 5 feet and from 190 pounds to 140 in 13 years.

Corrective dieting and injections of calcium at the University of Minnesota Hospital have enabled him to throw off that "tired feeling," he said, and resume normal human pursuits.

Women Voters Sponsor Publication To Study U. S. Foreign Policy Setup

Mrs. Anne H. Johnstone, Head of Book, Cites Needs for Data.

"No other governmental policy can affect the individual more intimately than that of foreign policy," Mrs. Anne Hartwell Johnstone, author of a new publication, a guide to study foreign policy, which will be issued today by the League of Women Voters, declared in outlining objectives of the publication.

"If foreign policies lead to war," Mrs. Johnstone continued, "personal freedom is sharply curtailed, families are broken up, individual economic pursuits are interrupted; social, educational and economic progress become secondary considerations, and all national activity is geared to war.

"The State Department's work for peace can be strengthened through more adequate appropriations. Salaries should be sufficiently high to make ability, not independent wealth, the determining factor in the appointment and promotion of men in all parts of the department's work and in the foreign service. Another need for funds is for publication and wider distribution of official department papers and releases to keep the public better informed."

In her article Mrs. Johnstone places particular stress on the economic aspects of international peace. She writes: "Today in spite of the Administration promotion of a reciprocal trade program and recent moves toward currency stabilization, the country has still to make a decision whether to actively support economic co-operation or to forego such co-operation in favor of economic nationalism."

League leaders declare the success of American democracy requires a wider understanding among individual citizens of long-time foreign issues as well as spectacular current developments. Two events, the Inter-American Conference in Buenos Aires and the civil war in Spain, particularly emphasizes this theory at the present time.

As a supplementary movement to the foreign policy study, league officials are urging members to acquire an understanding of tariff and reciprocal trade agreements and have issued a "study kit" for this purpose. The "kit" contains a full review of the trade agreement situation, and serves to prepare league membership for support of anticipated trade agreement renewal legislation in Congress this session.

Man in Bribery Case Declines To Defend Self

F. M. Kearney Stands Mute When Called to Plead; Nolan Fights Charge.

Frances M. Kearney, indicted with William J. Nolan, local automobile dealer on a charge of bribery in connection with the disappearance of two witnesses in a divorce suit in which Nolan was interested, yesterday pleaded "nolo contendere" when he and Nolan were placed on trial in District Court. The plea, an unusual one for this jurisdiction, was translated to mean that Kearney wished neither to plead guilty nor not guilty. It left him standing subject to sentence, but without a formal plea on his part.

Meantime, Nolan, represented by George D. Horning and Rudolph Yetaman, attorney, began a determined defense against the Government's charge that he, through Kearney, gave Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, witnesses in a suit brought by Mrs. Alice M. Nolan against her husband, two automobile tires and $50 in cash to leave the city only a short time before the divorce case was to have been heard. Mrs. Nolan was later awarded a limited divorce.

Assistant United States Attorneys Walter M. Shea and John W. Fielly said they would attempt to show the Youngs had been subpoenaed as witnesses for Mrs. Nolan when they were persuaded to leave town. At the time, Kearney was associated with Nolan in the automobile business.

Henry I. Quinn, a member of the bar, and Mrs. Nolan's attorney, was the first witness. In addition to being a lawyer he is a member of the Board of Education, and his testimony simply showed he accompanied the deputy marshal when he served the Youngs with papers calling for their appearance in court. Quinn asserted he hoped to show by the Youngs that Nolan had rented an apartment in the 1800 block of Massachusetts avenue northwest, where he was seen with women other than his wife.

Mrs. Mary Pierce Rites to Be Today

She was born in Rosendale, Wis., the daughter of a pioneer family who had gone to the West from Maine while Wisconsin was still a Territory. She taught school for a time and then moved to Clearlake, Iowa, where she lived until the death of her husband, Charles E. Pierce, in 1898.

3 Firms Plan Worker Bonus For Christmas

Hotel, Two Stores to Share Year's Prosperity With Employes.

A bright Christmas was in prospect for employes of Lansburgh & Bro., Erlebacher, Inc., and the Hotel Harrington yesterday as officials of all three establishments announced that Christmas bonuses would be paid within a few weeks.

Payment of the Lansburgh bonus was announced by Ralph L. Goldsmith, general manager of the store, at a meeting of employes.

Distribution of the bonus will be made at the store December 21. The amounts will vary according to the employe's length of service. Those with over ten years' service will receive the largest amount, while proportionate sums will go to those who have served from three to ten years, one to three years, six months to a year and under six months. Smaller sums will be paid to several hundred temporary workers engaged for the holiday season.

Before leaving Washington yesterday for a trip to the Pacific Coast and to the Orient, Mrs. E. Erlebacher Frank, president of Erlebacher, Inc., declared a bonus would be given to her employes in appreciation of their services during the year. The bonus will be paid December 14.

Asserting that 1936 had been "one of the best years in the history of the hotel's operation," Augustus Gumpert, manager of the Hotel Harrington, said yesterday that all employes would receive a Christmas bonus of five per cent of their total annual salary. The bonus will be paid December 12.

They met to select a successor to O. P. Van Sweringen, president of Midamerica, who died a week ago.

Court Opens Inquiry Of Cafe 'Shakedowns'

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—Investigation into an alleged $2,000,000-a-year "shakedown" racket in the restaurant business took on a Nation-wide aspect today when Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook announced he would appoint commissions to take the testimony of restaurant union officials in Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The testimony will be read into the record of the trial, starting January 4, of 15 defendants who have been indicted on charges of fomenting strikes among restaurant employes when their employers refused to meet the money demands.

Here's Simple Way to Ease a Cold

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.
2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in ½ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

Two Bayer Aspirin Tablets—A Full Glass of Water—That's All

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat fever, and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will act as a medicinal gargle to provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain. It is really marvelous; for it acts like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's— not for "aspirin" alone.

A prominent star of former days, who is not at all proud but whose name I will not reveal nevertheless, showed me this note from his dentist: "Sir; Unless you get your teeth into a good part soon you can send them back. They are not paid for."

Sir Guy Standing tells it on himself. He attended a theater and sat behind a tiny miss who kept turning to stare in his face. In the lobby, the little one stepped up to ask, "Aren't you Sir Guy Standing?" He acknowledged the recognition. "I've seen your pictures," said his admirer. "I go to the movies three or four times a week." Thinking to be pleasant he said, "Aren't you rather young to go out so often?" The little lady drew herself up to her full 4 feet, and for the first time Sir Guy got a good look at her face. "I'm over 30," she snapped. She was a midget, and Standing says within 2 seconds he felt just her size.

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for Queen Mary's place in the coronation procession. A sad parade it will be for the stately Queen, who was ever more formal than her deceased husband and who allegedly guided his diplomatic gestures. One of the royal carriage footmen, who was present when the rulers rode in the Jubilee parade, is the authority for this legend: During the ride Mary kept saying: "Now, George, look out and bow to the left . . . George, be sure and salute the soldiers there . . . Smile over there, George" . . . The King, after a few minutes of this, turned to her and allegedly said: "Mary, one more piece of advice from you—and I'll get out and walk."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Concert by the Kedov Vocal Quartet (I. K. Denisov, T. F. Kasakov, T. F. Kasakov, N. N. Kedrov and K. E. Kaidanov) in the Mayflower Hotel Sunday night. Program: "A Pine Tree Stands So Lonesomely," "May Morning" (Sokolov), "Complaint" (Chaikovski), "Serenade" (Borodin), "Caucasian Song," "Lullaby" (Cherepnin), "Orientale" (Cui), "Persian Song" (Rubinstein), "Summer Evening" (Mozart), "Lullaby" (Abt), and numerous folk songs.

That peculiar and inimitable quality which characterizes the Russian male chorus is possessed by this vocal foursome in miniature. They use their voices skillfully with a fine blending of tones which at times approximates the effect of instrumental timbres, and their intonation leaves nothing to be desired as to accuracy. Sunday night's audience, which nearly filled the garden room of the Mayflower Hotel, found its greatest enjoyment in the folk songs, demanding repetitions and extra numbers.

In the songs of the Russian people, the singers manifested a spontaneity and a naturalness that contrasted with their treatment of the more formal compositions on their program. Their restraint under the classic rules, however, was always artistic and satisfying in its dynamic accents and molding of phrases. But the folk songs went with a swing and a spirit that whetted the appetite.

Perhaps their most remarkable feat of imitative vocalism was in "The Bells of Novgorod," where the attack of the singers simulated the clang and resonance of metal on metal. This resemblance of timbres extended even to the vibratory effect of interference in sound waves. There were other niceties of tonal adjustment in the work of the quartet, which is an excellent exponent of vocal chamber music.

Washington's Civic Theater Launches a New Drive; Laughton in "Rembrandt" Tomorrow—RKO-Keith's

Six Hundred New Members Are Sought by Civic Group; 'Rembrandt' Revives 'Henry VIII' Combination; Mr. Berger Sends Telegram That Saves Sleep; Gielgud Coming to Capital in 'Hamlet.'

WITH two successful productions already to its credit, the newly organized Washington Civic Theater today is launching a two-week, intensive campaign to bring its membership up to the quota set at the beginning of its season. Six hundred new members are needed to attain this goal.

BELL.

The membership of the Civic Theater has been divided into three units for the purposes of this campaign. The general membership unit is headed by Robert W. Wilson, vice president, with a quota of 400. Under Mr. Wilson's general supervision will be eight division chairmen who will have teams of ten members each. These teams will operate through individual solicitation and through various interested organizations.

A second unit is set up within the production group of the theater. These are the members actively engaged in putting on the plays. Under the leadership of Yvonne Kusher, the Cleopatra of the theater's first production of Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," this group will work for 200 memberships. There are 22 team captains in this group and every member of the production group is assigned to one or another of the teams.

The third unit is headed by Oliver Gasch. This unit will work for 40 additional patron and sustaining memberships of $25, $50 and $100 each.

The regular full-season memberships, entitling the holders to eight admissions during the season, still are being sold. Special rates are being quoted those who wish to subscribe for the six remaining plays, only. Both forms of membership are on the "strip ticket" plan, permitting the holder to divide the admissions among the remaining plays as he chooses.

When this final drive shall have reached its goal—as it assuredly will—Washington's Civic Theater will be completely underwritten for its first season.

The next production of this new progressive group will be Robert Emmett Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest," in which Leslie Howard starred on both stage and screen. This will be given from December 16 to 19, inclusive, in Wardman Park Theater, vice "Noah" originally announced as the next attraction.

Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, takes his westernunion on his lap to advise that Charles Laughton in "Rembrandt" will open on Fifteenth street tomorrow, succeeding the film version of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset." "Rembrandt" was directed by Alexander Korda, thus perpetuating the directorial and acting combination that made so overwhelming a success of "The Private Life of Henry VIII." Adding to the luster of the occasion are Gertrude Lawrence and Elsa Lanchester, in private life Mrs. Charles Laughton, as everybody must know by now.

Miss Lawrence, one scarcely need be reminded, was last seen in Washington a scant ten days ago with Noel Coward in "Tonight at 8:30," his cycle of nine one-act plays that ran for two weeks at the National to phenomenal business.

The motion picture houses in the Capital also featuring stage bills as part of their regular programs frequently have difficulty in booking acts from Buffalo and Boston because of the length of the jumps and the likelihood that the performer will not be able to arrive in time to make the first Friday morning show. That has been topped by the latest hitch in the Earle Theater's plans for the bill opening on the stage this Friday.

One of the features of that bill was to have been Bob Ripa, one of the most extraordinary jugglers on the boards. This Scandinavian youth is probably the contemporary theater's single miracle of mental and muscular co-ordination. Well, Mr. Ripa cabled Guy Wonders at the Earle yesterday that he would be unable to make the first Friday morning show at the Earle because he had missed his boat in Copenhagen!

Now, I ask you, is that a record, or is that a record?

Mr. Ripa's place on the bill will be taken by the Andersens, a "perch" act—if you know what that is.

On Monday, December 7, in its handsome quarters in the Willard Hotel, the Variety Club of Washington will hold its annual meeting and election of officers. The terms of office of the following members of the board of governors expire this year: Lou Rome, Sam Wheeler, Harry Brown, Harry Hunter and W. E. S. Wilcox. Active members are to be elected to fill these vacancies.

The following governors each have another year to serve: Carter Barron, A. Julian Brylawski, John J. Payette, Rudolph Berger, Sam Galanty and Joseph P. Morgan. All resident members are eligible to vote and are urged to be present at 1 p. m. to cast their ballots. No guests will be entertained on this occasion, the official meeting being for members only.

Guthrie McClintic has extended the New York engagement of John Gielgud in "Hamlet" until December 19, in the Empire Theater, due to the demand for tickets. There has not been an empty seat in the theater for the past several weeks.

The plan now is for Mr. Gielgud and his company, in which Judith Anderson is the featured feminine member, to make a brief tour beginning at Christmas to include Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia and Boston, before he returns to London in February.

There has been some question as to the exact playing date at the National here, owing to the fact that the house is so fully booked as to make an open week doubtful. That contingency, however, will be taken care of in due course.

There was another wire yesterday, too—from Rudy Berger, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—a shrinking declaration couched in these modest terms: "Dear Nelson: That noise you hear is Leo roaring happily over his latest creation, 'Born to Dance.' Just saw this melodic opus and am as enthusiastic as those 25,000,000 who voted Roosevelt. Eleanor Powell excels her former screen efforts and definitely proves herself a star. The picture is saturated with Cole Porter song hits and gay comedy. Pretentious settings and a carload of stars will prove to you that 'Born to Dance' was born to entertain."

• • • •

In-the-Arms-of-Orpheus Note.

Thanks, Rudy, now I won't have to go to your screening today in the middle of the night at 1:30 p. m., but can roll over and pound the old ear for another two hours. Boy, what a pal you are!

The genius of the late Victor Herbert for rousing chorals and rich orchestrations was reasserted in the National Theater last night when the Messrs. Shubert presented Ilse Marvenga and Robert Shafer, supported by a vocally proficient ensemble in a surprisingly colorful and complete revival of "Naughty Marietta."

Presented first in the Capital on the same stage in the neighborhood of a quarter of a century ago, with Emma Trentini and the late Orville Harrold in the principal roles, this perennial old favorite still retains all of the melodious charm, variety of score and substantial "book" that made it one of the "smash" hits of the year of its original production. It still is a smash hit, even to those who have heard it sung times without number.

Recognizes No Date.

It will no doubt be contended that the libretto contrived by Rida Johnson Young is distinctly dated as of an era in the theater that long since has become antiquated. To some extent this may be true. It is equally true of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas and all of the other surviving light operatic works that have come down from earlier generations. It is played before "scenery" instead of "drapes," it is costumed in the period of 1780 in New Orleans, and deals with characters and episodes that seem a little strange to present day audiences, perhaps, but it nevertheless possesses those sturdier virtues of picturesque characters, worthy story and matchless score that acknowledge no date and surrender to the predilections of no particular generation.

Having been sung in revival, from time to time, for 25 years or more, and on the screen by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy comparatively recently, there is no need now to recapitulate the romantic tale of the masquerading runaway countess from Italy who reaches New Orleans disguised as one of a shipload of casquette girls sent out by the King of France to provide wives for the pioneer settlers in the New World, her wooing by Capt. Richard Warrington and the treachery of the Lieutenant Governor's son, who conducts a profitable sideline in piracy and buccaneering. There is every element of comic opera interest in the romance, as everyone knows by now.

Principals Sing Well.

The principal roles on this occasion are splendidly sung by Ilse Marvenga and Robert Shafer, as Marietta and Capt. Warrington. Neither voice is of heavy dramatic caliber, but both are extremely agreeable and bring full justice to the many melodic gems in the score.

Miss Marvenga's best numbers, of course, are "Naughty Marietta," the "Italian Street Song" and "Little Marionette;" Mr. Shafer's "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and "I'm Falling in Love With Someone." Together they sing effectively "It Never, Never Can Be Love" and that most beautiful of all the score's lilting numbers, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life."

Vocal honors, however, are not monopolized by Miss Marvenga and Mr. Shafer. Bartlett Simmons, cast as Etienne, the Governor's son with the piratical avocation, scores with perhaps the best voice in the cast in "A Soldier's Love" and Dean Dickens, an excellent mezzo, achieves a notable success in "Underneath the Southern Moon."

Comedy Not Slighted.

Harry K. Morton and Violet Carlson are the comedy mainstays of the revival and, although a great deal of their material would have been unheard of in New Orleans in 1780, it nevertheless is an efficient weapon for audience attack.

The costumes and settings are fresh, rich and colorful, and the orchestra, under the conductorship of William Ortman, contributes a fine instrumental background for the artists on the stage, with Chris Arth, veteran house leader, playing the frequent violin solo passages.

Altogether, ladies and gentlemen, a delightful and nostalgic evening in the theater, with some of the best American music ever written to keep the memory of Victor Herbert fragrant.

Bride-to-Be By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 22.

While Becky was wondering what reason she should give Mr. Rhodes for resigning, Francis Junior entered the office. He was looking better than she had ever seen him. He had gained weight. His eyes had lost their boredom and his mouth was no longer sulky. Best of all he seemed to be really interested in the business. Even his attitude to Becky was no longer reproachful but cheerfully affectionate.

After a question regarding an order he said, "You probably won't believe it but I'm in favor with my family now. It's good, old Philip who's in the dog-house."

"Why?" Becky demanded.

"You ought to know," he grinned. "I?"

'Of course! For the first time in his life Phil has refused to attend any of the holiday gatherings either at home or elsewhere. None of his old frinds see him any more. He tells them he is working."

They're Wrong.

Francis Junior, laughed.

"Mother and Regina are furious. The family dinner on Christmas Day was the only exception he's made. He even turned down an invitation to Lelia's New Year's Eve party tomorrow night."

"Is that supposed to be my fault?"

"They think so."

"Then they are wrong," Becky informed him. "I have an engagement tomorrow night but it isn't with Philip. What's more I am resigning my position with your father as soon as he returns."

"You are, Becky? Why?"

When she did not reply he cried, "I say, you aren't going to marry some one else?"

Her head was high.

"Perhaps!"

There was a pause during which Francis Junior seemed obviously trying to readjust his idea of the situation.

"You certainly had me fooled," he admitted. "I would have sworn there was something between you two last summer when the parents were in Alaska. Since I've become a staid, old married man I haven't kept informed."

Becky said nothing. She was staring from the window but her vision was blurred with tears.

"I hope you're going to be happy," the boy continued. "You don't look exactly overjoyed at the prospect but perhaps that's just as well. Marriage seems to be a case where no set rules apply anyway."

Becky took his outstretched hand.

Phil was Right.

"I haven't told you that I am going to marry anyone," she reminded him.

"You wouldn't give up a good job for any other reason," he opined. "I'm for you, Becky, in any case. I only hope it will turn out as well as mine has."

She had never liked him better than she did during that interview. Philip had been right when he said responsibility was what Francis needed. So Regina's visit had been caused by her cousin's refusal to attend the holiday parties. Evidently Philip wished to take no chance of being drawn back into Lelia's circle.

Becky hadn't thought of him as shunning gaiety. She had pictured him surrounded by merrymaking companions. The idea of his sitting alone in the apartment he had furnished for her made her heart ache. But perhaps he wasn't alone. He could have made any number of new friends during the two months since their last conversation. The fact that he didn't wish to spend New Year's Eve with Lelia didn't necessarily mean that he was spending it by himself.

When Mr. Rhodes returned he found his secretary typing but she stopped to say, "I'm leaving, Mr. Rhodes, just as soon as you can find someone to take my place."

He stared at her in surprise.

"Isn't this rather sudden?"

"Yes, it is," she admitted. "I've been considering it for some time but I've just made up my mind.

Blushes.

"You aren't dissatisfied about anything ?" he inquired.

If she answered truthfully he would insist upon knowing why, so she evaded the question by saying, "I'm very tired and need a good rest."

"Wouldn't a vacation take care of that?"

"I probably won't work for anyone any more," she said, blushing.

"Why, Becky!" he cried. "My women folks have been predicting this for months but you know how Philip is. I have never seen any sign of romance between you. I told them they were wrong."

"They were," she said. "It isn't Philip."

"I should have been delighted if it had been Philip," he assured her kindly. "But I believe any one you select will make you a good husband. If he doesn't you can always come back."

What a prince he was! How he would have been hurt if he had suspected that her real reason for leaving was because of the malicious taunts his daughter had made to her.

"I'll stay until the end of next week," she promised. "That ought to be long enough to break in some one else."

When she informed her family of her intentions, they did not say so, but she could see that the same idea was in their minds.

"A vacation will be good for you," her mother said.

Can't Imagine It.

It would give her the opportunity she needed to think about Foster's proposal. Her mind had a way of dodging the issue whenever she tried to concentrate upon it. She tried to imagine herself as his wife but succeeded only in visualizing the bride she had intended to be in the kitchen on Telegraph Hill; watering the nasturtiums and geraniums or sitting with Philip before a blazing log fire.

Marriage to Foster might blot these pictures from her mind, but supposing it didn't? She couldn't answer him definitely until she was more certain. But when she told Foster that she had given up her position he asked, "Does this mean you're going to marry me?"

"Not yet," she pleaded.

"You won't take another position if it's to be yes, Becky?"

"No!" she admitted. "But I must have time to think. I'm too tired now."

"My dear," Foster said, "you needn't explain. I know how you feel. Your emotions are still bound up to that other fellow But it will be different once we are married."

"If I could only be sure of that," Becky thought.

The went to an inter-office "watch party" with Foster and her parents at the home of their new chief. It was not a hilarious gathering, but it was interesting to hear that Foster's superior shared her father's opinion of his ability.

When the clock struck midnight Foster kissed her, whispering, "Before this year is up it's going to be a different story."

What's the Use.

It was true. With all her heart she wished now that she could marry him, but even as she wished it her wayward imagination sped, like an arrow, straight to Philip. Was he sitting alone before the fireplace thinking of her? Remembering, as she was, how they had planned to be together? If only she could tell him! Just to see if he were there? To say, "Happy New Year, darling!"

She stole to an upstairs telephone and lifted the receiver before she thought. "Oh, what's the use? He may not be alone. If he is, he is trying to forget me as I am him. Why start it all over again?"

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Should Girl, Separated From Husband but Not Divorced, Keep Company With Another Man?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 22. I have been married, but my husband and I have been separated for nearly a year. We expect to arrange a settlement and divorce within two years, and since we separated I have been going with a young man of 20, who is very understanding and sensible. We are devoted to each other and plan to be married in a few years. But do you think it wise for us to keep steady company now? And do you think my being the older will make any difference in our love? I will appreciate your advice very much, and hope to read your answer in a few days. Thank you. M. C.

* * * *

DEAR M. C.: There are several reasons why I do not think it very wise of you to devote yourself exclusively to this boy now. For one thing, it is neither good form nor good policy for a married woman who is separated from her husband but not divorced to be seen constantly in the company of one man. Such conduct is apt to make her the target of malicious gossip and may even handicap her in getting a divorce.

* * * *

For another thing, you may be jumping from the frying pan into the fire in clutching at this sole candidate for your hand in order to guarantee yourself re-entry into matrimony. It will be much wiser for you to devote the next two years to widening your social contacts among nice persons, so that you may be very sure you have made a sensible choice when you take a second husband.

* * * *

Then, there is the boy's extreme youth to be considered. He is at an age when his preference in girls is apt to be most variable and unpredictable. His address should not be taken to seriously. You should refuse even to consider being engaged to him until you are free to marry, out of very fairness to him. He needs two or three years yet in which to grow up to some semblance of emotional maturity.

* * * *

The two years' difference in your ages need not affect the permanence of your love for each other, if the bond between you should be fundamentally deep, sincere and understanding, and if your respective intellectual endowments and mutual interests should be such that you could keep step with each other in years to come. But the thing to be sure of is that the present attraction is not a passing infatuation born of propinquity and hunger for romance. M. H.

Power of Prayer.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I always turn to your column in The Washington Post and almost invariably find myself in warm agreement with your advice. I feel this way about most of your reply to "Disappointed" in the column of November 27. But I do feel like protesting one little phrase, where you tell her not only to "stop struggling and fighting," but also to "stop praying."

* * * *

I believe that nothing can help her to cease the struggling and fighting so surely as trustful, expectant prayer. I am writing this from a long experience in my own life. I am ideally married and have two ideally married sons. But in my sadder experiences, when death has come to our home and the inevitable experiences of life have seemed far beyond my own strength, nothing has helped so surely as prayer and trust in the great Burden-bearer, and I have proved again and again His yoke is easy and His burden is light.

* * * *

You tell "Disappointed" if "she must have a creed——" Don't all of us have to have that? Personally, I could not live in any happiness without mine, which is a firm belief in our Heavenly Father. I hope you will find space for this in your column. I am so afraid that your seemingly doubtful attitude may harm not only "Disappointed" but someone else who may hesitate to try the comfort and helpfulness of prayer. Sincerely,

BELIEVER IN PRAYER.

More About Prayer.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been reading your column for some time and truly think you are doing a wonderful work. I have agreed with you in most of the advice you have given, but in your advice to "Disappointed" I do not believe you really meant for her to "stop praying," for sincere prayer is power. I know. I even know God answers prayers like hers. As Grace Noll Crowell says in her poem, "Wait:"

"How well I know
For I have waited thru the dark and I
Have seen a star rise in the blackest sky
Repeatedly. It has not failed me yet
And I have learned God never will forget
To light His lamp. If we but wait for it
It will be lit."

* * * *

Yes, I know this poem is true. My prayers have not all been answered immediately, but when they were answered I knew God had done it. I suppose I sound like an old woman preaching. I am not. I have read somewhere that "every stroke of sorrow places a key in our hands to unlock a situation of difficulty for others." I thought I would pass on a fact that I have found true. If we would only believe the Christ we profess to worship when He says, "If ye ask, I will do," how much suffering we could save ourselves.

* * * *

If "Disappointed" would ask God once more to take away this feeling and give her faith to believe that He will, she can go on her way rejoicing, for I know that he will. She must do her part by being willing to do the things you have suggested to her for getting her mind on other things. And if she will remember this promise. "In all thy ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct thy path," she will not worry about anything.

Sincerely, GOODWILL.

Objection Sustained.

DEAR CORRESPONDENTS: Your objection to that "regrettably unqualified phrase, "stop praying," is well taken. I am happy to have this opportunity to explain that it was not my intent to discount the inestimable value, the ever-present help of prayer. For time and again in this column, as regular readers can testify, I have advocated prayer as a powerful and mystic factor in solving problems. No longer ago than October 8, this statement was published here: "Skeptics may laugh at my saying so, but I believe there are crises and muddled conditions in the lives of individuals which can only be solved through prayer; and by prayer I do not so much mean petitioning Providence on bended knee to grant a certain favor, as I mean developing and maintaining a consistent spiritual purpose. Once such a purpose takes form in one's imagination, one's every thought and action becomes part of a ceaseless prayer for its materialization on the tangible or physical plane . . . and some way opens up to deliver one from intolerable conditions with which one may be struggling. . . ."

* * * *

It was my thought, in regard to "Disappointed's" problem, to suggest to her a specific course of action which in itself amounts to prayer; that she might learn through actual experience the healing truth that the Lord helps those who help themselves. For I felt—without, unfortunately, taking the space to say so—that she was perhaps praying in a way which might not bring the results she hoped for. Her prayer seemed too much bound up with terror and resistance, for she said: "I've struggled. I've prayed. I've fought. God help me—what can I do about it?"

* * * *

I regret that the phrase you challenge should have gone unqualified, thus giving rise to the misapprehension in your minds, and possibly in the minds of other readers, that I discount the power of prayer. But perhaps that inadvertent omission was all for the best, inasmuch as it may bring to the eyes of "Disappointed" your respective testimonials concerning the efficacy of prayer when trustfully employed. M. H.

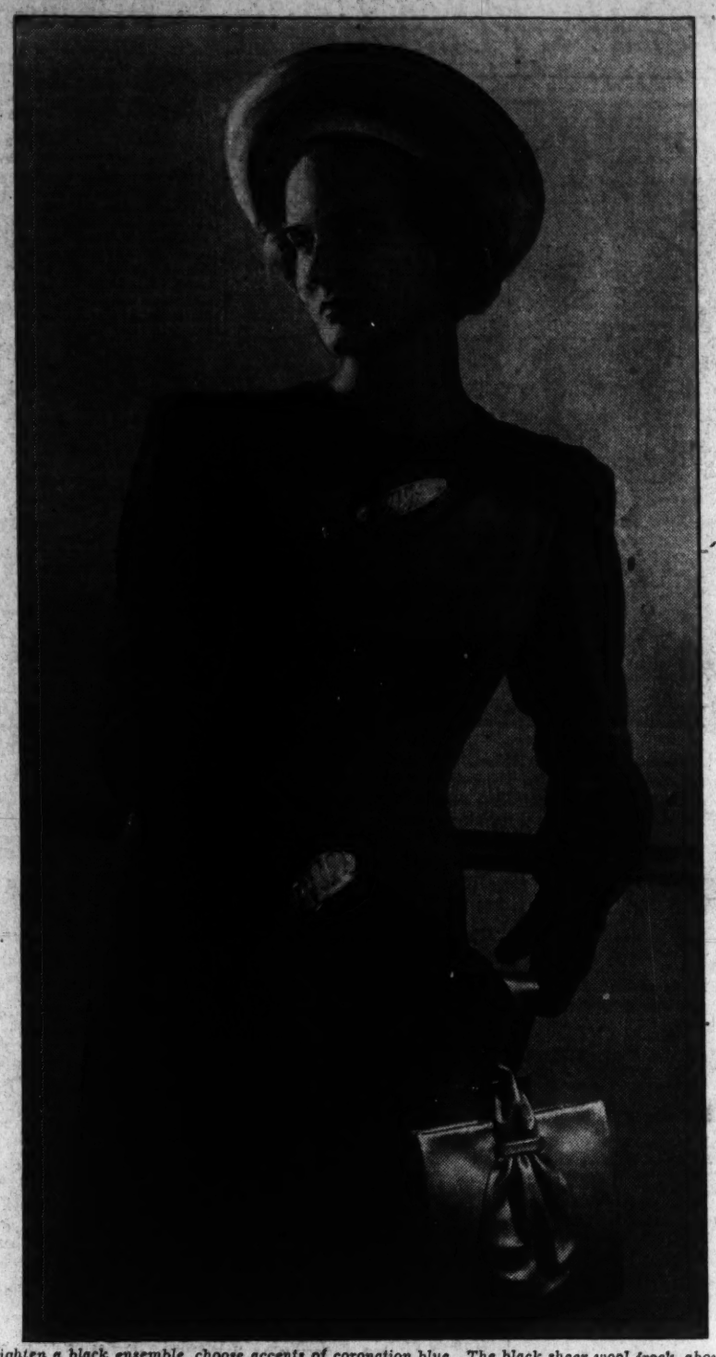
Coronation Blue Brightens Black Wool



To brighten a black ensemble, choose accents of coronation blue. The black sheer wool frock, above, with the newest high neckline, is enhanced by the long bar pin of blue catalin, echoed in the wide bracelet over the black velvet gloves. The Breton sailor (an English influence) is of black felt with blue velvet facing. Shiny leather fashions the handbag.

Bright Accessories Liven Dark Dresses, Gay Frocks Lend Color to Black Coats

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

AT THIS TIME of the year, when days are dreary and cold, the wardrobe must bear the burden of supplying color to the winter scene. Bright frocks under dark coats is one method of interpreting this trend, or, what is considered smarter by many stylists, black costumes with brilliant accessories.

In the black-with-color realm, bright blue is a popular choice this season. Aside from the fact that the color merger is chic, blue is generally becoming to women of any complexion or hair coloring. And the combining of sturdy black with a more delicate hue is a pleasing contrast.

The wise shopper will purchase a black frock of sheer wool or silk crepe, made in a conservative style after contemporary fashion trends. A basic frock of this type can be changed daily in appearance by the mere changing of accents. An important requisite when buying such a costume is to be sure that the neckline will adapt itself to diverse methods of ornamentation. The new high collarless style which is replacing the small, upstanding collar is an excellent medium for this purpose.

Jewelry continues to sway the accessory mode. But conservatively smart women are selecting a few massive-looking pieces instead of many pieces of the more ostentatious sort. This is particularly true for daytime wear. Bar pins which are long and wide are a newer idea than clips, and when matched up with bracelets of the same barbaric proportions, that is all you need to lend swank to a severely plain frock. This costume jewelry array can be of the bright blue mentioned before; coral, which is also a popular tone; jade green or coronation red.

Hats should repeat the color note of the brilliant accents; or, if it is a bright-colored frock that is chosen to liven the picture, the chapeau should echo its tint as a harmonious finishing touch. Handbags matching coats are correct, according to current style dictation. Gloves can be of the same color as the coat or repeat the tone of the hat. For persons who prefer only a duet of tones—and that is smarter for afternoon wear than tri-color themes—an illusion of three colors can be deftly handled by a mixture of textures. For instance, shiny and dull surfaces can be combined for both frock and accessories.

Lingerie touches are smart for simple black costumes, as a bit of lace for trimming, or collar and cuffs smartly adorned with dainty lace. This is a grand method of transforming a costume, tailored in character, into a dressy afternoon affair. It also gives a spring-like touch to a costume that would otherwise be very wintry in appearance, especially when the lace is white or ivory.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Nov. 30.

FEW are the professions, businesses and rackets in New York these days in which you find but one outstanding member of our swooning sex. The girls have scrambled, fast-talked and inched their winning ways into every sort of job that's going — and in droves. But there's one rather new and very loopy business here which boasts but one outstanding female practitioner—and that, sisters, is the back-breaking, brain-fagging racket of writing radio gags.

ALICE HUGHES.

Our lone ace is a pretty, glib exactress named Mabel Wilma Albertson, who tried hard to get jobs on the legitimate stage, turned to singing songs in night clubs, and finally found herself one of the innumerable air stooges of Mr. Phil Baker—the gentleman who once said he was reading Peggy Joyce's memoirs and had reached Chapter 10. Phil soon discovered that Mabel was quick on the dialogue—and since then she's been a prolific and prosperous concocter of ether scripts.

Mabel not only does it for herself, but for the kiddies as well. She has two, George and Patricia. They're at school, and Mabel tells me they're at least different because they bring their homework to teacher written on the backs of old air scenarios!

Her chief complaint about the life of a girl whose mind is stuffed with thousands of jokes is that it's death on romance. She knows the flip answer to every ardent plea whispered into her pink ear—and finds it hard to keep a straight face during the prettiest speeches of a love-shocked swain. But she does all right, and there is not even a coyote, let alone a wolf, at her Central Park west door. "But it's a very unfunny business," sighs Mabel, as she gets funny.

* * * *

My London spy (gowns by Norman Hartnell) writes that Marlene Dietrich is in deep disgrace with London theater managers at present, because she invariably arrives in the middle of the first act and dumps the apple-cart, both in the stalls and on the stage. "Legs" says that she can't help it—that the autograph mice in the lobby hold her past curtain time, no matter how early she arrives. A good story it is, too . . . .

* * * *

Speaking of Lunnon, it's just wonnerful how many of our girls, slipping or slipped in Hollywood movies, get a toe-hold on the British stage and screen. Among them at present are Bebe Daniels, Lupe Velez, June Clyde, Sally O'Neil . . .

* * * *

And I, for one of many, am pulling for Mary Pickford's happiness in the Buddy Rogers matter. She's a fine, sunny woman, and one of my favorite people—and few know how bitterly she suffered from the Fairbanks smash-up . . .

* * * *

A phenomenon here that no one can quite explain is the fact that on every first night along Broadway Libby Holman gets more cheers and autograph-attention from the lobby-lizards than any "celebrity" in town. The fact remains that she does—and caused a small-sized riot when she got out of her car at one of the "Hamlet" openings, while great geniuses slunk in unnoticed . . . There's talk that Libby will do a show this winter . . .

* * * *

"Red, Hot and Blue," with its Cole Porter tunes, is now definitely a smash hit, in spite of a most anemic press. The mobs do love Ethel Merman and Jimmy Durante—and Cole Porter magic . . . Pearl Buck's book about her missionary dad, "Fighting Angel," is now on the counters. Should be good stuff—

* * * *

The suit continues to be about the most important thing there is, in the wearable line. I saw a honey the other day made of brown tweed with gray caracul bands. This color combo, by the way, is very good at present. Wide saddle shoulders, full-cut sleeves and plain skirt, the last-named of which is equally good with a tunic or tucked-in blouse. The days when suits were what the trade calls "casual" is evidently done—but thank goodness we can still be casual in 'em!

New Smocked Dresses Made for Small Women

Hollywood's small women will be wearing smocked dresses about the time Santa Claus comes down their chimneys. No less an authority than Sibyl Jason proves this is true. Her new wardrobe consists of several wool jersey dresses with brightly contrasting smocking and several quaint little flower-sprinkled wool challis with basque waists and bouffant skirts.

Her favorite new dress is heavy silk crepe, made in princess style just like a grown-up, and has little brown scotties down the front instead of buttons.

Powder Blue Wool.

Hollywood.—Some of the unique and entrancing color combinations noted about the town are Eleanor Whitney, who wears a powder-blue wool dress with dubonnet and all other accessories in the same winey shade; Grace Bradley, back from England, effectively combines dull yellow and deep biege in a redingote ensemble.

CAPITAL MANNERS

Many Persons Otherwise Careful in Conduct Show Rudeness in Regard to Radio.

By Margaret Wallace.

RADIO MANNERS present a new problem in modern etiquette. Persons who not ordinarily are rude in their behavior often show lack of breeding in regard to the radio both in their own and their friends houses.

If the host or hostess turns on the radio or some guest requests it, there is no choice but to listen or to leave the house if this can be done politely. It is no more polite to keep on talking while the host and the rest of these present want to hear a speech or a concert over the radio then it would be to interrupt a conversation or talk if some one were actually in the room singing or playing.

The owner of the radio or a host or hostess with a radio can make a social nuisance of this modern institution. The well-bred host or hostess will ask the guests if they wish to hear the radio mentioning the programs that are available. The guests can with perfect propriety suggest the program. Of course, if two guests express preferences for different programs the diplomatic host will tune into first one and then the other.

Rude to Interfere.

It is as rude for a guest to tune in and "fuddle" with another person's radio as it would be to rush out and open the front door or commit any other such officious act. It must be remembered that a radio in somebody else's house belongs to that household. The nonchalant manner in which guests will walk over to a radio and turn on another station without even making excuses is one of the examples of modern bad manners.

The worst of the modern pests in an apartment hotel or any other place where the sound of radio can be heard is the person who turns on his radio from morning until night. It is certainly not good manners to play a radio so loud that the neighbors, or members of the household, are disturbed by it very early in the morning or late at night. A person who would never think of going in and rudely shaking a sleeper, or shouting in the window of the next-door neighbors' house will often play the radio so that it intrudes into every corner of the house and the houses nearby. It is quite as necessary to tune down the radio to the range of the individual listener or small group of listeners as it is to keep the voice softly modulated.

Should Arrange Call.

One Washington woman has written that she is much annoyed by a man and wife in a neighboring apartment who call unannounced in the evening at the very hour she wishes to hear her favorite radio program. The man and wife object to the program and always ask her to turn it off. Her only recourse is to be "not at home" when these people call, or she can announce that she has a special engagement with her radio every night at that hour.

At any rate it is not good form for any guest to call in the evening without first finding out by telephone, or message, whether it will be convenient for the hostess to receive them. It is quite good form for the hostess to say that she will be engaged for the evening and that it will not be convenient to receive callers.

Pockets on Reefer.

Alice Faye, movie actress, just for a lark, has had glove pockets tailored on her sports reefer. The pockets, set low on the short coat, are exactly the shape of her hands and are more convenient than loose gloves because it's impossible to lose them. The reefer is biege camel's hair and the glove pockets are the same material although outlined with brown cobbler's stitching.

Right Choice Of Perfumes Is Important

By Carolyn Abbott.

THE PERFUME LANGUAGE is one of the most important ideas that a woman of today should know when endeavoring to make herself attractive. If she is wise she should know this language because she is as likely to be remembered by a perfume as by her smile, her eyes or the tone of her voice.

One may breathe a fragrance without consciously noticing it, and forever after associate it with the emotions that were felt at that moment. Perhaps the smell of sage gives a feeling of restlessness, while violet prompts a quiet and comforting feeling. A breath of one perfume may be a reminder of noisy crowds on a holiday while a whiff of another opens up a world that is rich and beautiful.

Affect Imagination.

Scents have a powerful effect on the imagination and spirit. Some are stimulating, exciting, some are relaxing. Some give a feeling of the far away and some are reminders of home.

You cannot make your personality over by using a perfume. It is a great mistake for you to use a musky siren aroma if you are frank and open. A fresh spring garden bouquet is quite perfect for you. On the other hand if your fascination lies in your worldly wisdom, don't choose a scent of simple sweetness.

In selecting a scent that is to be entirely yours, find something that you may use in your bath as well as to make your hair fragnant. Use the same scent throughout your toilette, in your hand-soap, your bath powder and your cologne.

Attractive Basket.

An attractive basket containing hand soap, sachet bag, water softener tablets, cologne, bath salts and bath powder all in the same lavender odor is a nice gift for yourself, or for one of your many friends this Christmas. A mixture of scents might be confusing and no one would be outstanding.

The sachet has been revived. For a long time it has been difficult to obtain sachet of your pet perfume, but lately the perfumers made it possible to get scented powder and also silk sachets already made up. Some of these sachets are destined to dangle from your clothes hangers, while others are to tuck in among linens and lingeries. This also helps to carry out a scheme of having a perfect ensemble in the fragrance of your person.

Easy Ways to Reduce

Controlling weight by calory count is an exact science and regulates your weight to the pound. The meal illustrated for reducing weight consists of 1 slice of pot roast, ½ cup (scant) mashed potatoes, ½ cup creamed carrots, salad of 5 stalks of canned asparagus and ¼ head lettuce, mineral oil dressing, 1 cup coffee with 1 teaspoonful each of sugar and cream. It has a total of only 356 calories, and a dessert of ¼ cup of ice cream will add 100 calories—a total of 456 for the meal.

The same meal can be used for increasing weight by adding gravy to the pot roast; buttered carrots instead of creamed carrots; French dressing instead of mineral oil dressing; a roll and butter, and chocolate sauce to the ice cream. Only a few more items added, but the total is 1,125 calories—an increase of 669 calories.

You can have the same kind of foods that you have been accustomed to eating. It is only a matter of watching the combinations and amount of food you eat.

Our new 40-page booklet, "Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake," gives complete menus for a 14-day reducing diet and the exact amount of calories each menu contains. Follow the daily meals worked out and be sure of keeping your calories always within allotment.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Jelleff Gifts Add Sparkle to Yule Shopping

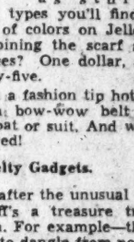
By Ruth Anne Davis.

THEY'RE gorgeous! They're wonderful! They're simply divine! If ever nighties deserved sparkling adjectives, these do! Luxurious satin affairs with yokes of sheer georgette, fluffs and ruffs of Val and Alencon lace. And styled to a T! Tiny puff sleeves, frilly, flattering neck treatment and lines to inspire a Paris modiste. Make a special trip to the second floor at Jelleff's and you'll find them there in downy heaps. Not one among them that won't thrill the very heart of you.

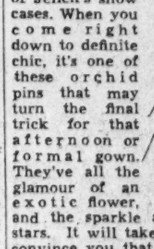


Breathtaking and irresistible are those fashioned of cut velvet with cape-like coats to match. Offhand you'd guess the price as fifty, maybe seventy-five dollars. But mind you, the actual cost is only $12.95, and $7.95 for the jackets. Dreamy colors—soft French blue, warm tearose, and snowy white.

While you're looking don't miss the nightie of expensive Ninon, soft and sheer as gossamer but of a never-wear-out quality. Incidentally, just $10.95.

Bow-wow Belts.

HERE'S a rousing vote of thanks to the designer who thought up this one. Belts to match the bow-wow's leash and collar! Tops in novel Christmas gift ideas are these. Trim bands of leather studded with metal tips, complete even to a name plate by the clasp. Plainer, but equally smart are the belts of rolled leather like nothing so much as sturdy leashes. Both types you'll find in a dizzy array of colors on Jelleff's first floor adjoining the scarf section. The prices? One dollar, and a dollar ninety-five.



P. S. Here's a fashion tip hot off the griddle—a bow-wow belt for that sportsy coat or suit. And won't Fido be flattered!

Novelty Gadgets.

SHOPPERS after the unusual will find Jelleff's a treasure trove this season. For example—those thingamabobs to dangle from novelty bracelets. Are they hard to find? Just ask the collector who keeps her eyes peeled for interesting gadgets (or do-jigs, in the novelty lingo) no bigger than the tip of pussy's nose. Won't she welcome—and don't we all!—this display of tiny cocktail shakers, wedding rings, ice buckets, top hats, pipes, telephones, turtles—and even a miniature kitchen stove. There's a regiment to choose from!

Sparkling Orchid Pins.

RARER than a yellow or a white orchid, and hardier by far, are the new rhinestone orchids growing right out of a black velvet cushion on one of Jelleff's show cases. When you come right down to definite chic, it's one of these orchid pins that may turn the final trick for that afternoon or formal gown. They've all the glamour of an exotic flower, and the sparkle and glow of the stars. It will take but one look to convince you that here's the thing to give a touch of perfection to Miss Mary Jane's Christmas box.

Just the Thing!

YOUR belief in magic is reborn when you try a rubdown with Dorothy Grey's exquisitely scented, luxurious bodyrub. For rough, scaly skin there's nothing like it to give the feel of velvet. If your arms, or legs, or neck, or even face is chapped, right here is the delicate emulsion to remedy the wrong.

Incidentally, it comes in such a charming flacon and is itself such a little treasure, waste no time about jotting down the name on your premiere Christmas list. You'll find it waiting and ready for you in Jelleff's toiletry department.

A Hosiery Tip.

IF you want wearability as well as sheerness in your hose, then try Jelleff's new Gold Stripes, appropriately named "Glamour." They are two-thread, but with all the invisibility of the one-threads — with, of course, double the wearing power. One especially fine feature that suits them admirably to open-work slippers is the fineness (and at the same time strength) of the heel and toe.

Glamour hose come in exquisite shades—Barcelona, a neutral grayish brown; Mascara, an off-black; Algeria, a light clear brown, and Saunter, a brownish beige. One dollar sixty-five is a mere trifle to pay for this stunning hosiery.

Colorful and Gay.

GAY enough to grace a Christmas tree and sure to become any young miss are the colorful snow sets adding variety to Jelleff's glove section. These include dazzling mittens in a variety of bright and glowing shades, with snug, tasseled toboggan caps to match.

Official and Residential Circles of Washington Attend Reception Given by Ecuador Ambassador, Wife for Boundary Commission

Senora de Alfaro Receives at Large Gathering at Hotel Here; Senora Lafronte, Senora de Ponce and Senora de Trujillo Among Honor Guests.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Washington—all of Washington, official, residential and diplomatic—was at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon for the reception given by the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro.

A line extending the length of the hotel lobby moved through for more than an hour to the Chinese room, where the hosts received with the guests of honor, the president and members of the Ecuadorean Boundary Commission and Senora de Viteri Lafronte, Senora de Ponce and Senora de Trujillo. It was like a first night with the house sold out. For blocks, cars bringing guests were lined outside the hotel, and within hundreds were already gathered for the function.

The Chinese room was arranged like a drawing room, with chairs and divans plaeed against a background of palms and chrysanthemums. A low, lighted fountain played in the center. The great buffet table extended from the doorway of the ballroom to the space cleared for dancing. Chefs halfway down on either side of the table served chicken a la king from huge silver chafing dishes. Salads, sandwiches, cakes, cold meats, nuts, candies and ice cream were also provided in abundance and waiters constantly came and went bearing trays laden with cups and plates or food to replenish the supply.

A handsome gold service filled with a high bouquet of yellow and rust chrysanthemums served as centerpiece, and smaller bouquets in tall silver vases and red, blue, yellow and white candles in silver candelabra were placed toward the two ends of the table. There were also smaller tables where beverages and ice cream were served.

Linger Near Table.

At the other end of the ballroom an orchestra played gay tunes. Although there were many couples on the floor, the larger crowd lingered near the food, indicating many of the guests would rather eat than dance. "I certainly can't go home and begin all over again with soup," remarked one of the ladies—"I've eaten ice cream, although I shouldn't have," said another. All about the guests were remarking on the success of the party itself, the delicious supper and the great number of persons there.

Senora de Alfaro received in a gown of black velvet with a corsage of orchids. Senora de Viteri Lafronte wore a striking costume of dove gray velvet with a close-fitting black hat; Senora de Ponce a dubonnet velvet gown and hat, and Senora de Turjillo a gown of black with gold lame trimming the sleeves. The First Secretary of Embassy, Senor don Carlos Mantilla-Ortega made the introductions.

Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, wife of the Solicitor General, were among those who sought the comparative seclusion of a smaller table at the side of the ballroom. Baroness von Below was with them, and they held a little court of their own as friends stopped to greet them. Mrs. Reed was in a costume of black, a band of ermine forming the high collar on her frock, and little black wings trimming her hat. Mrs. Cummings wore brown, her small fur-trimmed hat the shade of her dress, which was trimmed with turquoise ornaments. Baroness von Below wore gray.

Others Present.

The Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Guillermo Patterson, was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Olga Patterson, always strikingly dressed and yesterday wearing a particularly interesting costume, a black frock embroidered in little gold crowns and a bit of a black silk hat tipped over her blonde hair. Among others in the throng were the wife of the Mexican Ambassador, Senora Castillo Najera; the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, with their daughter, Senorita Laura Recinos; the Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Guachalla; the new Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Castro Beeche; the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Lozano, the Minister of Albania, Mr. Faik Konitza; the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastroiza; the Minister of Paraguay and Senora de Busk Codas, the Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite, the Minister of Panama and Senora de Boyd, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; the Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. F. C. Bradley, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley, Col. and Mrs. Consuelo A. Seoane and Mr. and Mrs. Enrique Prieto.

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend was being greeted by friends on all sides and stopped for a short conversation with Mrs. Frank Hamilton, who has just returned from Europe and opened an apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue. She was in Spain for a brief time in June visiting her sister, who is still there. Mrs. Thomas Dawson was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Lilita Dawson, and her sno, Mr. Allan Dawson, and her son, Mr. Allan Dawresumé his post as First Secretary of the American Embassy in Brazil.

Among the Guests.

Gen. and Mrs. Peyton March were among the guests, as were the former Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, whose husband, one of the Assistant Attorneys General, had gone to Jamestown, N. Y., to be present at a victory dinner; Mrs. J. J. Mack, accompanied by her son, Mr. George Belicovitch, and his bride; Mrs. Arthur Tirrell with her daughter, Miss Dorothy Tirrell; Mr. Mark Schapiro, the Counselor of the Polish Embassy, Mr. Witold Wankowicz, with the attache, Mr. Michael Budny; the Air Attache of the Italian Embassy and Signora Coppola, Mrs. Sol Bloom and her daughter, Miss Vera Bloom, and many of the debutantes, including Miss Belle Hartz, there with her mother, Mrs. Barge L. Hartz; Miss Gertrude Pearson, Miss Mary Agnes Young, with her father, Mr. Harold Russell Young; Miss Virginia Randolph, Miss Carrie Roper Fulton and Miss Martha Talley, all accompanied by their mothers.

One of the guests greeted by countless friends was Mrs. W. A. R. Robertson, wife of Capt. Robertson, formerly of Bolling Field, and who was secretary to the late Speaker of the House, Joseph Byrns. She is here for a few days from Montgomery, Ala., where Capt. Robertson is now stationed.

There were others—many others, all of whom were enjoying themselves and lingering through the hours of the reception.

Sacramento Man Weds At Presidio

Martin Maloney Marries Miss Patricia Parker; Wed in Post Chapel.

From the West Coast comes word of the wedding of Miss Patricia Parker, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Arthur Parker, and Mr. Martin Maloney, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Howard Maloney, of Sacramento, which took place at the chapel of the Presidio of San Francisco.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned on severely simple lines, the high neck finished with rare old lace which crossed over in the front in a bow effect. The long, slightly flaring skirt swept out into a fan-shaped train. Her tulle veil fell from a cap effect held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms on the top of her head. Her only jewelry was a handsome diamond brooch, a gift of Mrs. C. K. McClatchy, grandmother of the bridegroom, and her bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Washingtonian Assists.

Mrs. Gerald Evan Williams, of Washington, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a period gown of aquamarine slipper satin designed with a high waist and brief cap sleeves, and a full skirt that ended in a slight train. In her blonde hair was a spray of pink camillias, and she carried a bouquet of the same dainty flowers.

Miss Olivia D. Nolte, of San Antonio, Tex., the maid of honor, and Mrs. J. Brown Maloney, of Fresno, the other attendant, wore gowns of the same style, the former in royal blue and the latter in green. They, too, wore the pink camillias in their hair and carried bouquets to match.

Mr. J. Brown Maloney acted as best man for his brother and the ushers were Lieut. Joseph Gill, U. S. A.; Mr. Jack Owen Parker, brother of the bride, and Mr. Raoul Lopez.

Reception on Hill.

Immediately following the ceremoney there was a reception at the Army and Navy Club in the Fairmont Hotel on Knobb Hill. Later the young couple, the bride wearing brown trimmed with mink and matching accessories, left for Del Monte, where they will spend some time. Upon their return to Sacramento, where they will make their home, they will reside in Mrs. McClatchy's house while she is in Florida and while their own home is being built.

Among those at the reception were several who have recently been stationed in Washington, including Gen. and Mrs. George Simonds, Miss Majorei Simonds, Col. and Mrs. C. R. Harvey, Capt. and Mrs. Noah Brinson and Lieut. and Mrs. Lee Park.

The bride is well known in this city, where she formerly made her home. Mr. Maloney, whose family publishes the Sacramento Bee and other California newspapers, is on the staff of the Sacramento paper.

Mrs. Crounse Publishes a Second Book

Poems Present Colorful Picture of Childhood Life in Mexico.

Mrs. William Livingston Crounse, one of the "cave-dwellers" of Washington society, has just published her second book of poetry, "Through Remembered Windows," a colorful picture of life in Mexico as she knew it as a child. Her first book, "Fold of Dreams," was published in 1929 and attracted wide attention because of her prominence in the Capital, both in literary and social circles.

It has been ten years since Mrs. Crounse has been to the home of her childhood and, had she been there more recently, she doubts if she could have written the book—so many changes have taken place there as elsewhere in the world in the last decade. However, she plans to return for a visit this winter.

Mrs. Crounse writes under the name "Pepita" Crounse, using the Mexican diminutive for Josephine, by which she was always called. The publisher of her new volume, a young editor with modern ideas, desired to make the title "Thru Remembered Windows," but she protested in favor of the old-fashioned spelling of through—a word she struggled with while learning English. She spoke French, German, Italian and Spanish before she knew the language of her own land.

Although she was born in Galveston, Tex., she was reared after her mother's death by her older sister, Suzanne Sanchez, to whom the book is dedicated. The first part deals with her life on the hacienda is a rather lonely child in beautiful surroundings. The second part strikes the gay note of Mexico, giving dramatic stories of the native dances, and the third part, in narrative form, is of legends of the country.

Mrs. Crounse, who has made the Capital her home for 23 years, spent June and July in Blue Ridge Bummit, Pa., where she wrote part of the book, and later went to her country place in Nova Scotia, where she remained until after the middle of October. Etchings and halftones by Hirst Milhollen, of the Library of Congress, illustrate her poems.

Alice S. Emery To Marry Soon

Engagement to Mr. Marran Announced; Wedding to Be in January.

Of interest to Washington Society is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. James Augustine Emery of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Suzanne Emery, to Mr. Donald James Marran, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Roger Marran, of Patchogue, Long Island.

Miss Emery attended Georgetown Visitation Convent, and is a graduate of Manhattanville College in New York City. She made her debut in Washington in 1932.

Mr. Marran attended St. Thomas' College in St. Paul, Minn., and received his law degree from Fordham University. He is now in Washington as a special assistant to the Attorney General.

The wedding will take place late in January.

THE MERRY WHIRL
by MARYLYN

Far be it from us to talk shop or shout from the housetops about our own Post, but this little story is too amusing to keep from our faithful readers. As you will remember, Peggy Macatee Clark, daughter of the Oliver Hazard Perry Clarks, and Lieut. Bob Henry Kessler were married last Friday at a thrilling ceremony with all of the pomp and splendor of uniforms, sabres and all that. Well, two days later, while on their honeymoon, they were driving along the highway somewhere between Philadelphia and New York. As new cars have a bad habit of doing, theirs kept going a little faster and a little faster and before they knew it a watchful guardian of the law tore after them and insisted they accompany him to police headquarters.

The big, kindly sergeant behind the desk listened to their story but when they pulled the old one about being just married he sat back and scowled. Then, oh happy thought, a Washington Post was produced and there, on the society page, was a picture of the pair, just passing beneath one arch of sabres. All's well that ends well, or one might say, in this case, that starts well, because after a mild lecture the sergeant cheerily waved them on their way.

Anyone who thinks that these debutantes lead a life of whip cream and leisure is really terribly mistaken. They are on the go from dawn to dawn and then some and think nothing of trotting to a nearly city if their own bailiwick is lagging in doings. Alice Noel Tuckerman is impartially dividing her time between here and Baltimore, two cities which are getting to treat each other as suburbs. Today Alice is journeying over into Maryland for the tea which is to be given in her honor by the Honorable Mrs. Tunstall-Smith, sister of Lord Fairfax, of England.

• • • •

Speaking of parties, it would seem that Bette Hartz is quite the most partied deb in town. Peggy Kyle has issued invitations for a tea in her honor on Sunday in her home on Sixteenth street from from 5 until 7 o'clock, and the Dwight Kendalls have ignored the hoodoo of the thirteenth to choose that day for a cocktail party for Bette.

• • • •

Bambie McKenna was wearing a very different and attractive evening gown the other evening. It was of peach and blue changeable taffeta, made with the fullest of flaring skirts, straight fitted bodice, which had dainty straps and was finished about the top with a narrow band of feathered taffeta.

• • • •

Mrs. Ralph Worthington is a very busy and energetic person. After having a house full of young people, friends of her debutante daughter, Ethel, and Ralph 3d, who was home from school, she has left for Cleveland, where she will spend today and tomorrow, returning Thursday just in time to repack her bag, gather up Ethel and be off for Philadelphia and the ball Friday evening for Carlile Porter. Then home again to complete the last-minute plans for Ethel's tea on December 8 from 5 until 7 o'clock and her ball, which will follow on December 22, at the Sulgrave Club.

Mrs. King Holds Final 'At Home'

Miss Gloria Grosvenor, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, of Wild Acres, Bethesda, and Miss Suzanna Kappler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Kappler, who is coming out on December 28, were guests of honor at the final "at home" of Mrs. Neitah King yesterday afternoon at her apartment on Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Grosvenor and Mrs. Kappler assisted Mrs. King in receiving the 75 guests who attended. Bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums and yellow roses decorated the rooms.

Among the guests were several of the Washington girls who will attend the Baltimore Cotillion on December 7, chaperoned by Mrs. King. They include, in addition to Miss Grosvenor, Miss Mary Senate Howes, Miss Bette Hartz, Miss Randolph Richardson, Miss Silvine Clagett and Miss Laura Johnson.

Two Trawlers Wreck on Coast; 43 Make Shore

Second Vessel Stranded After Another Sinks Near Cape Lookout.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 30.—Eighteen members of the crew of the fishing trawler which was stranded at Rich's Inlet near Cape Lookout on the Carolina coast Saturday landed in their own boats and will probably be brought to Norfolk by the Coast Guard. The vessel was reported a total loss.

Rich's Inlet is approximately 35 miles north of Cape Fear.

The captain was the second trawler to go ashore in the heavy weather over the week-end. The trawler, North State, went ashore near Cape Lookout late Saturday afternoon, and sunk, the crew of 25 escaping in lifeboats. They were towed ashore by the Coast Guard surf boats.

The yacht Mandoo, of New Haven, which arrived today at Little Creek, reported heavy weather and requested the Coast Guard to stand by. The patrol boat 140 was directed to furnish the yacht with assistance that might be required.

Million Dutch To See Juliana Wed to Prince

Inexpensive But Dignified Marriage Desired by Queen.

By the Associated Press.

The Hague, Holland, Nov. 30.—Royal wedding costs may drop to a new low when Princess Juliana marries in January, but already Holland is getting ready for a big national celebration.

Persons close to the court predict that Juliana's marriage to Prince Bernhard of Lippe-Biesterfeld will be one of the cheapest and most dignified royal weddings in a long time.

Queen Wilhelmina, who is nimble with the thimble, artist's paint brush and the royal household's account book, is personally supervising all details and there are few signs at the two story white and yellow royal palace that the heiress to the throne is soon to be married.

But a million subjects—one-eighth of Holland's population—are expected in the capital city January 7, to see their adored Juliana take a prince consort. Hotels in The Hague were booked to capacity early in November and reservations already were being made in Amsterdam (three-quarters of an hour by train), Rotterdam, Delft and Leyden.

Queen Wilhelmina dislikes show and pageentry and has decreed that the wedding be stripped of pomp. Like the humblest of her mother's subjects who wish a religious ceremony, the heiress to the throne of the Netherlands will be married twice in the same day—first by the state and then by the church.

The religious part will be performed in the Fourteenth Century Gothic Court Church, the "Groote Kerk" (Great Church) otherwise known at St. Jacob's, which, with its 1,600 seats, is the largest in The Hague. The court pastor, Dr. H. T. Obbink, will officiate during the Dutch Reformed church ceremony.

The "Groote Kerk" is in the center of The Hague, a quarter of a mile from the royal palace. Beside it is the small town hall where the Princess and Prince must make a stop before going to the church across the narrow street. Here the civil ceremony will be performed by the mayor, S. J. R. De Monchy.

The Princess is generally supposed to be having her trousseau made in Paris, although some say she will wear only Dutch things. Prince Bernhard is expected to wear the uniform of the Blue Hussars.

The wedding will be before noon. A wedding breakfast and reception for distinguished foreign guests and family members will be held in the white palace after the church ceremony.

Stepfather Held For Stamping Girl To Death in South

By the Associated Press.

Jesup, Ga., Nov. 30.—Sheriff R. E. Warren announced today the arrest of a 51-year-old itinerant repairman, charged with stamping to death his 14-year-old stepdaughter while the child's mother, bound hand and foot, lay helpless nearby.

The child, bleeding about the mouth and ears, was taken last Wednesday to a hospital in Brunswick, where she died.

Warren said the stepfather, L. R. Ward, reported she had been struck by a "hit-and-run motorist."

The sheriff said the accused man denied he struck the girl, but that the mother "told us the most pitiful story I ever heard."

The stepfather, Warren said, was arrested during funeral services for the child near Lyons, Ga. The sheriff declined to say where the stepfather is held.

The Federal Diary

By Samuel Lubell.

Retiring

Uncle Sam's loss will be the literary world's gain. James W. McGuire, cartographer with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey since 1901, retired yesterday to do some writing. His friends appropriately enough presented him with a typewriter.

McGuire's outstanding contribution to the writing art—he is the author of numerous magazine articles and Government publications—is a selected bibliography of geographic names. Before joining the Government service he was professor of modern languages and mathematics at Dardanelle Seminary, Ark.

Forty-six years of Government service should earn a man a "well done thou good and faithful servant" (the quotation is from Shakespeare and someday we may tell you why we remember it). At any rate, a "well done" to William A. Folger, law examiner of the Senate Committee on Patents, who has quit the service and should be Florida-bound by the time you read this.

Also retiring: George H. Loudenslager, of Bureau of Labor Statistics; 32 years' service.

No further bulletins from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on how Assistant FHA Administrator Arthur Walsh is getting along in his battle with the sailfish. But over the week-end his secretary here got a wire to send him his favorite patent medicine by airplane. It looks bad for the loyalists.

Philatelic Birthday

The fifteenth birthday of the Postoffice Department's Philatelic Agency which occurs today finds the agency definitely come of age. Where in the fiscal year of 1922-23 only $105,817 worth of stamps were sold to collectors, last year sales amounted to $1,846,253. For the coming fiscal year, Robert L. Fellers, superintendent of the Division of Stamps, estimates business will be well over the $2,000,000 mark, with more than $1,500,000 of that net profit.

Most of the increase in business is post New Deal, Postmaster General Farley having deliberately gone out to corral the trade of collectors. The agency's latest bid for the collector's trade is to be a new booklet containing photographs of all United States postage stamps issued since 1847. It will be the first time these stamps have been photographed and will be the opening gun in the department's campaign to amend the law forbidding newspapers and periodicals from illustrating United States stamps.

You probably will be as surprised as we were to learn that the number of stamps Uncle Sam has put out runs into the hundreds and not thousands. George Washington, of course, is the most popular figure, with Benjamin Franklin, second, and Lincoln and Jackson, third and fourth. We don't know whether there's any historical significance to when a person is selected to grace a stamp, but it wasn't until 1894 that Madison and Marshall, who made our Constitution, appeared in the upper right-hand corner, while James Monroe had to wait until 1904. Grant and Sherman both turned the trick in 1890, while Martha Washington made her debut in 1902. The longest wait for the recognition of posterity, however, was that of the American Indian who was ignored until 1923.

Hazen, Seal Map District's Legislation

Dozen Prospective Bills Picked for Submission to New Congress.

Anticipating opening of the Seventy-fifth Congress, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal yesterday mapped out the District's general legislative program.

Thumbing through almost 100 bills which died with the last Congress, the two officials picked out a dozen they believed should be introduced again, another dozen on which there should be a public hearing and a third dozen which they decided to refer to departmental heads for reports. The hearing will be held shortly after December 15.

Only two new bills have been placed definitely on the calendar, although several of the old measures are to be modified or strengthened by amendment. All legislation dealing with revenue matters will be held up, it was decided, until the President's fiscal relations committee reports.

The new bills, now being drafted by the Corporation Counsel's office, would authorize sale of the District Building and two lower squares in the Municipal Center site to the Federal Government and would empower the Commissioners to restrain patients with contagious diseases, especially tuberculosis and venereal maladies, from leaving District government hospitals before being cured.

Larceny Fine Change.

Measures which the Commissioners will ask the respective chairmen of the Senate and House District Committees to reintroduce are:

A penal code amendment raising the minimum amount for grand larceny from $35 to $75, and the graduated penalties for habitual criminals, both of which were recommended by the special House sub-committee on crime in the District.

An amendment to the act requiring snow and ice removal from sidewalks to exempt the District government from liability to case of failure to observe the act.

Creation of two classifications of detective sergeants, one with $240 pay raise and the other with $600, and a detail of motorcycle men at $120 salary increase.

Bills to set up qualifications for lawyers, to establish a real estate commission and require licenses for realty brokers, to set up a uniform sales act, to define and regulate usury, to relieve the District disbursing officer of responsibility in a minor defrauding case by a District employe, to substitute the corporation counsel for the United States attorney on the healing arts licensure commission, to amend the jury trials act and to reduce from 6 months to 30 days the time required to file actions against the District.

Measures upon which the views of citizens will be asked were:

Some Passed One House.

Semi-annual inspection of automobiles, an investigation of the cost of and need for a subway, the model narcotics bill which just missed becoming a law at last session, an amendment to the pharmacy act, two small loans bills, the lunacy commission proposal, the "drunk farm" proposal of Commissioner Hazen, to place wrestling under the District Boxing Commission, to extend Prospect street from Foxhall road to Thirtieth street, to extend the powers of the District Commissioners, and mandatory liability insurance for taxicab operators.

Many of the bills placed on the calendar by Hazen and Seal have passed either the House or the Senate, and in some instances were lost in the closing rush of the last Congress.

Some are controversial and are likely to encounter serious opposition both at the public hearing and on Capitol Hill. The broad bill to extend powers of the Commissioners, for example, was roundly debated two years ago and finally pigeonholed

G. W. U. Named Chief Legatee Of $291,000

The George Washington University Law School was named as the principal beneficiary of the $291,000 estate of the late Clarence W. DeKnight, Washington lawyer, who died November 22, it was shown yesterday when his will was filed for probate in District Court.

After providing for 13 bequests, Mr. DeKnight asked that the remainder of his estate be left in trust with the American Security & Trust Co. and Frank F. Nesbit, a lawyer, acting as trustees.

The bequests suggested that 10 per cent of the income be given Lawrence Greely Straight, a friend; 52 per cent to Virginia Brenton Baldwin, of New York City, 20 per cent to Frances Green, Mr. DeKnight's secretary; 20 per cent to James T. Clark, a local attorney and 25 per cent to Mrs. May Baldwin, of New York City.

Among the bequests were provisions that Dr. William Gerry Morgan, one-time president of the American Medical Association, be given $1,000 and that Mrs. L. G. Taxicab Driver Held on Homicide Charge In Death of G. U. Teacher's Bride After Crash Coroner's Jury Acts on Witness' Evidence at Local Inquest.

A coroner's jury, at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Beatrice Baker, 23, wife of Dr. Charles J. Baker, Georgetown University professor, yesterday held Malcolm Crockett, 29-year-old taxi driver, under the negligent homicide act.

Crockett was at the wheel of the cab that collided with the big touring car in which Mrs. Baker and her husband were riding with James T. Lowe, 23, of 1309 Floral street northwest, early Thanksgiving morning.

Mrs. Baker died instantly when the big automobile overturned and pinned her beneath it. The accident occurred at Connecticut avenue and I street northwest.

A witness told the jury Crockett was traveling at a high rate of speed at the time of the crash.

Lowe, who also is on the faculty of Georgetown University, told the jury he had almost cleared the intersection when the crash occurred.

The car in which Mrs. Baker was riding was proceeding east, the cab north. Crockett, on the witness stand, asserted he thought "the other machine would slow down" and let him pass.

Lowe, however, said the taxi was half a block away when he saw it.

His face haggard and his eyes redrimmed, Dr. Baker took the stand and said softly that his bride was resting her head on his shoulder, and that he had his cheek on her head.

The first he knew of the crash, he stated, was when he felt himself hurtling through the air.

Raymond Jackson, a night watchman at the Army and Navy Club, adjacent to the scene of the tragedy, said he saw the taxi traveling between 35 and 40 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

Crockett, on the other hand, told the jury he was not exceeding the speed limit. The other car, he asserted, was traveling "at a terrific speed."

All Lowe could remember of the accident was "a sudden glow of headlights and the resounding crash," after he saw the cab half a block away.

Retus Griffith, a nurse, who was riding in the taxi, said Crockett was "very careful."

"He even stopped before he crossed the intersection," she said.

Research Is Urged For Social Work

The place of research, and its interpretation in a community program was outlined yesterday by Dr. Ewan Clague, assistant director of the bureau of research and statistics of the Social Security Board, in a talk before the Council of Social Agencies. The meeting, held at the Y. W. C. A. at Seventeenth and K streets northwest, was sponsored by the research committee of the council headed by Willard C. Smith. Dr. Clague urged the use of research and proper reporting as a preliminary to the launching of any community program. He cited the need for a basic knowledge upon which to build such a program and declared that it could be obtained only by thorough preliminary investigation.

Group Urges Law To Bar Outsiders From D.C. Schools

Enactment by Congress of legislation that would prohibit children of Maryland and Virginia from going to District schools was asked in a resolution adopted last night by the Trinidad Citizens Association.

The resolution was introduced by J. H. Thomas, who urged that the association indorse any action Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of schools, might take to prevent nearly 2,500 non-resident children from attending already crowded classrooms. After discussion, the resolution was changed to a request for the legislation.

British Team Debates Politics of U. S. at G.W.

Before an overflow audience in Stockton Hall, George Washington University speakers and a team representing the Union of British Students last night debated the merits of the two-party system in the United States.

The visiting British debaters, Asher Sheinfield of the Universities of Wales and Birmingham, and G. B. Young, of the London School of Economics, contended that the Republican and Democratic parties too closely resemble Tweedledum versus Tweedledee to fulfill the true functions of a party system. Edwin Cage and William Rochelle, representing George Washington, defended the American party system. There was no decision.

Final Verdict On Closed Bank Due This Week

A final verdict on the fate of the closed Fidelity Savings & Loan Co. is expected this week, it was learned last night. An announcement by Friday was indicated.

Whether the bank will be reopened or instead have its assets liquidated and the depositors paid off some percentage of their savings is a matter resting in the hands of the Comptroller General of the Treasury.

Numerous reorganization plans have been laid before Gibbs Lyons, assistant comptroller, and he has been awaiting a satisfactory appraisal of the loan company's assets and debits before coming to a decision.

James H. Nolan, receiver appointed recently to hasten the clearing up of the firm's affairs, meanwhile, yesterday announced that he had sent out letters urging 3,600 depositors to file claims for the amounts due them.

Nolan declared that for some reason this large number, which constitutes about one-fourth of all the claimants, have been dilatory in filing their claims with him. Most of the tardy claims are for small amounts ranging between 50 cents and $150.

2 Briefs Filed In Fight Over Bus Routing

Citizens' Unit Supports Thirteenth Street for Takoma Park Line.

Two voluminous briefs, one urging and the other opposing the routing of the proposed Takoma Park bus line along Ninth street, were filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission.

A joint mass transportation committee for North Washington filed a brief indorsing the substitution of bus lines for street-car service beyond Fourteenth street and Colorado avenue, but opposing the Ninth street routing suggested by the Ninth street business men.

William A. Roberts, former people's counsel, filed a lengthy document setting forth reasons why Ninth street instead of Thirteenth street should be chosen.

The commission is expected to decide the case in the near future, possibly this week, in favor of the substitution of buses. It has not indicated, however, what route it will choose, although it is believed Thirteenth will be selected.

Cites Residents' View.

The citizens committee, which represents three citizens groups, stated its objection to Ninth street was based on the testimony of residents.

"This route is considered so undesirable," the brief said, "that we do wish the extended service, but prefer to retain the present express bus route."

Roberts pointed out that Ninth Street, Associated, his client, has $10,000,000 invested on the "street that was once the city's major commercial thoroughfare." He added that in establishing the Takoma bus route the commission should look to the future.

"It is certain," he said, "that in a few years the increasing number of buses necessary to serve the Takoma area must be routed through Ninth street" because of growing congestion on Thirteenth street and Vermont avenue.

Other Proposals.

The citizens' committee, headed by George A. Corbin, also urged that the Third and Kennedy street car line be discontinued, that the proposed shuttle bus service connecting with the car line at Fourteenth street have a frequency of not less than ten minutes, that a rush-hour-express service be established on Third street and Kansas avenue, that the present Takoma express line on Fifth street provide nonrush-hour service with two branches at its northern terminus.

"The 16 buses which the Capital Transit Co. proposes to purchase are insufficient to furnish the service which the communities affected are entitled to," the brief stated, adding that the commission should order more be purchased and insist that all buses on the line be in first-class condition.

Lou Gevinson Awarded Technical K.O. in Professional Debut

Foe, Floored Repeatedly, Not Out

Referee Halts Bout in Fifth; Henry Winner in Semifinal.

By Bill McCormick.

Lou Gevinson, the highly touted District amateur featherweight champion, made his professional debut by scoring a fifth-round technical knockout over Al Shaeffer before a crowd of 1,200 at Turner's Arena last night.

The finish came after 2 minutes and 40 seconds of the fifth round of the scheduled six-rounder when Referee Muggsy Morris for some reason decided Al had had enough, even though the Baltimore battler appeared in no worse shape than he had been at any time after the first 30 seconds of fighting.

Lou had Shaeffer on the floor at the outset from a right hook to the jaw. The local southpaw again floored Al in the first round—this time with a left to the chin. Shaeffer was down again in the second and third, but Gevinson simply lacked the experience to enable him to make a clean-cut job of the task of knocking Al insensible.

Shaeffer Offers Problem.

A pretty weak puncher at his best, Shaeffer quickly had all the wallop knocked out of him, but even at that he was able to give Gevinson a few minutes of anxiety. These anxious moments were mostly occasioned by Al's bewildering (to Lou) habit of bouncing back in after being hit by a staggering sock to deliver a few of his best belts in exchange.

Shaeffer was floored for an eight count early in the first round as Lou made a three-point landing on his chin with a sizzling right hook.

Shaeffer then rammed home two rights to the body and one to the jaw, but Gevinson retaliated with a two-fisted attack, each blow of which whirled the Baltimore batter half off balance.

Lou floored Shaeffer for no count with a left to the head again at the outset of the second round, but Al jumped up to plant a solid right in Gevinson's midsection which made the former amateur champion blink in bewilderment.

Shaeffer Is Down Again.

Early in the third round Lou landed another left which seemed only to stagger Shaeffer, but as Al rolled about the ring, he seemed to decide the best place for him was on the floor, so he plumped himself down without being hit to take an eight count. Arising, Shaeffer doubled up like an accordion, smiling tantalizingly at Gevinson as the converted amateur seemed at a loss as to the proper method of unfolding him. At this point Shaeffer was out, but not down.

In the fourth, Shaeffer's best round, the eventual loser started slamming Gevinson in the midsection. Suddenly he shifted to the head and landed a smashing right to the nose. Gevinson slammed back, however, and by this time Al was just too weak to even take the round, which he lost by a slight margin.

Came the fifth and Shaeffer seemed to be doing as well as ever. He was again employing his ducking, crablike defense to the utter amazement of Gevinson when Referee Morris had one of those sudden inspirations, and halted the bout.

In the remaining six-rounder on the card, Joe Temes took a split decision from Ray Ingram.

Navy's Eleven Defended by Hamilton

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 30.—The Naval Academy turned to preparations for a heavy winter sport schedule today, with Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton, head football coach, declaring that the team that beat Army Saturday was the "best Navy team I've ever seen."

"We have come through a gruelling season, the toughest schedule a Navy team has ever played, and being more intimate than anyone with our squad, I feel called upon to say something about them," he said. "In my opinion no one, sports writers or otherwise, have given due credit to this Navy team.

"The Navy has never been better represented. We have never had a squad which has lived up to the fighting traditions of the service more than this outfit. This team absorbed a series of the most discouraging breaks any team can take in our games With Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania, three of the best teams in the country.

"Now many discredit our victory over Army. True, Army was represented by a well-coached, powerful football team, and the game was typical of the hard fighting, bruising contests that our two services always play. Our team was one which would not be satisfied with a defeat, tie or anything but a win, and demonstrated that fact throughout the game.

"There never was a time that Army was able to make the necessary yardage when it was essential, and the 74-yard march for the winning touchdown at the end of the game was typical of the fighting hearts of the boys on this squad.

"As to the pass interference decision, such rulings always bring comment. To my mind the pass would have been completed had it been legally played."

International Loop Eager For Ruth

By the United Press.

Montreal, Nov. 30.—The International Baseball League promised "real action" for tomorrow after deciding "nothing of importance" at its first meeting today.

The league meeting precedes the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues' convention Wednesday. Possibility of Babe Ruth taking the managerial reins of the Albany Senators next year was not discussed formally, but it was the main topic of conversation everywhere except in the committee rooms. It was rumored widely that the Bambino would arrive tomorrow.

It was reported that other International League owners were willing to back Albany Owner Joe Cambria in his effort to sign Ruth, even to the point of making up the salary Wednesday. Passibility of Babe Ruth believed necessary.

Huskies Mum On Rival at Rose Bowl

Washington to Be Aided by Stanford Officials; Pitt Possibility.

By the Associated Press.

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 30.—The Tournament of Roses football committee was "just as puzzled as the fans" tonight over who will play the University of Washington in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

In Seattle rumor had it that "contact" had been made with some Eastern opponent for the huskies, but university men wouldn't affirm it. Talk centered around Louisiana State, Alabama and Pittsburgh.

But Ray Eskmann, athletic director at the University of Washington, insisted nothing would be announced definitely until he has conferred with the Tournament of Roses committee here.

"Nothing will be announced until after I have conferred with Stanford officials and the committee," he said in Seattle today. "Sometime this week we will make a formal announcement."

He explained his planned meeting with Stanford officials because "I want to get the benefit of their long experience in Rose Bowl matters. The Stanford Indians have represented the West in the Pasadena game the last three years.

The Washington huskies, enjoying a vacation at present, will go back into training December 12 and probably will come here December 22.

C. Hal Reynolds, chairman of the tournament football committee, explained today why the Western team always is picked from and by the Pacific Coast Conference.

The committee, he said, asked the conference's co-operation when the game was established 20 years ago.

"There is no written contract, not even a verbal contract, between the Tournament of Roses Association and the conference in staging this game. There never has been anything but a gentleman's agreement.

"Yet the conference has made it possible to hold this game and to build our bowl.

"Almost every year the strongest team on the coast is a member of the Pacific Coast Conference, but every five or six years some other school comes along with one that looks pretty good.

"It may be very good, but we've been going along with the conference for years, and just because some newcomer happens along and looks a little flashier, well, we don't intend to ditch our old friend.

"It might be pointed out that the Rose Bowl isn't and never has been billed as a championship affair of any description. We simply announce it as an intersectional game between two of the outstanding teams of the Nation, one from the West, the other from another section of the country."

Minnesota Rates No. 1 In National Grid Pool

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Washington	8	4	6	10	6	6	5

New York, Nov. 30.—Minnesota's Gophers hold their place as America's No. 1 college football team by a decisive margin over Louisiana State, champion of the deep South, in the final national ranking poll conducted by the Associated Press for 1936.

Results compiled this week in the seventh country-wide consensus reveal Minnesota the choice among 25 out of 35 experts. Nine placed L. S. U. at the top of their lists. One first-place ballot was cast for Santa Clara, the Nation's only major unbeaten and untied team.

The final rankings with points tallied on a basis of 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1:

Pitt and Huskies Climb.

The chief shakeups this week, with the regular season closed for all but two of the "top ten," find Pittsburgh displacing Alabama in third place, and Washington, the Far West's Rose Bowl choice, hurdling its Coast rival, Santa Clara, for fifth position.

It is interesting to note, in connection with pending post-season pairings, that Louisiana State is rated tougher opposition than Alabama, reported to have the "inside track" for the big-money Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day.

The ranking list clearly points to the best intersectional matches, with Pittsburgh a heavy choice to play in the Sugar Bowl, at New Orleans, against the Southern team that doesn't go to Pasadena to meet Washington. Big Ten regulations prevent Minnesota from considering any post-season competition.

Fordham Skids Far Down.

Fordham lost prestige at the close of the season, falling from third place to fifteenth within the past two weeks, but the East generally made a strong showing, placing seven teams among the 20 listed in the final ranking. Pennsylvania, Yale and Dartmouth represent the "Ivy League."

The Middle West, however, dominated the top ten, with four of its five entries in the first half of the list. The South gained four places, the Southwest and Far West, two each.

Iowa State Aide Named Head Coach

Ames, Iowa, Nov. 30 (AP).—George Veenker, Iowa State College athletics director and head football coach, today resigned as coach and announced appointment of James Y. Yeager, an assistant coach, to the position.

Veenker said he would retain his post as athletic director and head of the college physical education department.

He also announced the resignation of Robert I. Simpson, track coach, and Mme. Daubert, swimming coach, effective July 1 next year.

Hockey Player Hurt.

Toronto, Nov. 30 (AP).—Bob Davidson, wingman of Toronto Maple Leafs, crashed into the boards during the team's workout today and injured his spine. It is believed he will be out of action for a week or ten days.

98 Grid Tilts Captured by Lone Point

By Dillon Graham,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Many a dent in the battered dope bucket of 1936 football was put there by the single point after touchdown, the field goal and the safety.

Scoreless duels and other kinds of deadlocks also figured in the upsets.

The extra point—a drop-kick, a running play, a place-kick or a pass, bringing about the seventh point tagged to a touchdown—has decided 98 games this fall.

It saved, for a while, the unbeaten hopes of Fordham against St. Mary's, Marquette against Creighton and Northwestern against Ohio State. It finally brought about Fordham's only defeat, by New York U. It kept Harvard from tying Yale in their Big Three tussle. It twice protected Washington State, in games with California and

Grid Rule on Pass Interference Challenged As Touchdown Club Discusses Service Game

Impelled by the pass interference decision in the Army and Navy game, members of the Touchdown Club fired words like Slingin' Sammy Baugh's passes at their weekly luncheon meeting at the Lafayette Hotel yesterday—and no penalties were called because of interference.

The pass interference rule was booted around like a wet pigskin and defended with equal vigor. When President Johnny McGovern, former All-American quarterback for Minnesota, finally called it a day the speakers had battled to a finish with Dutch Eberts, Bryan Morse and Buck O'Neill more or less arrayed against Dutch Bergman and Col. Horatio B. Hackett, veteran referee and field judge.

Eberts, another outstanding official; Morse, official and former coach, and Sportswriter O'Neill expressed themselves in no uncertain terms against changing the present rule on interference. Col. Hackett just as strenuously called for immediate change and Bergman, coach of Catholic U.'s Cardinals, thought the present rule is "quite drastic" and "puts altogether too much of a burden on the officials."

An abbreviated play-by-play description of the good-natured verbal tilt follows:

COL. HACKETT—"I've been fighting this pass interference rule for ten years. We ought to recommend to the rules committee that the present rule be changed to a 15-yard penalty except where the offense occurs within the 5-yard line.

O'NEILL—"There was no question about the interconference in the Army game. If you take Col. Hackett's plan, you will have smart backfield men and smart coaches playing an 'interference defense.' On long passes, a 15-yard penalty is preferable to a completed pass."

BERGMAN—"The present rule puts a terrific burden on the field judge out there. The rule is quite drastic. Something must be done about it."

EBERTS—"It isn't up to the rules committee to see about this rule. It's up to the coaches to make their players live up to it. The rule is all right, and if the coaches teach the boys to refrain from any positive act aside from attempting to get the ball, it would clear things up."

BERGMAN—"It's only human for a boy to impulsively interfere with a sure catch. A coach can coach a boy, but he can't think for him."

MORSE—"It is comparatively easy to distinguish whether the defensive player is attempting to catch the ball or interfere with the receiver's equilibrium. The official knows how to call 'em. The rule is clear on it and ought to stand."

Col. Hackett said he had called the West Point Academy in the morning, and the Army coaching staff had not yet looked at moving pictures of the game. He said nobody at the academy ventured an excuse for the defeat.

EL PRODUCTO for real enjoyment

That's due to two things—good tobacco, and advanced methods in cigar blending.

The choicest Havana—and plenty of it—goes into El Producto. Then it is cunningly blended with other equally costly tobaccos to give a cigar that sparkles with taste, yet is so mild you can smoke it all day long.

It is just a question of quality—in the tobacco and in the making. And the marvel of it all is that such quality can be produced for as little as 10c.

Guyon, Ordered to Rest, Not to Coach Eastern's 1936-37 Five

Kelley Takes Over Duties Of Chief

By John R. Voburgh.

For the first time in his 16 years of service, Chief Charlie Guyon is giving up his place in the starting line-up of Eastern High's coaching staff. The Chief, producer of five interhigh basketball championship teams and seven interhigh baseball winners, is relinquishing his duties as basketball coach to the veteran Mike Kelley.

A heart ailment, best remedied by a period of rest, is the direct cause of the Chief's retirement. He is retaining his post as baseball coach in the hope he may be able to tutor again on the diamond in the spring.

Friends of the Chief, alarmed at two rather sudden lapses in his health in recent months, succeeded after some difficulty in persuading him to give up his basketball duties and take a prolonged siesta. Examination by the city's foremost heart specialist, including moving pictures of the Chief's heart, disclosed that the popular coach is in no serious peril and may safely convalesce by resting.

The rotund, roly-poly Ojibway, christened Charles Mayo Guyon on a reservation in Minnesota, has been coaching for Eastern since 1920. With the exception of 1933 and 1934, he has coached basketball every year. His latest team won the inter-high title for the past two years, rolling up a record of consecutive inter-high victories which has not been approached in the inter-high series.

Kelley, military instructor at Eastern, is no newcomer to the coaching field. He, too, started coaching in 1920. After four years coaching all sports at Business High, Kelley was transferred to Central where he coached baseball and football for four years. He turned out a championship football team in 1925 and in 1927 his gridders tied for the title.

Shifted to Eastern.

In 1928, he shifted to Eastern, where he turned out the inter-high track champions in 1928, 1929 and 1930. In 1933 Guyon took over football and Kelley coached basketball, leading his team to the South Atlantic interscholastic title at Washington and Lee University and the next year to the inter-high title. Guyon took the reins in 1935 and has retained the title for Eastern since then. The Chief is probably the most colorful and one of the most popular sports figures along the South Atlantic seaboard.

Kelley's basketball duties incidentally will replace his tutoring young men in the art of war games. Assistant Principal Chester Holmes is taking over that burden.

98 Grid Battles Decided by Point

Other games settled in this manner included: Boston College 13, Holy Cross 12; Utah State 14, Colorado 13; Tennessee 7, Kentucky 6; Denver 7, Colorado 6; Chicago 7, Wisconsin 6, and North Carolina 14, New York U. 13.

The field goal was the winning margin in 45 games. Illinois and Texas A. & Md. twice had it to thank. Illinois beat DePaul and Michigan, and the Texas Aggies won from Hardin-Simmons and Rice. Other major games decided this way included: Baylor 10, Rice 7; Navy 3, Notre Dame 0; Centenary 3, Texas A. & M. 0; Texas Christian 10, Tulsa 7; Washington State 3, Oregon 0, and Temple 3, Holy Cross 0.

Ninety-eight scoreless draws were recorded. A nothing-nothing dogfight with Tennessee was the only blemish on Alabama's slate, and the same type deadlock against Denver marred Utah State's score sheet.

Total of 174 Draws.

Among the other 0-0 battles were Texas Christian-Southern Methodist, Holy Cross-St. Anselm's, Boston College-Boston University, Temple-Bucknell, Illinois-Iowa, Southern California-Washington State, Texas A. & M.-Baylor, Georgia Tech-Vanderbilt, Texas Christian-Mississippi State, Fordham-Pittsburgh and Auburn-Tulane.

There were 76 other deadlocks, making a total of 174 draws, including the 0-0 contests.

Georgia scored one of the biggest upsets by tying Fordham, 7-7. The Princeton-Dartmouth and the Princeton-Harvard contests were stalemates. An early season 6-6 tie with Texas has been the only blot on Louisiana State's banner. Other such deadlocks: Indiana 20, Purdue 20; Southern California 7, U. C. L. A. 7; Boston College 7, Michigan State 7; Temple 7, Michigan State 7; Stanford 14, Washington 14.

The little two-point safety brought disaster—or triumph, depending on the viewpoint—in 20 games. It booted Duke out of its Rose Bowl hopes, as Tennessee won 15 to 13. It upset Duquesne the week after the Dukes had bowled over Pittsburgh and it figured twice in Dartmouth's win over Yale.

Denton Upsets Layton, 50-28, in Cue Tourney

Chicago, Nov. 30 (AP).—The veteran Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, pulled one of the major upsets of the world's three-cushion billiard tournament tonight, defeating the favored Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., 50 to 28, in a duel that went 61 innings.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

This is the breathless season for those earnest young men in the college publicity offices who have put away their mimeograph machines and are surveying the fruits of their propaganda.

Each All-American, All-Eastern, All-State, All-County team now appearing in the public prints is laden, for these lads, with the keen satisfaction of a job well done or the biting pain of unappreciated effort.

POVICH.

Their heroes were out there on the field only on Saturday afternoons but these press agents were in there battling every day for favorable notices, flooding the sport editors' desks with superlatives.

This business of winning for their favorites places on the All-American, All-State or All-Something team has come to be the gauge by which these college press agents are measured. A 90-yard run to a touchdown may be hot news on Sunday morning but it takes a clever piece of press-agentry to keep it in the news for a week.

And so it is that, as the critics announce their all-star selections at this stage of the season, the public relations fellows riffle the sports pages eagerly to scan the results of their work. And for every omission of the name of Joe Whoozis, the star guard of old Comatose State, a broken-hearted press agent is probably slumped over the roller of his mimeograph machine sobbing "What's the use?" or words to that effect.

But the lad who has undertaken to enlighten the football world with respect to the talents of one George Karamatic, of Gonzaga University at Spokane, Wash., will never be blamed for any failure of Karamatic to make the All-American team. He has written an All-American blurb anent Karamatic that shames the efforts of all of his contemporary press agents. I give it to you, with quotes:

"And now comes handsome George (Automatic) Karamatic, Aberdeen, Wash., Slav, to belittle the long string of Gonzaga gridiron greats with the most dazzling and portentous career in the history of the little Spokane school.

"One great football player a year has become a tradition at Gonzaga. Somehow, somewhere, Gonzaga coaches have managed to shake out a football luminary without fail each season . . . the ranks of professional football are studded with Gonzaga stars.

"In George Karamatic, Coach Mike Pecarovich has outdone himself. He has turned out Gonzaga's first All-Coast selection, a boy who in his junior year is talked of freely as an All-America.

"Unlike his predecessors who have flashed to fame in the pro game, Karamatic is the one football player in a thousand who really does all his football assignments well . . . critics see Automatic George in different lights. One thinks his kicking is his greatest asset. Another likes his punt and kick-off returning best. Still others dote on his tackling, blocking or line crashing . . . but all agree he is the McCoy from soup to nuts."

(Editor's note—Our young Gonzaga press agent has not warmed up yet, in case you are still following us. In a little while he will really begin saying things about Karamatic. Pardon the interruption.)

"'It is not Karamatic's fault that he is a great football player,' declared Coach Pecarovich. 'He just can't help it. Fate dealt him a winning hand in a head full of football sense, a body moulded for the business, the blinding speed of an express train.'

"The Karamatic chassis is something to cogitate upon. It weighs 190 pounds on any man's scales. Beneath a pair of piano legs lurk springs of steel. The fleetness of a deer is combined with the crashing power of a moose. The shoulders and torso plans were filched from the Flatiron Building blueprints. The neck was modeled after a beer keg. The arms and hands may be traced to Tarzan's jungle friends.

"Somewhere beneath the rock-ribbed Karamatic chest beats a V-12 motor. Knee-action bumpers fore and aft, snubbers and shock absorbers are part of his stock equipment. . . . The pro scouts will be sitting on the front doorstep when George graduates."

If it's true what they say about Georgie he doesn't have to worry about making the All-American team. He is the All-American team.

D. C. Colleges Facing Active Court Season

If you thought that was an exhilarating football season we just came through, take another deep breath and hold tight, because this basketball campaign coming up promises to be absolutely the best since Kate Smith was an underweght sophomore at old Business High School.

Practice hasn't officially started at Maryland, because the football team hasn't quit playing, and Vic Willis and Waverly Wheeler, two vital cogs in the court machine, also are members of the gridiron club, Maryland version. But pot shots and snowbirds are being manufactured at a mile-a-minute pace on other college courts, and almost any day now you'll hear a chap with white pants on blow his whsitle and yell:

"Hacking, two shots."

Prospects for winning seasons were never brighter at all four major schools in any one year as this. As "Fod" Cotton, of Catholic U. once remarked, "The only thing that'll keep 'em from having an undefeated year will be the opposition." That goes for all. The competition. Ha, that's something to brag about, too, for some of the best quintets in the East will try their magic on the local clubs.

Georgetown's "cripples" are doing quite well in practice, thank you, and Freddy Mesmer, their coach, is smiling for the first time in years. Mike Petrosky, who underwent an appendectomy about five weeks ago, is practicing, but not jumping center. Mike expects to start jumping within 10 days, however, and promises to be at his best when the Hoyas invade Madison Square Garden for their annual game with New York University.

Carroll Shore's return to school will be a big help to the team, and those unerring pot shots of his certainly will add to the Hoyas' scores. Tommy Nolan, Buddy Nau, Johnny Franks and all of last year's regulars, with exception of Don Gibeau are back again, and should go places.

With Vic Willis, "Little Knocky" Thomas, Al Waters, Wheeler and Charley Keller returning, Maryland has the makings of a Southern Conference trouble-maker if not a champion. It might behoove university officials to arrange for Ben Allen's transportation from Baltimore to College Park again this winter, and if possible, bring over a couple more like him. Big Ben easily was the best man on the floor when he played last winter.

George Washington is looking forward to another successful year with Hal Kiesel, Tommy O'Brien and Sid Silkowitz leading the parade. Silkowitz, the big Jewish boy from New York who identified George Washington's football players for the benefit of the press at football games, and who insisted on calling Joey Kaufman "Cowfman," is a newcomer, but if his work with the freshmen is any criterion, he is real varsity timber.

"Fod" Cotton will have his troubles at Catholic University, and the biggest seems to be the lack of guards and a center. Bernie Liem's loss will be felt keenly. He was the boy who made the Cardinals' click. His passing, cutting, picking-off and at times shooting made him the most valuable man on the club and without him Catholic is going to be a hit-and-miss team.

Capt. Zeke Brown, Hermie Schmarr, Bill Adamaitis, "Irish" Carroll, Sam Pagano and Joe Yanchulis are back from last year and will be in there fighting, probably for their jobs. Only four newcomers are on the 10-man squad, Wayne Ambrose, who looks more like a prize-fighter; Bernie Robinson, who may have the making; Walter Castonguay and Frank Krawczell.

Duke Given 5 Conference Positions

Parker Unanimous Choice in A.P. Poll; Berth to Guckeyson, Md.

By Barton Pattie.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30.—Football coaches, scouts and sports editors looked over a huge varsity squad of more than 400 players today and selected five Duke University Blue Devils for the 1936 Associated Press All-Southern Conference eleven.

The experts were unanimous in their choice of Clarence (Ace) Parker for the backfield and thereby established the spectacular Portsmouth, Va., youth as captain of the mythical team. The gifted Parker also made the All-Southern in 1934 and 1935.

North Carolina, runner-up to Duke for the conference championship for the past two seasons, placed a sturdy pair on the first team, while Furman, V. M. I., Davidson and Maryland were awarded one berth each.

Bershak Highly Rated.

Andy Bershak, North Carolina's brilliant end, gained the second highest number of votes to Parker, while Jim Hutchins, another Tarheel, was the choice by a wide margin for fullback.

Big Jim Farley, pilot of V. M. I.'s Flying Squadron, made the All-Southern for the second year at guard, while Dick Johnson, Davidson captain, was named as his running mate.

Bob King, Furman skipper, was given the other end assignment. Bill Guckeyson, Maryland's fleet ace, was the choice to work with Hackney at halfback. The Old Liner, a four sports star, also made the 1935 team.

Dick Buck, North Carolina captain and a member of last year's All-Southern, was nosed out by King by one vote. Teeny Lafferty, Davidson ball-carrying flash, ran only three points behind Hackney. Lafferty's total votes topped those of any other second-team player and exceeded the support given several first-string linemen.

Differ Widely on Line.

The conference was dotted with capable guards and tackles this season and it was for these positions that the scribes and mentors showed the widest differences in opinion. Duane Berry, Washington and Lee; Woodrow Lipscomb, Duke; John Trimpey, North Carolina; Manuel Black, Clemson; Paul Gaffney, South Carolina, and Alex Regdon, North Carolina State, were heavily backed.

Sports editors of 25 daily papers in the conference area joined with 19 coaches and scouts in the All-Southern Conference balloting.

All-Conference

BILL GUCKEYSON, Maryland University ace, who was named in the All-Southern Conference backfield by an Associated Press poll of sports writers and coaches in conference territory.

Four Utah State Players on Star Team

KentRyan Only Unanimous Selection in Rocky Mountain Area.

By the Associated Press.

The slashing, durable halfback led Utah State to the conference championship.

Every coach, sports writer and official marking a ballot named Ryan for the Associated Press All-Conference team for the third consecutive year. He was the only player who won unanimous backing.

The most popular lineman was Alex Drobnitch, Denver University's chubby, courageous guard, who came within one vote of gaining undisputed title to one guard post. He and Ryan are the only players holding over from the 1935 All-Conference outfit.

Other Utah Men.

Three other veterans, besides Ryan, from the undefeated Utah State team won places on the honor eleven. Colorado University, Denver and Utah landed two positions each and Colorado State one.

Gene Moore, Colorado's rangy 195-pounder from Casper, Wyo., was almost the sole choice for center. Ed Peterson, Utah State, and 230-pound Frank Barnhart, Greeley State, ran almost shoulder to shoulder for the other guard berth, and Leonard Volz, Colorado State, had trouble in grabbing the fullback job from Ray Johnson, Denver.

Three Eye League Plans Reorganization in 1937

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 30 (AP).—The Three-Eye League, oldest class B circuit in professional baseball, has been reorganized for 1937 with six cities supporting teams, it was announced today.

The circuit, suspended at the close of the 1935 season, will be comprised of teams from Decatur, Peoria and Moline in Illinois, Evansville and Terre Haute, Ind., and Clinton, Iowa. There is also a possibility that an eight-club league may be formed if two cities from either Bloomington, Springfield or Quincy, Ill., decide to accept franchises.

Hunt Beginning And Big Leagues' Bosses Aim Guns

By Paul Mickelson.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 30.—Trade winds began to skirl a gale of rumors and guesses today as major and minor league baseball nabobs, shrewd fellows who could make David Harum look like a hick at Coney Island, headed toward Montreal for their annual shopping and swapping tour.

The player market, jammed with trading material, promised to be lively, but without the usual accompaniment of tinkling dollars. Every club owner, though fairly flush after a great 1936 season, avowedly is out to trade and sell, but not to part with their hard earned greenbacks.

Foremost in the minds of the nabobs, naturally, is interest in the Bob Feller case. Most of them expect Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis to declare the sensational schoolboy pitcher property of the Cleveland Indians, but they don't want to be caught short of cash in case the czaristic commissioner rules Feller a free agent and throws him on the open market.

No one knows for sure what merchandise the magnates will pick up this week, but briefly down the line, this is what they're after:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Detroit Tigers—The Bengals, reversing procedure, are on a big man hunt. They may swap First Baseman Rudy York, good looking farm hand from Milwaukee, to the White Sox for Pitcher John Whitehead, who eats too much to suit Jimmy Dykes.

Chicago—First Baseman Zeke Bonura, long-range hitter but no ballet dancer around the first sack, is on the market along with Whitehead for a good infielder.

Cleveland—The Indians are worrying about Feller. They may use Roy Hughes as bait for a third baseman.

Boston Red Sox—Owner Tom Yawkey says the rubber band is on his bank roll this time but he's easily tempted. He may swap three or four players, including Wesley Ferrell.

St. Louis Browns—With a new owner, Rogers Hornsby, a pretty slick guy, may pull some fast deals. The Brownies need everything except neckties.

Philadelphia—Connie Mack always pulls a deal or two but this time he says he hasn't anything to offer—that his '37 A's will stay in the cellar.

Washington—Clark Griffith, the old fox, says he's coming up to Montreal just to look around but he'll swing at least one deal.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York Giants—Bill Terry is ready to swap his whole club. Outfielder Hank Leiber, who refused to stop playing football at Phoenix, Ariz., this fall at Boss Bill's ultimatum, is sure to be traded.

Chicago Cubs—Owner Phil K. Wrigley wants a "Gas House Gang" at Wrigley Field.

St. Louis Cardinals—The Cards want pitchers. They claim to have Dizzy Dean on the market but want a whole ball club for him. They may make one of the biggest deals in history.

Cincinnati Reds—Manager Chuck Dressen, who predicts the Reds will finish ahead of the Giants next year, probably will swap a pitcher to the Pittsburgh Pirates for an outfielder who can hit, maybe Paul Waner.

Pittsburgh—The Pirates, like everyone else, want Van Lingle Mungo from Brooklyn, and the word is out they'd gladly swap Paul Waner and Infielder Cookie Lavagetto for the Dodger fireball ace.

Boston Bees—"Don't expect to buy even a bag of peanuts," says President Quinn.

Brooklyn—The Dodgers will try anything once. They need everything but a playing field.

Louis' Next Foe

EDDIE SIMMS.

Simms Signed; Meets Louis Dec. 14

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Nov. 30.—Eddie Simms, Cleveland heavyweight, was signed today to meet Joe Louis in the main bout of the Cleveland News Christmas Fund Boxing Show December 14. Johnny Risko, originally scheduled to meet Louis, was forced to withdraw when he received a fractured rib in training last week.

Simms fought in Washington in 1934. He dropped a decision to Don Petrin at Griffith Stadium on that occasion. Somewhat of a knockout artist, Simms has flattened such fighters as Angus Snyder, Jack O'Dowd, Joe Doktor and Gene Stanton.

Simms has won decisions from Dick Daniels, Jack Kranz, Jack Van Noy and Al Ettore. Kranz was knocked out by Louis at the very outset of the Brown Bomber's career. Ettore was stopped by Louis last month after four rounds of fairly even fighting.

Simms fought a draw with Hans Birkie, who lasted nine rounds with Louis, and Bob Pastor, who has been prominently mentioned as a possible opponent for Joe in a New York bout.

A total of 102,590 tickets were sold for the game. In addition, the Navy issued 2,423 passes to persons working within the stadium.

67,000 Hunters Licensed by Maryland

Deer Season Opens in 2 Counties Today; One Buck Is Limit.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 30.—The State game department prefaced today the opening of Maryland's abbreviated deer season with an announcement 67,000 hunting licenses have been issued to the counties and Baltimore City.

Deer hunters go into action tomorrow in Garrett and Allegany counties and on the private game preserves of the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club in Frederick County. The Garrett season lasts 5 days, the Allegany season 10, with Woodmont sportsmen allowed to hunt 15 days.

Warden Warns of Limit.

State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte warned deer hunters today to comply with the State law requiring a report to the game department within 24 hours after a deer is killed.

LeCompte explained the successful hunter must list his name, address, hunting license number and where the deer was killed. Hunters are limited to one deer each per season. Only buck deer with two points to one antler may be taken, he pointed out.

There is no special license required for deer hunting.

Commenting on an apparent rush for additional hunting licenses, LeCompte said 2,105 additional permits have been mailed out to county and city authorities, at their request, since the upland game season opened November 15.

54,900 Resident Licenses.

On that date, 64,900 licenses already had been distributed for sale. The figure included 54,900 county resident licenses, 8,520 State-wide, 610 long-term nonresident, and 870 short-term nonresident.

Since then, 17 counties and Baltimore City have requested additional State-wide tags. A number sought added supplies of county resident and nonresident licenses as well, LeCompete said.

Harman Re-signed For 3 Yrs. by Penn

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—Harvey Harman, head football coach at the University of Pennsylvania, was reappointed today for a term of three years.

The reappointment set at rest rumors that Harman would be replaced as head coach in spite of Penn's record of seven triumphs in eight games this year. Harman was in disfavor last year when the Penn team won only four of eight games.

Big Leaguers Bag 4 Coyotes, Bob Cat

Blanca, Colo., Nov. 30 (AP).—Hunting has been good in southwestern Colorado for Sam West and Roy (Beau) Bell, outfielders with the St. Louis Browns.

In three days hunting in the Sand Dunes country near here, they shot four coyotes and a bobcat, as well as the bag limit of wild ducks each day.

Mrs. Christmas' Aroused Captures Charles Town Inaugural

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., Nov. 30.—The Christmas forces, of Marlboro, Md., were off to a flying start as the Charles Town Jockey Club opened its two-week meeting here today.

Aroused, owned by Mrs. B. F. Christmas, was the winner at a $15.40 mutuel, while Rough Party, the property of her brother-in-law, J. Y. Christmas, could do no better than fourth while running in the role of a favorite in the field of six contesting in the Inaugural Purse, the first-day feature.

Aroused, with Freddy Faust, his regular jockey, in the saddle, outclassed Rough Party, which was piloted by a bungling jockey, M. Mitchell. In contrast to his smashing victory over excellent sprint company at Bowie, Rough Party was beaten more than six lengths today.

Enthusiasm finished second in the 6½-furlong test. In the colors of John Hay Whitney, the Bubbling Over gelding ran a courageous race, but could not cope with the closing drive of Aroused, which was up in the final 20 yards to win by a neck. Buck Langhorne managed to salvage third money.

Jefferson County's weatherman did right by the Jockey Club. He provided an ideal racing day, and the crowd of 4,000 saw the program conducted over a fast track.

The daily double was a personal triumph for Trainer D. P. Brown. He saddled Good Gracious, winner of the second race for D. Jenkins, and the filly bounced home at $13.20 in the third race, Brown sent his own horse, Soupcon, postward, and the gelding romped to the wire to complete a $51 double pay-off.

Mrs. H. Basenore's Flower Time outlasted a field of seven competing in the sixth race over the 1 1-16-mile course. Jockey C. Coffman shot the ultimate winner to the front at the break, and she was never headed. Departed, hard ridden, tried to get close to the flying mare in the late stages but was held safe. Tuneful was third. The winner paid a $7.20 mutuel.

Long Shot In First.

Beauty B., with Jockey Leon Garrett in the saddle, turned in a winning effort in the first race. Justa Canter was second and Channing was third in the field of eight competing at 5 furlongs. Beauty B. worked her way up on the outside to take command in the stretch and drew out nicely at the end. The winner paid $31.40.

Wittekind, which ran a grueling 1½-mile race at Bowie last Saturday, came back to sprint to victory in the fourth race. Capably handled by Jockey Shanks, Wittekind defeated Flosilda by two and one-half lengths with Sun Sweep third. Wittekind paid a $12.60 mutuel.

BEAUTY B., within striking distance of the leaders from the beginning, moved up sharply on the swing for the stretch, went to the outside of JUSTA CANTER to take command and was drawing out at the end. JUSTA CANTER went to the front in the opening quarter, shook off KRAKATOA, continued gamely, but was unable to resist the winner. CHANNING, off slowly, was in trouble entering the stretch and rallied when clear. KRAKATOA, off forwardly, dropped back and came again. TULEYRIES RUBY was held safe throughout. The others were outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOOD GRACIOUS, $13.20, $6.80, $4.60; DOLLED UP, $5.80, $3.60; SUMAC, $3.20.

GOOD GRACIOUS, first to leave the gate, shook off repeated challenges from DOLLED UP throughout the running and drew out in the final sixteenth. DOLLED UP was strongly handled from the beginning and was easily second best. SUMAC was knocked back soon after the break, made up ground in the late stages while under pressure. TULEYRIES STAR was held safe throughout. CANTIDE pulled up sore. QUEEN NADI trailed throughout and was not a factor.

THIRD RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:41. Off at 2:43½. Winner, D. P. Brown's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOUPCON, $6.40, $3.40, $2.60; CHATTERDOO, $3.60, $2.80; TOASTMASTER, $2.80.

SOUPCON sprinted to the front at once, saved ground throughout and, while under stout handling, held CHATTERDOO safe in the closing drive. The latter, shuffled back at first turn, went up on the outside to gain gradually, went wide entering the stretch and was wearing down the winner at the end. TOASTMASTER finished resolutely, but could not menace. HUPPY closed willingly. SINGLE A. was through after showing early speed.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $51.00.

FOURTH RACE—The Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:13. Winner, N. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WITTEKIND, $12.60, $5.20, $4.00; FLOSILDA, $4.40, $3.20; SUN SWEEP, $4.40.

WITTEKIND, not hurried at the beginning, came up on the inside along the backstretch to take command from STAR MAGIC, drew clear of FLOSILDA and won easily. SUN SWEEP went wide at the first turn, made up much ground and closed willingly. FLOSILDA was slightly bothered when STAR MAGIC dropped back and closed gamely, but no match for the winner. GRACE BUNTING, forced to race on the outside while pressing the pace of STAR MAGIC, tired in the stretch. TEA JESTER closed a gap. STAR MAGIC quit after setting the pace.

FIFTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $600. The Inaugural Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:40½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AROUSED, $15.40, $5.80, $3.80; ENTHUSIASM, $4.00, $3.00; BUCK LANGHORNE, $2.80.

AROUSED, closest to the pace of ENTHUSIASM from the beginning, moved up on the pace setter gradually, rallied when placed to a drive and wore down ENTHUSIASM. The latetr was rushsed to the front at once, opened a good lead, but could not resist the winner despite good handling. BUCK LANGHORNE hung after gaining on the swing for the stretch. ROUGH PARTY was poorly handled throughout, being allowed to run wide at the first turn and getting no help in the closing stages. HARD CHASE had some early speed, but was outclassed. WINTER ROSE trailed throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:10. Winner, Mrs. K. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLOWER TIME, $7.20, $4.00, $2.60; DEPARTED, $4.60, $2.80; TUNEFUL, $3.00.

FLOWER TIME had good speed to take command at once, drew into a long lead, was placed under restraint in command, moved away when DEPARTED challenged and held the latter safe while having something in reserve. DEPARTED, steadied back of the leaders for a half mile, moved up fast when leaving the backstretch, was placed to punishment to reach the winner, but was not good enough. TUNEFUL turned in an even performance, but could not better her position. FLOWER DAY made up some ground. The others could never threaten.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won handily; place same. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:41. Winner, M. H. POPPYMAN, steadied along within striking distance of the leaders from the beginning, was sent to the outside for room to make his drive approaching the far turn, took command with a sharp move swinging for the stretch and was taken in hand while opening a gap at the end. NEVER IDOL saved ground during the early stages, was placed to strong pressure while bettering position after 6 furlongs, and closed willingly. ST. CHRISTOPHER ran SNOW COAT into defeat and tired. SNOW COAT had good speed for 7 furlongs while running with ST. CHRISTOPHER and stopped. PRECIOUS KING went to the post heavily bandaged and showed nothing. POST BRIGADE failed to rally when placed to drive. THE WORKER went forwardly for 6 furlongs and faltered.

Dear Al: Charles Town Race Track, Nov. 30.

Now that I have put miles between me and the sponge country, I thought I could let Bowie die a natural death. However, a Benningite from Laurel comes up with a story that is too good to pass up. He says it happened last Saturday. He supplied the names, etc. Take it or leave it but it's a good yarn. It seems that the owner of a horse entered in the second race at Bowie last Saturday was determined not to let the spongers get to his horse. So he instructed the groom to sleep in the stall. Toward noon, the trainer, with the owner, came to the stall and found the horse gone and the groom so drunk that they could not arouse him. The owner and trainer began a search for the horse. They looked in all the stalls nearby but could not locate the steed. They were giving up when they saw the horse coming up the line of stables ridden by a boy about 17 years old. With a sarcastic tone the owner walked up to the boy: "Thanks for bringing back my horse," he said. "But why did you bring him back?" The boy replied, "I had to bring him back, mister, my hour was up." Then it dawned on the owner. The groom had hired the horse to the boy for a saddle ride in order to buy booze. The boy confessed that he had been riding the horse through the woods. The owner tore his hair. All his plans for a last-day killing were thwarted. The horse also ran but the boy who had been riding him didn't bet on him.

BILL.

First race—Happy and Gay, scratched today, seems well suited by conditions here. Off those good Bowie races we can't afford to look to anything else in the field. Ellen Lane failed on the big courses, but must be respected in this company. Miss Millicent to take care of the others if she sees action.

Second race—Gay Bride operated with good speed here last summer and has worked well, indicating that she will be ready to crack down. Povel and Gold Clip are fair and should take money places. In the event of scratches Mint Bud and By Surprise will get into action and will be keen factors.

Third race—Chief Hollis has been reserved for the smaller tracks. He should be right at home in this field and at the route. I'm going to string along. Berry Patch looms as the one to beat. Ironbound goes on top of the heap if he gets into the running. Keyed Up, another on the also eligible list, is dangerous.

Fourth race—Jobakheta was trained on this track and knows every inch of it. The figures give this one an excellent chance and I'm going to string along. Topsie H. likes the course and should lead the others to the wire. Doeskin, first on the eligible list, and Sundrops, another notch down, are possibilities.

Fifth race—Silvery Cloud lacks a little of the class of the opposition here, but is another that thrives on this track. While the others are finding their way around, Silvery Cloud may be driving to the wire. Flag of War is the class, Headin Home for the show end.

Sixth race—Star Special, second on the also-eligible list, has an excellent chance here if scratched into action. Providing he does not start, I'm going to take Worthington. The veteran is a rather hard gamble, but has a smackering of class that brings him home in front. Mischief Maker and Jibby D. to take care of the others, Three Grand needs mud.

Seventh race—Secret Vote failed to run his race on the big tracks. Seems well suited here and I am going to take a chance. Porphyry is a bear over this course and his victory at Laurel suggests a good effort. Fair Billy's last at Bowie was an improvement.

Old Liners Favored in Western Maryland Fray at Baltimore.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Georgetown's burly football forces will be off tomorrow to the palm-dotted shores of Miami and a Friday night game with the university of that semitropical playground, and Saturday brings Maryland up against its ancient and formidable foe, Western Maryland, at Baltimore. After that the local football season will be another musty page of ancient history.

In both instances the local clubs are in for real ball games and not at all certain of returning with the sprig of laurel, or whatever it is they give winning football teams. Western Maryland is well known as the tough little fellow in Eastern football circles. Always ready to battle the biggest and bumping 'em off with alarming regularity when Dick Harlow was at the helm, the Terrors have shown little parlor improvement under Charley Havens. They're still tough, and Havens isn't overly anxious to put Buster Brown collars and silk cuffs on them.

Miami Is Good.

Miami is considerably improved over last year, when Georgetown voted it had the toughest line sent against the Hoyas all season. Miami hasn't been bashful about bringing in capable material, and its record for the season indicates the talent is exceptionally good. Mississippi finally knocked the boys out of the undefeated class last week with a 14-to-0 victory, but with that lone exception the Floridians have more than held their own. Two ties and five victories are on the books, and playing in their own back yard by lamplight Friday may bring another victory.

While Maryland will reign a favorite over the Terrors by virtue of its superior backfield talent and one good line, Western Maryland can't be counted out of the running until that man wearing the white pants blows his whistle for the last time. With the passing attack they have, not to mention a sound and well-balanced running game, Charley Havens' boys deserve, and probably have, the respect of the Terrapins.

Maryland hasn't had a shoe on, that is, a football shoe, since its 19-to-6 triumph over Washington and Lee Thanksgiving Day, and is well rested and feeling fine, thanks. By kick-off time Saturday, 2 p. m., Dobson expects his men to have enough energy stored up to blast the up-Staters for a decisive win.

Barnes Joins Net Troupe; Tilden Out

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—The troupe that will escort Fred Perry, former world amateur champion, on his first professional tennis tour of the country, starting January 6, in Madison Square Garden, was completed today.

Bruce Barnes, of Austin, Tex., former ranking amateur star who became a pro in 1931, has been signed by Co-promoters Frank Hunter and Howard Voshell, who previously obtained the services of Ellsworth Vines and George Lott, jr., after Perry quit the amateur division.

The acquisition of Barnes definitely ended reports the fourth member of the troupe would be William ("Big Bill") Tilden. It is reported Tilden will be a member of a rival tour along with Vinnie Richards, a Japanese star and probably one or two others.

St. Paul's Academy's Five Plays G. U. Prep

St. Paul's Academy's quintet will launch the local scholastic basketball campaign tomorrow at Garrett Park, where it meets Georgetown Prep at 3:30 o'clock.

It is only the second year of competition for the Saints, and Manager Bernie Roache, who is handling the business end, playing forward and doing most of the coaching, doesn't expect much of his men this winter. His big aim is to assure formidable opposition for the experience it will give those returning next year when he expects St. Paul's to be a big name in prep school circles.

Sanico League Is Paced by Green Bag

With Tom Bradford, high individual average man toppling the maples at a terrific pace, Green Bag Coffee is making it tough for all its opponents in the Sanico League. Last night at the Convention Hall alleys, Bradford sent his big average soaring still higher when he collected a 396 set to further Green Bag Coffee's title hopes with two wins over Sanico Rye Bread. In the scoring spree the pace-setters carried away high team honors with a 602 game and 1,692 set.

The winning ways of Investigation and Veterans' Administration teams, leading teams in the Federal League, were abruptly halted last night at the Arcade alleys. Investigation being forced to taste defeat in two games from G. P. O. and Veterans' Administration taking a walloping in all three games from the champion National Capital Parks.

Horace Tucker showed his heels in the race for individual laurels, shooting a 392 set in I. B. E. W. No. 21's odd game victory over War. U. S. Senate humbled Labor three games and Navy gained the edge over P. W. A.

With 16 wins out of its last 18 games, the Washington Gas Light team is seriously contesting the right of Willis Bakery's position atop the Merchants League at Convention Hall. The Dated Coffee five were the last to feel the wrath of the Gasmen's drive, bowing twice. Clifford Fox featured the match with a 359 set.

Willis Bakery protected its slim lead with an odd-game decision over Irving's Sport Store, and Bill Gingell (Southern Dairies) collected a 139 game, top score for the night.

Earl McPhilomy continued to lash the maples in the Graphic Arts League, aiding Stanford Paper with a 151 game and 382 set. Progressive Printing held its claim to the No. 1 position safe with a top game and set of 570 and 1,659, respectively . . . Meter No. 1 broke its deadlock with Sales for the supremacy of the Kilowatt League, gaining sole possession of first place by downing Sales two games. District Engineers annexed team honors with 614 and 1,687 . . . W. W. Southworth boosted the Saxons to the No. 1 position in the Procurement League, shooting a 330 set. The Gothics were forced to relinquish first place when the Aztecs took them over the hurdles twice . . . Hannegan (St. Gabriel's) topped the scoring in the Fidelity Ladies League with a 114 game and 316 set . . . Transportation moved into third place in the What's In A Name League by swamping Mines. Vernon Washington's .390 Tops Association Hitters; Ruling Aids

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Vernon (George) Washington, husky St. Paul outfielder, finally has caught up with the American Association batting championship—with the help of a league ruling.

Washington compiled an average of .390, according to official batting figures released tonight, but played in only 73 games during which he went to bat 305 times. The title formerly went to the high man playing in 100 or more games, but under a rule recently adopted by the club owners, 300 or more times at bat, instead of 100 games, was set as the minimum service requirement.

The Saint slugger, who lost the 1934 crown to Earl Webb, of Milwaukee, by a fraction of a point, thus was ranked ahead of Jack Winsett, of Columbus, who hammered the ball for a .354 mark in 141 games. Tied for third place at .353 were Mel Simons, of Louisville; Henry Steinbacher, of St. Paul, and Oscar (Ox) Eckhardt, of Indianapolis, all outfielders.

Although the new rule will keep him from taking a batting title along when he joins the Brooklyn Dodgers for a trial next spring, Winsett gained the major share of individual honors. He topped the league in home runs with 50, was the leading scorer with 144 runs, and had the best collection of total bases, 392.

WE PUT BLUE SUNOCO ON THE SPOT... left out the blue color and called it a "mystery gas"; then matched it against 54 other gasolines in tests made by motorists in 14 cities and 87% declared that Blue Sunoco starts faster than the gasolines they had been using!

HOW THE "MYSTERY GAS" TESTS WERE MADE

The Ross Federal Research Corporation asked at random approximately one hundred motorists, in each of 14 widely separated cities, to contribute their services in testing a "mystery gasoline" in their own cars. This gasoline was regular Blue Sunoco, without the blue color. The emptied tank of each car was filled with ten gallons of this color-less Blue Sunoco and, later, the frank and uninfluenced opinions of each motorist were obtained by Ross Federal investigators. Of course, some motorists were found to be regular Blue Sunoco users. They have been omitted from all compilations.

That this "mystery gasoline" was regular Blue Sunoco was certified by the testing laboratories of E. W. Saybolt & Co., a recognized gasoline authority, whose men sealed the gasoline drums at the refinery and turned them over to Ross Federal for shipment to their representatives in the 14 cities.

● The gas tanks of cars making this test were drained before the "mystery gas" was put in.

Think of it . . . 1160 out of 1214 motorists who tested the "mystery gas" (Blue Sunoco) in their own cars proved it started quicker than the gasoline they had been using!

Here's the fairest, squarest test ever devised—and here's proof that when you want sure-fire starting this winter, Blue Sunoco is the motor fuel to buy.

87% said: QUICKER STARTING
95% said: BETTER ALL-AROUND PERFORMANCE when Blue Sunoco was compared with the gasoline they had been using.*

People like yourself, driving practically every make of car, proved that Blue Sunoco bettered the performance of their cars, gave them quicker starting than a total of 54 other gasolines, 11 of them being extra priced.

Surely this is convincing evidence that Blue Sunoco is today's outstanding motor fuel at any price . . . and it sells at regular gas price!

Test it in your own car and let it PROVE its superiority!

QUESTIONNAIRE
Compared to the gasoline you have been using . . . did you get:—
(1) quicker starting?	87% YES
(2) faster pickup?	80% YES
(3) more power on hills?	72% YES
(4) better all-around performance?	95% YES

*These are not our figures. They were obtained and certified by the Ross Federal Research Corp., an entirely independent and uninfluenced fact-finding organization.

Wheat Climbs To Peak Prices For Six Years

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Highest prices in more than six years accompanied active buying of wheat futures here today, largely reflecting disturbed European political conditions. Adding impetus to the upward swing of values were export purchases of 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, making the total in the past week about 9,000,000 bushels. Chicago wheat futures closed firm at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅝ higher; December, 120⅛@120¼; May, 117⅞@118; July, 67¼@67½; Corn also unchanged to ⅜ up; December 105⅛@105¼; May, new, 100⅛@100¼; July, new, 96¼@96⅜; oats at ⅛ decline to ⅛ advance; December, 45⅝, and rye, ⅜ to 1 cent bulge; December, 96. Provisions results varied from 7 to 35 cents gain.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Mark Time as Trading Concentrates in Low-Priced Issues; Commodities Firm.

New York, Nov. 30.—Irregularity was the watchword in securities markets and strength ruled the commodities. Government bonds were soft in spots and the speculative sections followed stocks, which at their best in late afternoon recovered only a portion of their earlier mild losses. Turnover in stocks was around 2,200,000 shares. December wheat rose another half-cent to 120¼ cents a bushel.

If stocks were inclined to drag at times, no lack of resolution was to be found in commodities. The greatest strength was shown in wheat, always particularly sensitive to speculative winds, and the obvious reason for bullishness in that market was the reported accumulation of supplies by Europe as a precaution against war. With that went also the speculative hope that such accumulations would be made, the hope probably exceeding for the moment the reality. Wheat futures, nevertheless, were shoved up to new high prices, but no protest nor warning came from the authorities at Washington. None is likely to come, even though wheat should go to $3 a bushel, nor is it likely that any change would be made in the dole system called soil conservation, or, more accurately, crop reduction.

Wheat was not the only commodity to rise. Nearly all others went ahead, as they have been doing lately. Altogether, it looks as though at long last a speculative movement of inflationary characteristics was getting well started in commodities and stirrings are even observable in real estate. If farm products advance far the effect on agricultural land will be quick and sharp.

Low-Priced Shares.

Most of the stock market operations today were among the low-priced shares, particularly those with a speculative flavor. Fertilizer stocks joined the building shares as popular counters. Many preferred stocks in all groups with large dividend accruals were given a shove. Outside the rather small number of favorite stocks profit taking held down attempts to advance. Opening prices were lower, amounting to 1 and 2 points in issues of Chrysler, Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery-Ward, Western Union, General Motors and duPont.

Railroad issues weakened from 1 to 2 points, although Coast Line perked up in the last hour as did a few others. Mail orders and motors drooped a little and metals found selling pressure considerable, especially toward the close. Railroad equipments were mixed. Oils and utilities held close to the previous closing lines.

Brokerage houses reported no great activity in foregn business, and the buying and selling were about in balance. The greatest danger to our markets on foreign account lies not in restrictive measures that may be taken here, nor in individual withdrawals; but rather the threat is, in case of war, government confiscation and sale of private holdings. Foreign currencies were inactive, with the dollar quoted lower against sterling and francs.

Investors in the securities markets scarcely could have found over the week-end any strong reasons for selling, either in the political or economic areas. At the same time the information available to the public was not of a nature to inspire additional purchases. Driblets of money coming into public hands just now probably is finding its way into retail knick-knacks rather than into securities. Meanwhile the question of whether stocks are two high or too low remains unanswered, reluctance to reply coming from those who dislike the operation of the heavy income taxes on capital gains, who fear the immediate effects of repeal of the tax, who are undecided as to how far the Government may go in credit control and who also are perhaps nervous over the possibility of war in Europe.

Industry Holds Up.

Industry at least is holding its own. The steel trade this week will spurt to 75.9 per cent of capacity operations, probably the best rate, all things considered, since the depression began to be felt in all quarters. Such a rate furthermore is not far from practical capacity of the mills. A year ago the industry was running at 56.4 per cent of capacity. Notice of certain price increases has stimulated the placing of orders, and it would appear that the recent wage increases granted at most mills will for a while at least settle labor disputes.

The steel industry is perhaps running ahead of the field for heavy trades in general, but if the burgeoning of real estate activity continues a further spurt will come from the reviving building construction industry. Railroads just now are the principal buyers of steel, being unable to hold off longer on deferred maintenance and being also in the best position in years to buy. In building the quantity of deferred construction may be even greater than among the railroads.

Foreign Trade.

Perhaps the excitement of tabulating, or digesting, the election returns, has had a bad effect on collectors of statistics. At any rate, the Department of Commerce has let go by November without publication of foreign trade figures for October. It is not the first time the monthly figures have bcome only in the second following month, but so much delay is without adequate excuse.

Hot Money.

Since the President made his remarks about hot money, the basis for which was recently published by the Treasury, it has been customary to explain every rise in foreign exchange as caused by European investment money flowing out and for every weak spell by the contrary. The usual buoyancy in sterling and francs, bringing gains in other Continental rates, was duly set down to an exodus of foreign money in the lack of a more satisfying reason. Only the figures regularly compiled at the Reserve bank, which the Treasury will make public in a few weeks, will show how accurate might be such explanations. In the past two weeks, it has been semi-officially divulged, the days of heavy inflow have been nearly balanced with days of large outflow, the balance moving in this direction being relatively small.

Rail Orders Total $13,500,000 in Nov.

New York, Nov. 30 (AP). November rail buying topped 375,000 tons today as additional orders were announced in one of the heaviest monthly runs of business for steel rail makers in recent years. It put orders worth about $13,500,000 on their books at the current price for rails, $36.37 a ton. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific divided an order for 35,000 tons among the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, Inland Steel Co. and Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western placed orders for 17,175 tons of track steel, including 10,000 tons of rails and 2,000 tons of bars and tieplates with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Banks Open Accounts for Christmas 1937

By Gerald G. Gross.

Continuing a convenience that has fairly become a weekly ritual for thousands of Washingtonians, banks today will begin opening 1937 Christmas savings accounts.

Although the offering of this service entails considerable additional work and expense to the various banks and trust companies with a profit return that is either small or non-existent, the record-breaking participation in this year's Christmas savings program was virtually a mandate to carry on in 1937.

Accordingly, 15 local savings institutions will receive old club members' applications and welcome new ones beginning today and continuing until January 5. Following is the list:

Anacostia Bank, American Security & Trust Co., Bank of Commerce & Savings, Hamilton National Bank, McLachlen Banking Corporation, Morris Plan Bank, Munsey Trust Co., National Bank of Washington, National Savings & Trust Co., Security Savings & Trust Co., Riggs National Bank (branches only), Second National Bank, Union Trust Co. and the Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Soon to be distributed among 76,307 Christmas club members is $6,258,440. This represents a gain in patrons of 10,153 over 1935 and approximately $1,000,000 in deposits.

Peoples Drug Bonus.

A special salary dividend which will come as a bounteous Christmas gift to 1,900 employes of Peoples Drug Stores was announced yesterday by President M. G. Gibbs.

Meeting yesterday, the board of directors voted to present 25 per cent of one month's basic salary to all employed more than six months and less than a year; 35 per cent to those who have been on the pay roll between one and two years, and 50 per cent to all employed two years or more.

The dividend will apply to all workers below the rank of assistant store manager, who have been in the regular and continuous employ of Peoples at least six months. An established bonus plan already is in operation for executives, store managers and assistant store managers. Payment will be made December 10.

Another unique plan which the board of directors adopted yesterday was a change in personnel methods which provides that no employe shall work more than six days in any one week, effective January 1, or as soon thereafter as arrangements can be completed.

Since Peoples Drug Stores are open seven days a week, the plan will involve considerable addition to personnel, with consequent enlargement of the pay roll. This is one of the first large drug chains to attempt such a change.

Gas Light Loss in October.

The monthly report of the Washington Gas Light Co. filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission reflects the effect of reduced rates approved December 16, 1935, in operating revenues of $477,358 for the month of October, compared with $512,914 for October of last year, a decrease of $35,556. Operating expenses increased $20,906 this October, due to the larger volume of gas produced and increasad charges for retirement reserve. The net result of the month's operation was a loss of $5,798. Notwithsanding this loss for October, the company reports that its earnings for the ten months of the current year show up well in view of the large reduction in rates—operating revenues being $5,392,268, compared with $5,240,066 for the same period of last year. The net income for the ten months ended October 31, 1936, was $496,474.

The monthly report of the Georgetown Gas Light Co. also filed with the Public Utilities Commission yesterday, likewise shows the effect of rate reductions and increased charges for the retirement of property in a net loss of $3,268 for October of this year.

Realty Bonds Here Lead Rise For November

Washington Issues Gain 2.7 Points in Month; Miami Next.

New York, Nov. 30.—The most rapid advance in bid prices among real estate issues for November occurred in the hotel securities, according to the Eli T. Watson & Co. real estate bond index.

Bid prices on hotel securities also recorded a greater advance, among the 252 issues contained in the index, for the first 11 months of the year, than any other type of security. The net gain for hotels for the 11-month period was 25.1 per cent, or 8.1 points, and for the past month was 1 point. The nearest group of issues to hotels, so far as advances are concerned, was theaters, which showed a 12.7 per cent increase, or 8.5 points, for the 11-month period, and six-tenths of a point for the month's trading.

Tabulations for the 252 issues included in the index recorded a continuation of the advance that started in real estate several years ago. All issues showed a net gain for the month of four-tenths of a point, and an 11-month gain of 12.7 per cent, or 5.2 points in price over their January, 1936, prices.

Among the cities whose properties secure real estate issues, Washington showed the greatest advance for the month of 2.7 points, while the 11-month leadership was held by Miami, Fla., with an advance of 54.7 per cent, or 15.7 points over its January, 1936, price. The second greatest progress for November was recorded for Miami, whose issues advanced 1.4 points.

The Watson statisticians explain the marked advance in hotels by the fact that those properties usually have no leases of any duration which puts them in a particularly favorable position to respond to the uptrend in general business conditions.

Steel Production Equals Year's High

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—Equaling the year's high, operations in the steel industry for the current week advanced 1.6 points to 75.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 74.3 last week, the American Iron & Steel Institutet estimated today.

A month ago operations averaged 74.7 per cent of capacity, while a year ago the rate was 56.4 per cent.

MRS. ELY CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

Breaking Up a Squeeze.

Average players are fast coming to appreciate certain niceties of defense that have heretofore been known only to experts. Recently I saw a player, who could not by any stretch of the imagination be termed a master, make a very neat analysis of a dangerous situation that was rapidly developing around himself and partner. Having done so, he proceeded to avoid the trap by a shrewd counterstroke.

South, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

	♠ K J 6 ♡ 7 6 4 3 ◇ 10 7 4 ♣ A 10 6
♠ 9 4 ♡ A Q 10 9 5 ◇ J 6 ♣ K 7 3 2	North West East South	♠ 10 3 ♡ 8 2 ◇ Q 9 8 5 3 ♣ Q J 5 4
	♠ A Q 8 7 5 2 ♡ K J ◇ A K 2 ♣ 9 8

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♡ (1)	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) A very light overcall.

North's free raise was highly questionable—a pass would have been better, and he then could have raised the rebid that South would have been sure to make. As it was, South might easily have gone over his depth by accepting North's free raise at face value.

West opened the Jack of diamonds and when the disappointing dummy was exposed, declarer saw that he had no sure thing. It looked more than possible that he would lose two tricks in hearts and one in each of the minor suits.

After winning the first trick, Declarer led the nine of clubs and, when West properly played low, let the nine ride. East won with the Jack and returned his partner's suit, hearts. West smothered Declarer's Jack with the Queen, and cashed the Ace, and it was after this that the defenders were hanging by a hair.

Had West returned a heart, or a diamond, a double squeeze would have been a certain outcome. Either would be won by the declarer, and every trump cashed, so that with one trump left to go, declarer would be reduced to a small diamond and small club, dummy would hold one heart and the Ace-ten of clubs, West would have to have a heart to guard dummy and would be down to the King and a low club, and East would have to keep a diamond and could, therefore, have only two clubs. Now the last trump would squeeze both East and West. West could not let go the heart without setting up dummy's heart; East could not let go the diamond without establishing declarer's diamonds.

On the Air Today

Jack Dempsey went from fighting to night club proprietor; Max Baer to the movies. But Jimmy Braddock, the present title holder, has decided on radio.

Braddock begins a thrice-a-week quarter-hour on the N. B. C. blue network (WMAL) tonight at 7:15. He has completed dictating his life story to Jack Kofoed, veteran sports writer, and Stella Unger, columnist. They're writing the radio script.

It was after the Max Baer defeat in June, 1935, that Braddock's air experience graduated beyond the gasping of "Hello, everybody." When he became heavyweight champion he was invited by Ed Wynn, Frank Fay and others to make guest appearances.

However, he is not yet a radio actor. And for the present, while his youth is being relieved in the scripts, he will limit his personal wordage to a simple narration of an episode in his life which then will be re-enacted.

Broadway provides the cast for the series up to the time Braddock begins playing himself. Gabriel Dell, playing the role of "T. B." in "Dead End," will play the boy Braddock. Others of the cast are either now in Broadway plays or have just left them.

Because his wife is a faithful listener to "Husbands and Wives," one husband will talk over the air through a special voice disguiser instrument tonight, WMAL, at 9:30. The husband wants to tell how he cured his wife of nagging! But, he says, if she recognizes his voice he'll be in for something far worse than nagging. N. B. C. engineers came to his rescue with the "disguiser."

Maxwell L. Johnson, broadcasting on contract bridge, asked his WMAL listeners to send in tops of anything with their contest entries. But he was considerably surprised at the weird collection that came in. There were tops from laundry boxes, milk bottles, beer bottles, tomato cans and even the top of a pin—carefully clipped off. And one humming top, intact, which he played on one program.
